"As I thus had nothing to do with the publication of the article which appeared in the Matin on Nov. 11, I feel that I have no personal responsibility in either statements or comments made in this article which led to your letter of Nov. 13th."

To this disavowal the Marshal adds a tribute of his respect and esteem for Belgium's army and for the king whose noble conduct in the battle he adds can never be forgotten.

The Marshal's disavowal of the interview was expected. It has been his rule ever since the war not to divulge in any way the inner history of the war and of his relations with other commanders in it. His alleged revelations to the New York newspaper, which were later reproduced in the Matin, were, therefore, from the first believed here to be more in the nature of an enthusiastic recital of a scrap of private conversation by an injudicious journalist than an actual disclosure of the history of events by the former Commander-in-Chief.

King Albert's letter, couched, as it was, in rather a severe tone, was a reproof and a correction to which Marshal Foch was forced to reply, not only on his own behalf, but also because to a certain extent the honor and good relations of the Belgian and French Armies were involved. He has laid the whole responsibility on M. Lauzanne for the latter's treatment of what was at the very most a private conversation of a limited nature, the divulgation of which was never authorized.

Lauzanne Admits Article Was His Own.

In his own defense, M. Lauzanne has issued the following statement:

"Marshal Foch has perfectly, accurately recorded the facts. He never gave me an interview, in the sense that there was never between us a concerted and revised dialogue, and he had nothing to do with the writing or publication of my article in the Matin on the 11th of November."

To this M. Lauzanne adds:

"When I had the honor to be received by Marshal Foch on the 7th of October last I kept in mind that part of our long and interesting conversation which appeared to me to be valuable, though harmful to friendship but profitable to history. And on my exclusive responsibility I published it in the Matin on the 11th of November.

"Journalists are neither entirely free nor under the seal of secrecy. Their curiosity is on behalf of their public. They do not work for posterity, but for their contemporaries. When they think they have got hold of the interesting part of the truths which make history they drag it at once into the limelight. It is possible that they may be taxed with indiscretion: it is indiscretion which is the very raison d'etre of a free press. I claim it for my part as an imprescriptable right."

As far as M. Lauzanne's apologia goes it belongs to a different category of discussion from the vigorous letter of King Albert and the downright disclaimer of Marshal Foch. There is in it controversial matter utterly extraneous to the main issue. But that, at least, has been satisfactorily closed with all due honor to the Belgian army and to Marshal Foch.

Belgium Holds Incident Closed.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Belgian Court today published the text of Marshal Foch's letter to King Albert, disavowing a newspaper article which pictured the Marshal as persuading the King to prevent a retreat of the Belgian Army in November, 1914.

With the publication of the reply, it is stated, the Court regards the incident as closed.

FRANCE DELAYS ON DEBTS.

Chamber Committee's Action Shelves Question to the End of the Year.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—All discussion of the interallied debt situation seems now definitely postponed until the end of the year or the beginning of next year, even in committee.

Today the Finance Committee of the Chamber met to consider a report of the subcommittee which was appointed some months ago to examine all the documents involved, but instead of discussing the report it discussed only whether it should discuss the report or whether it should nominate another subcommittee. Finally it decided to ask Premier Poincaré to appear before the full committee and present his views.

But when later in the day the Premier was asked when would be a convenient time for him to appear, he found he was so occupied by the budget discussion that he would not be able to do so before the budget finally had passed, that is to say, before at least the end of December or the beginning of January.

Havana Meine Memorial Restored.

HAVANA, Nov. 19 (AP).—Reconstruction of the monument erected by Cuba to the memory of the Americans killed in the destruction of the battleship Maine has been started. The monument was wrecked during the hurricane which struck Havana on Oct. 20. The City of Havana now shows few traces of the damage done by the storm.

BRITISH WARN LEAGUE ON MANDATE INQUIRY

Declare They Will Not Permit Commission to Exceed Authority in Examining Administrations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Nov. 19.—A letter from Downing Street which states in a diplomatic but positive manner that the British Government will not permit the League Mandates Commission to exceed its authority in examining the administration of British administered mandates were made public today.

The letter is the one which the British Government promised in September, when Sir Austen Chamberlain asked the Council not to make any decisions regarding the commission's proposal to hear certain petitioners personally and to require the mandatory powers to answer a questionnaire containing 230 questions until after the mandatory powers had an opportunity to present their observations. Foreign Minister Briand opposed the proposals of the commission with equal vigor.

The British letter says that after studying from the juridical point of view the administration mandates as defined in Article 22 of the Covenant, it finds that the annual report which the mandatory power must send to the Council must deal with the administration as a whole, and not on all points in detail.

At the same time, it is the Council and not the Mandates Commission that has the right of decision regarding the administration of the mandates.

Regarding the petitions, the letter says that the British Government considers that there are most serious objections to granting any sort of audience to the petitioners concerning the territory administered. Unable to understand why the commission cannot by examining written documents see whether the petitions are well founded, the British Government considers the questionnaire goes into all details of Government administration, exceeding greatly that which is necessary for the commission and which is compatible with the intentions of the Covenant and the rules approved by the Council.

YUGOSLAVIA'S BUDGET DOWN

Estimates Are Less Than in Previous Year for the First Time.

BELGRADE, Nov. 19.—The budget for 1927, which Finance Minister Peritch has submitted to Parliament, is the first in the history of either Yugoslavia or Serbia in which a Government has reduced the estimates of a previous year. The total of the new estimates is $224,000,000, a tenth less than those for 1926.

The Constitution forbids Parliament to raise the estimates, but allows it to reduce the budget expenditures. It slashed last year's estimates $10,000,000, and the Government, which is bent on economizing, appears quite willing to save more if Parliament will assume responsibility for a similar cut now.

The budget increase for service of the public debt is $620,000, including $220,000 for payments to America. It also increases the appropriation for the Department of Public Worship by $140,000. Estimates for all other departments have been reduced. The chief reductions follow: Ministry of Railways, $3,500,000; Social Welfare, $1,800,000; Finance, $1,600,000; War, $1,250,000; Public Works, $880,000, and Education, $780,000.

The saving is made chiefly in personnel, which is being reduced, and in the suppression of some capital expenditures.

M. Peritch denies rumors that the revenue will be $60,000,000 less than estimated. He attributes these reports partly to the fact that he has suppressed $10,000,000 "fictive receipts" and estimated the deficit on State enterprises at $14,500,000.

BRITISH RAIL CRASH KILLS 8

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Eight men were killed instantly and seven persons injured in an accident on the London & Midland Railway between Rawmarsh and Masborough today. So rare are fatal railway accidents in Britain that many people, seeing the newspaper headlines, immediately thought: "Where—United States or France?"

English railways, which are particularly proud of their records for safety, recently issued statistics showing that during the past year not a single fatal accident occurred in the whole country.

The accident today was of an unusual kind. The York-Bristol Express was traveling forty-five miles an hour in passing a coal train of ninety cars drawn by two locomotives coming in the opposite direction on a parallel track. One of the freight cars was derailed and ripped into the passenger cars. Eight passengers were crushed to death. Three coaches were torn open, but none was derailed.

SHAW PRIZE RULING TO BE MADE TODAY

Swedish Academy Will Decide What to Do With Money Irishman Refused.

HE APPEARS IN HIGH GLEE

"I Don't Agree With Anything," He Snaps, When Asked If He Approves Sinclair Lewis's Action.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Swedish Academy will meet tomorrow to discuss the action of George Bernard Shaw in accepting the honor of the Nobel prize in literature for 1925, but declining the $35,000 money prize.

Permanent Secretary Kerfeldt said that he was unable to predict what would be done with the prize, as Mr. Shaw had apparently both rejected and accepted it.

In some quarters the Irish playwright's action is interpreted as equivalent to rejection of the whole award.

While Mr. Shaw's decision is regretted, it is felt it can in no way be regarded as a sign of disrespect to the Academy.

One member of the Academy pointed out that under the rules the money could not be used in the manner suggested by Mr. Shaw, namely as a fund to promote Anglo-Swedish intellectual intercourse.

Shaw Waste Subject Thrashed Out.

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP).—"It's up to the Swedish Academy," said George Bernard Shaw in a telephone interview with The Associated Press today in which he was informed that his rejection yesterday of the money prize connected with the Nobel Literature award was interpreted in Stockholm as tantamount to rejection of the entire award.

"I'm not worrying," the dramatist added. "Let them do that; but I am certainly going to be a most interested front row spectator in the discussion which I hope will now develop around the question of giving prizes to writers."

Asked if he agreed with Sinclair Lewis, who refused the Pulitzer prize on the ground that prizes were bad for literature, Mr. Shaw snapped:

"I don't agree with anything."

He said he wanted to see the whole subject thrashed out in the preps. Also he was thankful for Mr. Lewis's action, because it had called his attention to the Pulitzer Prize, of which he had never heard before.

He would not say whether he was against the idea of offering awards, but felt sure a general discussion among the press and public would be most interesting.

Playwright Hates Telephones.

Mr. Shaw, it must be understood, hates telephones and all calls to his home are usually answered by his housekeeper or secretary. The secretary was told today that the Stockholm message was of much interest to Mr. Shaw.

"Is it a long dispatch?" the secretary asked.

"Yes, quite lengthy," was the reply.

"Well, wait a moment and I will see what Mr. Shaw is doing."

Then, a few seconds later, a voice thundered over the wire:

"Bernard Shaw speaking. What is it, anyway, that you have from Stockholm?"

He was told briefly.

"Well, well," he chuckled. "It appears as if I had started something. I certainly didn't intend to—nothing of the kind ever entered my mind.

"I had heard of the Nobel Prize, I believe, before I wrote the work which won the award—whatever it was—but I certainly did not try for it.

"Understand me," snarled the voice, "I did not try for it.

"Look here," he added enthusiastically, "how's this for an idea?" And he whispered, almost confidentially: "Let's have it out in the press"

"There may be more prizes for literature at any time," Mr. Shaw continued. "Suppose any American millionaire, or a millionaire anywhere else, gets the idea of making awards and the idea begins to spread, where may it end?

"Bnt don't misunderstand me. I do not say that prizes are apt to cause writers to write with a bias. I really haven't any thoughts on the subject, and, as usual, have nothing to say as to my views."

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 19.—John V. Trotter, former Chairman of the Hamilton County Board of Education, was indicted by the Grand Jury today in twenty-eight cases. Forgery of receipts for expenditures and larceny are the charges. Trotter's bond was fixed at $23,000. He is alleged to have misappropriated more than $100,000. Receipts purported to have been signed by contractors and merchants were held to have been forced by Trotter.

France and Germany Renew Exchange of Publications

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The intellectual reconciliation between France and Germany was advanced another step today, when both Governments announced their approval of a new accord, resuming the exchange of French and German publications, which was interrupted on Aug. 2, 1914.

M. Barrau-Ditrigo, conservator of the library of the University of Paris, and Herr Bersu, head of the principal German archaeological institute, after some days of negotiations for their respective countries, drew up the following agreement:

First, for the exchange of all German and French theses; second, the exchange of all official publications of the educational departments of the two nations; third, the exchange of all publications issued by learned societies.

GARIBALDI NOW HELD AS POLITICAL PRISONER

General Will Converse With His Brother for First Time Today Under New Rule.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Another step in the fight for the good name of Ricciotti Garibaldi was won today when his lawyers obtained the status of a political prisoner for him. Tomorrow General Peppino Garibaldi will, therefore, hold his first conversation with his imprisoned brother, as he refused to go through the formalities required for a visit to an ordinary criminal. Until now Ricciotti Garibaldi and his elder brother, who came from America to aid in his defence, have had only fleeting glimpses of each other, when Ricciotti, handcuffed to a policeman was taken to a judge's office a few days ago.

General Garibaldi and Sante Garibaldi have both declared their absolute faith that their brother has never in any way betrayed France or his friends. They are fighting hard to obtain a complete acquittal on the charges filed against him. These charges are based on his alleged participation in the Catalonian plot to invade Spain.

"As a former officer of the French army," General Garibaldi said today, "my brother doesn't intend to benefit by any privilege because of his foreign nationality or because of his name. He wishes to be treated like any French citizen. He is certain to destroy the legends, which are more fiction than fact."

Sante Garibaldi, who is a building contractor here, visits his brother daily and has learned the various details of his prison life. Ricciotti has no watch with which to tell time and in order to while away the hours is trying to train three mice which visit his cell daily. He has already taught them to climb on a table, where he feeds them crumbs of bread. He is not downhearted because of his confinement and is confident that his brothers and his lawyers will win his freedom.

COBBLER IN BERLIN MYSTIFIES DOCTORS

Unconscious of Pain, Smell, Sight and Hearing, He Restores Senses After Test.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—A thirty-year-old shoe cobbler from a small village, deep in the Waldenburg Mountains of Silesia, surprised scientists, mystified physicians and startled laymen last night at the Apollo Theatre, by proving conclusively that he was able to control all five senses to the extent of eliminating them from consciousness.

The mountaineer, who assumed the name of "Sine Dolor," performed all the feats known to Indian fakirs, such as driving daggers through his arm and leg, nailing sabots to his feet and allowing himself to be nailed on a cross. Throughout the exhibition he evidenced no pain and lost no blood, though the holes remained.

Tests were made of his other senses, such as placing strong odors under his nostrils and pungent liquids on his tongue, without Dolor showing the slightest sign of discomfort. His sight and hearing were also tested when he announced that he had broken the nervous connection between those organs and the brain, and there was not the slightest sign that they were functioning.

After the test was completed, Dolor again submitted to the doctors' examination and showed that he was in full possession of all his senses, which were developed to the highest state of sensitiveness.

While Dolor desires a stage career, there is a question whether his physical and mental powers are able to stand the continuous strain necessary to control the senses, which is done in full consciousness and not in a trance. He asserts that he acquired the power by practicing mental concentration for many years, while repairing shoes.

INDIAN'S OIL MONEY A TARGET FOR PLEAS

CHURCH GIFT IS DEFENDED

Cato Sells Says Fund of $500,000 for Baptist Mission Was Not Obtained by Duress.

When it became known that Jackson Barnett, the Creek Indian, was reaping a harvest of dollars through the oil that was found on his reservation in Oklahoma, hundreds of men and women in all parts of the country wrote to him expressing their love and admiration for the "poor Indians" and incidentally pointing out that a contribution to a certain charity or project would be joyfully accepted. But Barnett was too well guarded to make it possible for these solicitations to be successful.

This was revealed yesterday during trial of the action instituted to prevent Barnett from creating a trust fund or $500,000 for the benefit of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, now in progress before Federal Judge Knox. Barnett cannot write and so his signature is limited to a thumb print, which added to the difficulty of persons at a distance to separate him from his money.

Among the witnesses was Cato Sells, who began his testimony on Thursday by describing with tears a desire Barnett had to build a hospital for Indians in Oklahoma and live near it in a house of his own. Mr. Sells, who formerly was Commissioner of Indian Affairs, testified that Barnett was capable of managing his own business and that his gift to the Baptist Society was not obtained by duress. Another witness testified to the same effect. Mr. Sells stated that during his term of office the number of Creek Indians in this country increased from 335,000 to 350,000.

Barnett and Joe Brunner, another Creek interpreter, were asked if they knew an Indian calling himself "Indian Chief Monicowag" who had written a letter asking the police here to institute a search for Barnett. The writer gave his address as 318 Park Avenue, Baltimore. Both Barnett and Brunner said they never had heard of him.

It was explained during the proceedings that Barnett and his wife were managing to send "Uncle Billy" Mocabe, who had been serving as interpreter, back to his home in Oklahoma because he was ill.

The trial will be continued on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 19.—Chief Monicowag, who was mentioned in the Barnett trust fund trial in New York, said at his home tonight that the reason he asked the New York police to get in touch with Jackson Barnett was because he had private business he wished to transact with him. He refused to divulge the nature of the business.

POLICEMAN SLAIN BY BROOKLYN GANG

fists and tried to fight off the policeman; but, wounded as he was, Daszkiewicz clung to his prisoner. Meanwhile two of the three other gunmen had disappeared through Love Lane, running eastward. A third fled toward Pierrepont Street and ran westward.

There were few persons on the streets at that hour. The district is wholly residential and most of the occupants of houses and apartment houses thereabouts were at work. But those who were at home heard the shots and hurried into the street. Among these was Carney, who being out of a job, was spending the day at home. He saw Daszkiewicz struggling on the ground with his prisoner and ran to the patrolman's aid.

Meantime Carney's wife had telephoned the police and a few minutes later a squad of detectives arrived from the Poplar Street Station. They found Carney grappling with the prisoner and seized both men. Carney tried to explain that he had come to Daszkiewicz's assistance, but the detectives refused to believe him at first, and insisted on his returning to the police station. Daszkiewicz did not regain consciousness until several hours later, and it was not until Carney and the prisoner were taken to the patrolman's bedside for identification that the tangle was straightened out.

After he had been identified the prisoner was taken back to the police station for questioning. He said his name was James Lacurto and gave his address as 379 Lincoln Road. The records, detectives said, showed that Lacurto served time at Blackwell's Island, two years in Sing Sing and thirty months in the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton for burglary and for stealing automobiles.

Lacurto, an undersized youth of medium build, with a shock of wiry reddish hair, denied at first that the three other occupants of the sedan were known to him. He said he had hired the automobile from the Brooklyn U-Drive-It Corporation at 2,0003 Bedford Avenue, early in the afternoon, and was driving around in the vicinity of the Borough Hall when three men accosted him and asked him if he would like to earn a few dollars.

When he replied that he would, Lacurto said, they climbed into the car and told him that all he had to do was drive to places they would tell him and keep his machine waiting outside with the motor running until they returned. He said he drove to several such places, at each of which the three men got out. But they always returned, he said, announcing that "it wasn't worth it there," and told him to drive on somewhere else.

Finally, Lacurto said, they stopped at Fulton and Hicks Streets and went into a store. When they returned, he said, they ordered him to drive through Hicks Street, and one of them left the rear door open so that in starting out it struck against a street lamp and was torn away. Before they could get it back in place, he said, a policeman came along and demanded to see his driver's license. He said he showed the license and the receipt from the U Drive It Corporation and the policeman appeared satisfied and walked away.

Soon after Lacurto's arrest the police went to 552 East Twenty-eighth Street, where they questioned a girl who said she was Ida Abitante, and who, the police say, admitted she was living with Lacurto. They were known at that address, the police assert, as Mr. and Mrs. Rosa. The young woman, they say, told them that she met Lacurto last July, when he was working in the track department of the B. M. T. She declared she did not know he had ever taken part in any holdups. But witnesses, the police say, identified Lacurto as one of four men who held up a drug store at Prospect Park Southwest and Coney Island Avenue recently. The police assert Lacurto later admitted this hold-up and also that he had held up a lunch wagon at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street, Brooklyn. But later Lacurto told District Attorney Dodd that he had never made any such admission. Lacurto also denied that he had hired the car or knew who was in it, insisting that he had only been passing by when the shooting occurred and was arrested by mistake.

It was also said that he was identified as one of the men who on Nov. 16 last shot and killed Frank Fruchman, a grocer, while robbing his store at Ditmas Avenue and East Fifth Street. The police declared the description of one of the slayers fitted Lacurto but said they had not been able to identify him positively yet.

Mrs. Andrew Johnson of 62 Clark Street reported last night to the police that she and her sister, Miss Jean Tarelson, found a man in the bathroom of their home a short time after the shooting. From Love Lane, through which two of the gunmen fled, a blind alley known as College Place runs toward Clark Street and the rear of Mrs. Johnson's home is accessible from College Place.

Mrs. Johnson said that when she and her sister surprised the intruder they seized him and threatened to turn him over to the police. She said he kept screaming, "For God's sake let me go," but they dragged him to the front door where he finally broke away. A policeman was standing across the street at the time, she said, and she called to him to stop the fugitive, but the policeman apparently did not hear her. The fugitive in getting away, she said, passed near enough to the policeman to touch him. She said when she learned of the killing she knew at once that the man who invaded her home was one of the slayers. Mrs. Johnson described the man as young, and smooth-faced. She said he wore a gray suit and overcoat and a gray fedora hat.

At the Brooklyn U Drive It Corporation office at 2,003 Bedford Avenue it was learned that Lacurto had obtained cars there on a number of previous occasions, giving as his reference the name of Gus Minion of 397 Rogers Avenue. Lacurto is reported to have told the U Drive It concern that he had worked for Minion. The police say Minion admitted knowing Lacurto, but denied that the latter ever had worked for him.

Soon after the shooting a 13-year-old boy, William Woodward of 35 Orange Street, found a .25-calibre automatic pistol in an areaway of 41 Pierrepont Street, which is just around the corner from the scene of the shooting. The boy turned the pistol over to Traffic Patrolman Rosario Cavalieri, who took it to the police station. The gun is believed to have been discarded by the man who ran through Pierrepont Street. A .38-calibre pistol, its chambers empty, was found in the sedan and near by a gray fedora hat, the ownership of which the police are trying to establish.

Police Commissioner McLaughlin took personal charge of the questioning of Lacurto last night and he also visited Daszkiewicz at the hospital. Doctors there said a blood transfusion might be necessary, and the Commissioner sent for Motorcycle Squad 2 of the Police Department, all the members of which have been selected and tested so that they can be called upon in such emergencies.

Five members of the squad finally were selected and asked to hold themselves in readiness to undergo operations should the necessity arise. They were: Patrolmen Patrick O'Connor, Walter Kuntzman, Charles Meyers, John Stevens and Edward Steers.

Shortly before 9 o'clock in the evening District Attorney Charles J. Dodd of Kings County, with Assistant District Attorneys Cuff and Healy and a corps of stenographers, arrived at the police station. The District Attorney questioned Lacurto until nearly midnight.

Meanwhile Inspector John J. Sullivan, in charge of detectives in Brooklyn, ordered out all men of the Eleventh Detective District in an effort to find the three gunmen who escaped. Their identity is reported to be known to the police.

The shooting caused considerable discussion among policemen in Brooklyn last night. Many of them declared it could be attributed to the Baumes law which went into effect July 1. Under the new law criminals who have three or more previous convictions are subject to life imprisonment on the fourth offense.

Many policemen believe that as a result of this law there will be a notable increase in the number of policemen killed. Hardened criminals, the detectives say, would rather take a chance on shooting their way out or being shot down themselves than face a sentence of life imprisonment. They point to the recent attempted jailbreak in the Tombs, in which three prisoners, a warden and a guard lost their lives, as supporting this theory.

Commissioner McLaughlin, however, took the opposite view. He insisted that the Baumes law had no bearing on the case and said that all the law needs was a fair trial.

Byrns, the dead patrolman, was appointed to the police force on Oct. 19, 1925. He would have been 27 years old tomorrow. Byrns's wife died about two months ago, leaving two small children. Since then he had lived with his widowed mother at 267 Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn. He and his brother, James, 20 years old, have been the principal support of their mother since the death of her husband in a chemical plant explosion about two years ago.

Byrns served several years in the navy and won a medal for marksmanship. After his discharge he announced his intention of joining the police force. His mother, having in mind the recent death of her husband and knowing the dangers of a policeman's life, tried to dissuade him. But he laughed at her fears.

Daszkiewicz is 33 years old and was appointed to the police force March 26, 1924. He lives at 200 Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn, is married, and has three children: Frances, 8 years old; George, 6 years old, and Gloria, 6 months old.

mitted to Senator Simpson that she had not seen the short razor, she had told about a week ago, after the crime. But when Senator Case interrogated her she said that she had never looked for it and that, as far as she could tell, the shaving instrument had remained in the closet of the bathroom after the murder.

Arms Expert Testifies.

Major Calvin H. Goddard, an arms expert and a partner of the late Charles E. Waite, who died on Saturday, was called to the stand. Mr. Waite was to have testified concerning the bullets taken from the bodies of Mrs. Mills and Dr. Hall. Major Goddard testified that the bullets produced by Senator Simpson were those which had been in possession of his partner for a time in 1922. The arms expert also cleared up a point hitherto never touched upon—he gave it as his opinion that the .32-calibre automatic pistol used by the players had been of Colt manufacture.

The two witnesses who gave the defense the most concern were David T. Nagel and Alfred D. Scholz. Nagel, who said he was employed four years ago by the New York American as a cameraman's helper, testified that he had been on the ferryboat which bore the funeral cortège of Dr. Hall from Staten Island to Brooklyn on Sept. 18, 1922. Scholz, a cameraman, was with Nagel.

They swore that they observed a scratch about two inches long on the left cheek of the widow. John Stillwell, an earlier witness for the prosecution, has testified that he also saw the mark. Nagel and Scholz added, however, that Mrs. Hall, who was in a motor car directly behind the hearse, "laughed and joked" with friends and relatives on the ferry trip. The witnesses were confused on distances under cross-examination.

Witness Not in Court.

Senator Simpson introduced in evidence a copy of the marriage certificate of the rector and Mrs. Hall. The marriage took place in 1911 when he was 30 years old and she was 37 years old. Mrs. Paul Bonner, sister of Dr. Hall, testified that she was unable to remember whether Henry Stevens had attended the wedding. One of the witnesses at the ceremony was Miss Sally Peters, who was Mrs. Hall's confidante four years ago. Senator Simpson called for Miss Peters to take the stand, but she was not in court. He refused to tell Senator Case whether a subpoena had been issued for Miss Peters, saying that he wished merely to know whether she was in court."

Having cleaned up his list of witnesses, Senator Simpson said that he would rest. He refused to say whether he had other witnesses in reserve for rebuttal after the defense has closed its case, which may be within a week. Mr. McCarter, as a preliminary to the opening address of Senator Case, asked Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker and Common Pleas Judge Frank L. Cleary to strike parts of the State's evidence from the record.

Defense Motions Fail.

Mr. McCarter moved to strike out the evidence on the fingerprint card. Justice Parker denied the motion. He then moved that the State's testimony alleging that Edwin Carpender and Henry Carpender had taken papers from the Hall home immediately before and after the discovery of the murder be expunged from the record. Henry Carpender was indicted for the murders, but the State deferred his trial until compition of that of Mrs. Hall and the Stevens brothers. The Court denied the motion.

The last motion of the defense was to strike out the testimony of Mrs. Marie Lee and Mrs. Elsie Barnhardt, sisters of the slain woman, who had testified that Mrs. Mills had told them she and the rector planned an elopement to Japan. This, too, was ruled against.

Before Senator Case addressed the jury it became known that Henry Stevens would be the first of the defendants to take the stand. It had been planned to have him testify yesterday, but the time taken by the opening and a lecture on the topography of the Phillips farm prevented this. Mr. Stevens will be followed on the stand by ten residents of Lavalette, N. J., his home, who will support his alibi that he was fishing on the beach there at the hour the crime was committed.

DEFENSE ADDRESS TO JURY.

Senator Case, in his address to the jurors, did not deal in dramatics. He adopted, instead, the intimate method—chatting to the jury, as he leaned over with his back to the Court and to the audience. The opening address follows:

Now, of course, the defense in a way is negative; in other words, we are trying to prove to you that we did not do it, which is proving a negative, and that we will have to do in various ways. The defendants, gentlemen of the jury, and none of the defendants were there. None of the defendants had anything to do with it. None of the defendants knew anything about it, either before or after, the sad, sad tragedy; knew nothing about and had nothing to do with it.

Now, just a moment to outline what the defense will show as to the feelings, the attitudes of the several defendants toward the people who were killed.

Henry Stevens, of course, you know by this time, is the man sitting here at the end, toward this direction. He is the brother of Mrs. Hall and of William Stevens, a man of the late 50s, who left New Brunswick in 1900, since which time his connection with that locality has been of the most casual connection. He returned at more or less frequent intervals on visits to his mother while she was living, and later, though not so frequently, to see his sister, Mrs. Hall.

Henry and Rector Not Intimate.

Mrs. Hall's marriage to Mr. H. took place long after Henry Stevens had left New Brunswick. Habits of life were formed and he did not come in frequent contact with his sister to build up close intimacies. That is the point I am making. They were on good terms, Mr. Stevens and Mr. Hall, on thoroughly good terms. They were brothers-in-law, but there was not the intimate connection and acquaintance that might have resulted had these men been such as to come in daily contact.

Mr. Stevens did not even know that Mrs. Mills existed. He did not know that there was such a woman until after this tragedy had happened. He was one of these men who loved the outdoors, loved to hunt, loved to fish, and he had been engaged in earlier years as a salesman and demonstrator for the Remington Arms Company of a shotgun. He had no experience with pistols whatsoever and, after his employment by the Remington Arms Company as salesman ended, he was employed by the du Pont people, who conducted a demonstration school on Young's Pier down at Atlantic City, and was there for about, I think, four years in this capacity out there, conducting a school for the shooting of clay pigeons, of course being an advertisement of some character for the du Pont concern. Later the pier management required that space should be used for other purposes and Mr. Stevens's employment ceased. He was at an age where employment was not easily obtained. He did not wish to go back on the road again at that time of life as salesman, and he had a little nest egg that was there, enough to live on in his humble way, himself and his wife, and they had this little place down at Lavalette, and they remained there, going to the city for a few months in the Winter, for a time until the father of Mrs. Stevens died. Then staying there the year around at the little place along the seashore at Lavalette.

Telegram Told of Tragedy.

Now, to Mr. Stevens as he was down there on the eighteenth day of September came a telegram from, I think it was Edwin Carpender, called "Teddy" Carpender, announcing that Mr. Hall had been killed and in response to that, not knowing how Mr. Hall had been killed, he comes down immediately to New Brunswick. That just to show you what Henry Stevens's method and manner of life were and what his relations with Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were.

Now, here is Willie, William Stevens. William was a member of the household in which the other members were the sister, Mrs. Hall, and her husband, Mr. Hall, the deceased. The relations were friendly and cordial between him and Mr. Hall. There were no relations between him and Mrs. Mills. He knew she existed but she meant nothing at all in his life. She did not come into his life at all. He knew her only casually.

Now, Mr. Hall and Mrs. Hall had what to all appearances, as far as appearances went, as far as all experiences, as far as she was able to determine and, as far as she knew and as she believed—were the most ideal character. She helped him in his church work. She lived his life. She believed he lived her life and she was wrapped up in him and he was her ideal and she believed that she was the same to him.

She Heard No Gossip.

There has been talk of gossip, talk of rumor, talk of whispering—whatever there may have been shown of such none came to Mrs. Hall's ears. To the day of his death and for years after he was to her the perfect husband, the man in whom she placed every confidence, the man to whom she was united by the solemn bonds of matrimony, to whom she was true and who, as she believed, was true to her.

Mrs. Mills was one of the active women in this little church. Now bear in mind that this church was not a tabernacle, this church was not a cathedral; this church was just a little homey institution, presided over by this minister; and in the work there, as I suppose in the work of every church, the women took the leading part. And among the leaders there in that church, among the women, was Mrs. Mills. She was a member of the choir. She was, as far as I know, and as I understand, a member of the guild—I don't know. She was in all of these church activities. She liked church work.

Necessarily she was in contact with Mr. Hall and with Mrs. Hall, and there was the utmost feeling of friendliness on Mrs. Hall's part for Mrs. Mills—never a thought that entered Mrs. Hall's mind but that the only place that Mrs. Mills filled in the heart or in the mind of Mr. Hall was that she was one of the church workers serving the Lord, serving the church; and she received for that reason Mrs. Hall's assistance and friendship and regard, which continued until after the death.

Tells of Picnic Outing.

Now as an instance of what I am saying to you we will show you gentlemen that so late as the day before this tragedy—the murders so far as we know took place on the night of the 14th of September, Thursday—on Wednesday, the 13th, Mr. Hall, his mother, Mrs. Hall, his wife, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Clark, with whom it seems to have been the effort of the prosecution to connect something uncanny about this, all went to Lake Hopatcong on a little picnic together. That was an annual event. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Mills were the two women upon whose shoulders the work of that church rested, and every year as a little tribute to their activities in the church Mr. Hall and Mrs. Hall took Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Clark on a picnic somewhere.

And just the day before these murders occurred they had taken them to Lake Hopatcong. Mr. Hall and his mother, the old lady, occupied the front seat in the car and Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Clark together occupied the back seat, and somewhere they had their picnic lunch and somewhere they had their picnic supper, and they came back, and that was Wednesday. And so all through the years, all through the months that preceded, these dealings had been going on and there was nothing in the heart of Mrs. Hall for her husband except that of the greatest love and loyalty and assurance on her part that there was that love and loyalty on his part, and the feeling of the utmost tenderness and regard for Mrs. Mills, and the assurance that that feeling was reciprocated by Mrs. Mills.

Hall's Financial Aid to Mills.

Just a little while before this, perhaps in January, there was an operation upon Mrs. Mills for some internal trouble; I think it was the removal of a kidney. And the Millses were in stricken circumstances. There was help necessary, financial help for them to do that, and, why, just the day or two, perhaps the very night, yes, it was the night that Mr. Hall went out and was murdered, that Mrs. Hall understood that he was going down to see something with relation to a payment of the part of the bill for that operation. The money, as I understand, was turned over in instalments to Mr. Mills, so that he could pay it to the doctor, and Mrs. Hall herself contributed some small amount to that little fund for the operation upon Mrs. Mills in January, which was just shortly before the murder, and while Mrs. Mills was at the hospital Mrs. Hall was there visiting her, seeing her, consoling with her. You will be convinced, I am sure, gentlemen, before the case is finished, if you are not already, that there was nothing in Mrs. Hall's heart except that which is in the heart of a true, sweet woman for her husband, and for Mrs. Mills.

Offers Alibi for Each.

Now, those are the feelings that existed. And passing on from that to the immediate time of these tragedies, we will show you what is known to us as an alibi for each of these defendants.

Now, an alibi, gentlemen, in the language of the law, is the proof that the defendant was elsewhere than at the place where under the charge of the offense the defendant is alleged to have been.

We shall prove to you by evidence that we believe will be completely to your satisfaction that each of these defendants was elsewhere at the time that this crime was committed.

We will show you, I think, that Jane Gibson here testifying that she connected Henry Stevens with this tragedy is completely at variance with an earlier story of hers, but leaving that and taking up, for instance—there is the old lady with the hat on the side of her head and the squint in her eye—Mrs. Demarest.

Mrs. Demarest says that she saw Henry Stevens Friday morning in New Brunswick driving a car.

Mr. Hoag says that a year or two ago—he got very much mixed up on that—that Henry Stevens came to the Phillips farm looking around, and very much agitated.

To Refute Woman's Story.

Now as to this last incident we hope to be able to bring to you some of the people who were present at the same time Mrs. Hoag says this thing happened and we believe they will tell you that when this thing is said to have happened Henry Stevenson was not there. The fact is he was not there.

The contradiction of Mrs. Demarest's testimony lies in Henry's alibi which we believe will be demonstrated with what you might call mathematical fullness. We shall bring here witnesses from Lavalette to show you that this man was right there in that little seaside place at Lavalette and somewhere in the vicinity at the exact hours—not by one, but my many. We will bring men here who lived there, and women. We will bring to you a woman who didn't live there but happened to be there at the time.

We will show you that he was in Lavalette Friday morning, that he was there all day Friday, that he was there Friday night, that he was there Saturday morning. We will show you what he was doing when he got the word to come to New Brunswick by telegram. He got this telegram as he was there on the beach—the word from Tillie Carpender or somebody of the Carpender family—that Mr. Hall had been killed. He supposed he had been killed in an automobile accident. He gets his clothes on, takes the train, changes at Monmouth Junction, there gets a copy of the Home News and sees what has happened, and he goes on. That is Henry's alibi.

Willie Steven's Alibi.

Now here is Willie—William Stevens. There has been placed in the testimony the evidence of Mrs. Dixon and of Mr. Dixon that they saw this man whom they identified as being the defendant, William Stevens, at their home in North Plainfield between the hours of 8:30 and 8:45 Thursday night the 14th of September. We hope to be able to demonstrate to your complete satisfaction in that instance that the man whom they saw could not have been William Stevens. There is not only the obvious difficulty of distance, which must of course occur to all of you at once, over here in North Plainfield, William is placed twelve miles by a very circuitous route from New Brunswick—the reason for being there—the getting over—the way he got back, and all the rest—that, of course, will suggest itself to you; but this man whom they saw wore a derby hat, and William never wore a derby hat, we will prove that to you. This man whom they saw had no glasses. William could not see without glasses. We will demonstrate that to you. The man whom they saw had a gold watch and a gold chain. William never had a gold watch and a gold chain. The man whom they saw had epilepsy. William never had epilepsy, never has been afflicted.

These and other differences we will prove to you, so that you, I feel confident, will be satisfied that the man whom they described—by the very terms of their description the possibility is diminished of the man having been William Stevens. Now, the fact is that William Stevens was at home on the night—went to bed at his usual hour, closed his door—and was there until his sister aroused him at the hour of 2, 2:30, 2:15, whatever it may have been.

Mrs. Hall's Movements.

Now, Mrs. Hall. Mrs. Hall said good-bye to her husband as he left the house that evening for the ostensible purpose of going down to see about the bill, or a part of it, for Mrs. Mills's operation. She did not hear, as has been intimated, she did not hear any part of the telephone conversation that took place sometime earlier in the evening between Mrs. Mills and Mr. Hall. She did hear the bell ring once, and supposed it was answered. She was on the porch, as I recall. She heard it ring again and got up, and, going to the phone and just taking it up to answer, was called to by Louise Geist, who was coming down the stairs to see if Mr. Hall was there, and Louise Geist said: "The call is for Mr. Hall; is he there?" Mrs. Hall said: "He is upstairs," and with that came words from Mr. Hall, who was in the bathroom: "Is that call for me?"

Louise Geist said it was. Mrs. Hall hung up the receiver and went out back to the porch, where she was when Mr. Hall was taking the phone message that has been related to you by Louise Geist.

Mrs. Hall will tell you all she knows. When Mr. Hall went out he told her what he was going out for, as I have indicated, and that he would be home early, or some such words as a husband frequently passes in the evening on leaving the house.

Worry at Husband's Absence.

Now, the evening passed, and Mr. Hall did not return. Mrs. Hall worried and worried. Later, as I recall, retiring but not to sleep; worrying, worrying, worrying, wondering where her husband was, thinking something must have happened to him, and finally, having stood it as long as her wifely heart could endure the strain, she goes to her brother's room and rouses him and together they start down to the church thinking that perhaps Mr. Hall had been in the church and had there fallen to sleep. They go to the church and find that the church is dark, and that the door apparently is locked.

Then Mrs. Hall, remembering that he was going to see something about the Mills bill, and thinking that perhaps there might have been sickness there at that house, and it was holding him there, goes down to the Mills house and finds that locked. And goes home, but not to sleep, and the next morning after a sleepless night, she gets up and she phones to the police, phones to the police to ask if there had been any accidents. I have forgotten what the word was that she used, whether there had been any accidents or casualties or something of that nature. Nothing had come in.

She has a day of worriment. She goes down to the telephone and telephones to Mr. Hall's sisters, Mrs. Bonner and Mrs. Voorhees—telephones to one of them and she communicates it to the other—communicating to those two women, the sisters of Mr. Hall, and they rush to her house on that day and they confer and decide the thing to do is to have a man in the house, and they call in a man of experience, Senator Florance.

Her Message to Organist.

And so they went on through Friday and to Saturday, and the suspense Friday night was in the mind of Mrs. Hall—knowing that Mr. Hall had charge of the choir and that the choir would be there and all the rest—telephones to Miss Storey, the organist, asking her will she please take charge of rehearsal that night, that Mr. Hall would not be there, and Miss Storey said yes she will; is the doctor ill? Well, what could a woman say over the telephone, his wife? My husband has disappeared?

Senator Simpson—I might suggest that the Senator is summing his case up. I wish he would open it.

Senator Case—All right.

She said to her, "Will you take charge of the choir tonight?" That will be the evidence.

And so Friday night passed and Saturday. Then on Saturday different members of the family are consulted as to what is the thing to do and Senator Florance and a member of the family go down and identify him.

All this talk about the dyeing of clothes will be cleared to your satisfaction. The fact will appear in evidence that Willie Stevens had to have his clothing scoured and cleaned. Food dropped on his clothing. That Lyons and Parker were the place that regularly cleaned the clothes. We will prove to you further that on this Saturday night when this young man says he took a suit away that he took two suits away. That this Saturday night when he was at the house and delivered a new suit Willie said, "Wait a minute; I want to give you a suit to be cleaned and pressed," that there were two suits given him at the time to be scoured and cleaned.

Mrs. Hall's Dyed Clothes.

Then this talk about Mrs. Hall sending clothes mysteriously to be dyed in Philadelphia—there has been some talk about that—we will prove to you that when her mother died she sent her clothes to a place in Philadelphia to be dyed. We will show you that was the regular thing when a death occurred in the family.

At no time has there been any effort on the part of the defense to withhold full information from the State. At all times these defendants have given everything they had to give in the way of information, have offered to help, have offered. I think it will appear to your complete satisfaction before this case is finished, that not merely was the offer made as is here in evidence to Mr. Toolan, the Assistant Prosecutor of Middlesex County, that they were ready at any time to help as best they could, but the offer was made later in more complete fashion to the authorities to give to them anything and everything that the defendants had, these people had in the way of information.

Florance's Withdrawal.

It was not long before Mr. Florance felt that matters were drifting into a class of criminal practice he did not indulge in and he wished to be relieved of his duties in that respect, or somebody from out of town should take hold of the case, and Mr. Pfeiffer was brought in and his connection with the case, of course, is known to you.

Now, in connection with these alibis, gentlemen, we will also prove to you by Henry Carpender — known only to his friends as Harry Carpender, never as Henry Carpender—and one of those who is said by Mrs. Gibson to have been on this scene on Thursday night, when you remember he was brought in from the jail—not being tried—he was brought in from the jail—and she said he was one of those who was there at the time. We will show to you that Henry Carpender — Harry Carpender — and his wife were that evening guests of J. Kearney Rice Jr. in New Brunswick or Island Park—I have forgotten which side of the river it was on—and that they were there until half past ten or later, and that from there they both went home, and that Henry Carpender and his wife occupied the same room and were together all the rest of that night.

Fingerprints "Hocus Pocus."

Now, there are some little incidents that it does not seem necessary to go into. We will prove to you with regard to the testimony of Kolb, the milkman, who said there was a door in the back of the house that he had to close Friday morning before he could drive past—we will prove to you there is no such door there and there was no such door there at the time this thing happened. There was some mistake in his mind.

And with regard to this card, this visiting card that is said by the State to have fingerprints of William Stevens—S-17—we will show to you that that is not his fingerprint at all, and I think that we can convince you that the whole card business is a hocus pocus—a hocus pocus.

Now, just in closing this opening, telling you what we are going to do, let me say that each of these defendants will be placed on the stand to tell her story, to tell his story, as the case may be, and we believe when that has all been done and these things have been placed before you that your conscience and your minds will be free to acquit them.

BARBARA TOUGH ON STAND.

The first witness called on the thirteenth day of the trial was Barbara Tough, the Scotch woman who was a maid in the Hall home at the time of the crime. She was employed by Senator Simpson to bring the razor back into the case. The razor was marked for identification last week, but the special prosecutor had not then disclosed the rôle assigned to the shaving utensil. The examination was as follows:

Direct examination by Senator Simpson:
Q.—How long were you maid in the Hall home after the murder? A.—From September until Feb. 3, 1923. That was from September, 1922, to February, 1923.
Q.—And this razor you have described, where was it kept, openly or in a closet? A.—In a small medicine case in the bathroom.
Q.—Can you say positively whether you ever saw this razor after the murder or not? A.—No, I could not say positively.
Senator Simpson—That is all.
Cross-examination by Senator Case:
Q.—Did you ever look for it? A.—No, I certainly did not.
Q.—You had no occasion to use it? A.—I had no occasion to look for it.
Q.—Was it not part of the things you took care of? A.—No, it was always in that small medicine closet there. I never thought any more about it.
Senator Case—That is all.
Redirect examination by Senator Simpson:
Q.—Did you take care of the medicine closet? A.—Yes.
Q.—And you took care of the bathroom, too? A.—Yes.
Q.—And you frequently opened this medicine closet after the murder? A.—Yes.
Recross-examination by Senator Case:
Q.—Now, I understand you just do not remember whether it was or was not there? A.—No, I could not positively say.

UNDERWOOD TESTIFIES.

The second witness was Inspector John J. Underwood of the Jersey City Police Department, who directed the field work of the investigators. The tall, robust Inspector, whose work on the case has caused wide comment, has worked on many intricate murder cases in his years of experience. The questions and replies were:

Direct examination by Senator Simpson:
Q.—Were you in charge of the beginning of the investigation into the Hall-Mills murder which began this year some time? A.—I was.
Q.—And when did you begin your investigation? A.—On or about Aug. 3.
Q.—And your main headquarters were with the State Police? A.—Yes, sir, in Somerville.
Q.—During that investigation did you ever get possession of Exhibit S-17, the visiting card of Dr. Hall, said to have been found at his foot. A.—I did.
Q.—Will you state the circumstances under which you got possession of it? A.—On the evening of Aug. 15 I was summoned to Commissioner Beggans's home in Jersey City. I immediately went there, and when I arrived there I met Mr. Philip Payne, and I had a conference with Commissioner Beggans and Mr. Payne, and Mr. Payne explained that——
Q.—You cannot tell anything about the conversation. What did Payne do with reference to this card, if anything? A.—Mr. Payne produced this card and handed it to me in the presence of Commissioner Beggans. I gave Mr. Payne a receipt for the card.
Q.—Has it been in your possession ever since? A.—Ever since.
Q.—And is it now in the same condition practically as it was when you received it? A.—It is.
Q.—That is, you have not put any fingerprints on it? A.—No, sir, I have not.

Underwood Cross-Examined.

On cross-examination Mr. McCarter brought out that Underwood had devoted practically his entire time to the investigation and had a staff of four men, all from Hudson County. Commissioner Beggans had put him to work on the case, he testified. He was then asked about the meeting with Beggans and Payne on Aug. 15 in Mr. Beggans's home, as follows:

Q.—What time in the evening was it? A.—About 8:30.
Q.—Had you met Mr. Payne before? A.—Never.
Q.—At that occasion Mr. Payne produced this card, S-17? A.—He did.
Q.—I understood you to say that the card has been in your possession ever since? A.—Yes, it has been in my possession, with the exception——
Q.—Why did you say it had been in your possession ever since? A.—Because I had not recalled that Lieutenant Drewen had it for three days.
Q.—So that at least three days—— A.—Yes.
Q.—Elapsed or expired in which it was not in your possession at all? A.—Aug. 17, 18 and 19.
Q.—You don't know who arranged to have Mr. Payne up at Commissioner Beggans's house in Jersey City on the evening of Aug. 15? A.—I do not.
Q.—And was the card naked then or was it in any way enclosed? A.—The card was enclosed in two pieces of glass, as at the present time.
Q.—You are sure about that? A.—Positively.
Q.—Now, did you keep that card over night or give it to Drewen the same evening? A.—It was given to Lieutenant Drewen on the morning of Aug. 17.
Q.—Now, I understand that you have told us here that that evening, Aug. 15, was the first time you had met Mr. Payne? A.—That is right, yes.
Q.—No mistake about that? A.—No, sir.
Q.—Were you examined before Judge Cleary on the preliminary hearing in this room on Aug. 17? A.—I was at the preliminary hearing, yes, sir.
Q.—And I will ask you if you did not answer the following question as follows:
"Q.—Will you tell me whether before Aug. 8 or since Aug. 8 you have seen a gentleman named Philip Payne of The New York Daily Mirror?" and your answer was, "No, sir." A.—I never saw Mr. Payne.
Q.—I did not ask you that.
The Court—Did you say "No" to that question? A.—I do not recall.

ARMS EXPERT'S TESTIMONY.

Major Calvin H. Goddard, a partner of the late Charles E. Waite, a bullet and arms expert who died last Saturday just before his scheduled appearance as a witness in the case, was sworn. Major Goddard took his partner's place. While waiting for the expert to reach the stand, Senator Simpson offered a picture of Felix Di Martini in evidence. The picture was from a newspaper, and after looking at it Senator Case offered no objection beyond asking that the newspaper caption on the picture be ruled out. This was done.

Major Goddard's testimony:

Direct examination by Senator Simpson:
Q.—What is your business, Major Goddard, or your occupation or profession? A.—I am a consultant on arms and ammunition and powders in legal criminal cases.
Q.—Have you devoted any time to the study of firearms? A.—I have studied firearms all my life.
Senator Simpson—Do you want to cross-examine him as an expert? I am going to ask him some questions as an expert. Do you want to ask him some questions as to his qualifications? I now offer him as an expert on firearms.
The Court—Have you been working independently or in connection with somebody else?
The Witness—I have been working in connection with Charles E. Waite of New York City.
Q.—Have you any photographs with you that you saw in his possession of bullets—that you saw before he died? A.—Yes.
Q.—Will you produce them, please?
The Court—Do not let the jury see them yet.
Senator Simpson—I could not read them. I do not think they mean anything to a layman.
Q.—These photographs that I show you—you say you saw them first when? A.—Oh, in the latter part of 1924.
Q.—And in whose possession were they? A.—The possession of Mr. Waite.

Court Admits His Testimony.

The Court—Mr. Goddard, do you know who made those photographs?
The Witness—Mr. Waite.
The Court—How do you know?
A.—By Mr. Waite's statement to me, that is all.
Q.—What calibre are these bullets which have been identified as S-96 for identification? A.—.32-calibre.
Q.—Can you tell by examining them what kind of a weapon they came out of? A.—Not by visual examination.
Q.—Have you examined them? A.—I have examined them very thoroughly.
Q.—When? A.—On Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, 1926.
Q.—What examination did you make of them? A.—I placed them under what we term a comparison microscope, by which the images of two objects may be fused into one. By using this microscope I have determined the fact that they had all issued from the same gun barrel.
Q.—Did you take photographs of these bullets? A.—Yes.
Q.—Where were they taken? A.—In our laboratory at East Orange, N. J.

Identifies Fired Shells.

Q.—I show you a small brown envelope taken from S-53 for identification. Can you tell me what these are? A.—They are three fired shells—.32 automatic pistol type, manufactured by Peter's Cartridge Company of Cincinnati, Ohio.
Q.—From what kind of a weapon? A.—From the shells themselves I would hesitate to state the type of weapon.
Q.—Are they all fired from the same weapon? A.—They are all fired from the same weapon.
Q.—The shells themselves? A.—The shells themselves were all fired from the same weapon.
Q.—How do you determine that? A.—By the same type of examination to which I subjected the bullets. A pair of shells is placed beneath a comparison microscope. The images are brought together, and if fired in the same gun the primer will bear certain peculiarities which it receives at the instant of impact against the breach block. All these shells bore the same peculiarities, indicating they had all been fired in the same arm.

On cross-examination the witness told Senator Case that the empty shells were of .32 calibre. Then Senator Simpson took the witness again, bringing out that the bullets were from a Colt automatic. The questioning proceeded:

The Court—Are the bullets entirely made of lead?
The Witness—No, sir; the case is so called steel jacket. That is a misnomer. It is really an alloy of copper and nickel that the case is made of.
By Senator Case:
Q.—When you said a Colt, what did you mean by that? A.—I hesitated to answer the question because I wished to qualify it.
Q.—How? A.—Because the markings on the bullets are distorted by impact with whatever objects they passed through; therefore, they are not so readily studied and determinations made from them as though the bullets were in good shape. However, a summary of my measurements of all the bullet markings link them up with bullets fired through the Colt pistol, rather than those fired through any other type of pistol, but I do not wish to make that statement without some qualification on account of the poor condition of the bullets.
The Court—Well, from all your investigation you have made, your best judgment is that it was a Colt, although you do not want to be too positive about it?
The Witness—Yes, sir.
Q.—Now, as to the cartridges themselves —— A.—The shells.
Q.—I do not know anything about firearms—are they Colt shells? A.—I have never yet been able to find a means of determining from the shell itself the type of arm it was fired from except certain instances and those instances do not include the Colt. The Colt is a possibility from these shells, but it is not proven.
Q.—Maybe I didn't make myself clear. I am asking about the manufacture of the cartridge. A.—Oh, the cartridges were made by the Peter Cartridge Company, but they are adaptable to the Colt and many other automatic pistols. The Colt company does not make ammunition.

DAVID THE NEXT WITNESS.

Ferd A. David, the towering chief detective of Middlesex County, was called. He is a bald-headed man with tufted black eyebrows. A pocketful of cigars and a large emblem of a fraternal order hanging on his watch chain were part of the picture he made. He was called to identify the coat and the scarf in the State's case and a black hat and two suits of clothes owned by Willie Stevens. He testified as follows:

Direct examination by Senator Simpson:
Q.—Do you remember when these coats came into your office? A.—Yes.
Q.—When? A.—On the 18th of September, 1922.
Q.—Did you have any conversation with Mrs. Hall about the coat after you got it, whether she said it was her coat or not? A.—She did; she admitted it was her coat.
Q.—And this scarf, what about that, do you know how that came into your office? A.—That came at the same time with the coat.
Q.—About when did your office get possession of this coat and scarf? A.—I think about three weeks after this murder.
Q.—Did you send for these articles? A.—We got them from the Hall home. They had come to the Hall home and we took them from the Hall home or they were brought from the Hall home to our office.
Q.—I show you a hat, do you know whether or not that is a hat of William Stevens that was brought to your office? A.—Totten and I brought that hat from the Hall home.
Q.—When? A.—Several days after the murder.
Q.—Did you bring clothes also? A.—There was, I think, two suits of clothes that were brought in that we understood at that time, or were told by Mrs. Hall to us, that they belonged to William Stevens.
Cross-examination by Senator Case:
Q.—You have been shown some garments which I think you said you took from the Hall house? A.—A pair of pants.
Q.—Which Mrs. Hall spoke to you about? A.—Yes.
Q.—Did Mrs. Hall give you freely whatever you wanted that was there in the house that you asked for? A.—Oh, yes.
Q.—No difficulty about your getting whatever was there to be had, was there? A.—Not at all.

MRS. BONNER'S STORY.

Mrs. Paul Bonner, sister of the murdered clergyman, was sworn by the State. Her examination follows:

Direct examination by Senator Simpson:
Q.—Were you present at his marriage to Miss Stevens? A.—I was.
Q.—Was Mr. Henry Stevens present at the wedding? A.—I cannot remember.
Q.—You do not remember whether he was there or not? Don't you know he was not there? A.—I could not be certain.
Q.—Well, do you remember seeing him there? A.—No, I do not remember seeing him.
Q.—Who else was present at the wedding that you remember? A.—All of the family on both sides.
Q.—You cannot tell if Mr. Henry Stevens was there? A.—I could not be positive.
Q.—What is your impression about his being present? A.—I wouldn't swear that Henry Stevens was there or not. I didn't know the different members of the family intimately.
Q.—But you cannot tell whether your brother's prospective brother-in-law, Henry Stevens, was at the wedding or not? A.—I could not swear to it.
Senator Simpson—That is all.
(No cross-examination.)

NAGEL TELLS OF SCRATCH.

David D. Nagel, a young man, was then called upon to testify to a scratch he said he had observed on the cheek of Mrs. Hall on the day of Dr. Hall's funeral. He said that he was on the ferryboat which the cortège took from St. George, S. I., to Brooklyn, on the way to Greenwood Cemetery, on Sept. 18, 1922. He said Mrs. Hall was in a car back of the hearse. His examination continued:

Q.—What did you observe to be the condition of her face? A.—I saw a scratch on it.
Q.—And could you recognize from the place where you were whether the scratch was freshly made or an old scratch? A.—I could not tell.
Cross-examination by Senator Case:
Q.—How old are you? A.—Nineteen years.
Q.—And where were you working in 1922? A.—New York American.
Q.—Ho, ho!
Senator Simpson—Ho, ha!
Q.—Well, in what capacity were you working for The New York American? A.—Photographer's helper.
Q.—What is the work of a photographer's helper? A.—Carry camera around. It was a large camera. I had to carry it for the photographer.
Q.—When you got off the boat, where did you go? A.—I don't remember.
Q.—Well, I would like you to think. A.—I don't remember.
Q.—You don't remember. But you can remember a scratch that was on a woman's face but you cannot remember where you went when you got off the boat? A.—I know we went through some streets and then went to another ferry.
Q.—Where was Mrs. Hall when you saw this scratch? A.—She was sitting in the car. The door was open and there was a lady standing out in front right by the door and they were laughing and joking.
Q.—Laughing and joking? A.—Yes.
Q.—Did you take a photograph of them laughing and joking? A.—We didn't have no small camera to take a photograph.
Q.—You were sorry you did not have one? A.—We certainly were.

The Hall Marriage Record.

Alfred D. Scholz Jr., a photographer for The Daily Mirror, was sworn. He was with Nagel on the trip to the cemetery. His testimony followed the general lines of Nagel. Senator Simpson then offered in evidence the marriage record of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Hall. It read as follows:

CAPRIO TAKES THE STAND.

The examination of Frank Caprio, a private detective, provided the court room audience with many laughs. Caprio, a bald-headed man with shifting black eyes, wore a striped suit. A large diamond flashed from a finger. He was pugnacious and once when Mr. McCarter scored one of his many shots the witness favored the [illegible] torney with a grimace. [illegible]

Direct examination by Senator [illegible]:
Q.—Did you know Mr. Azariah [illegible] Prosecutor of this County, in his life [illegible]? A.—Yes.
Q.—Did you work for him as an investigator? A.—Yes, sir; twice.
Q.—What were your relations with him, were they confidential or ordinary? A.—Confidential.
Q.—Did you work for him on other cases before this murder case? A.—[illegible] sir.
Q.—Did you work on this murder of Eleanor Mills? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—And who put you to work on it? A.—Mr. Beekman.
Q.—How long did you work on it? A.—About three weeks.
Q.—And what did you do in the three weeks? A.—Why, watched Mrs. Hall's house.
Q.—Now, after the Grand Jury in November, 1922, had finished its investigation in this case, did you see Mr. Beekman in his office? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—About how long after the Grand Jury had finished in 1922? A.—About [illegible] after.
Q.—I show you State's Exhibit [illegible] for identification. Do you state whether or not you saw that razor in his office at the time you saw him; is this the razor? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—And what was with the razor, if anything? A.—There was the pictures.
Q.—This thing I hold in my hand?
The Court—A picture of what?
Senator Simpson—A picture purporting to be plates, positive and negative, of the razor blade.
Q.—Were they in the case with the razor? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—And was this fingerprint sheet of paper wrapped up around the razor at the time? A.—Yes.
Q.—And did you get the razor from Mr. Beekman? A.—Yes.
Q.—And you delivered that razor to me, didn't you? A.—Yes.
Q.—And delivered it to me in the same condition you got it from Mr. Beekman? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—How long was it after the Grand Jury of November, 1922, had investigated this matter and had not found an indictment and had found "no bill," simply how long it ever—how long after that event was it that you were in Mr. Beekman's office? A.—Two days.

Also Saw an Automatic.

Caprio said he also had seen an automatic gun on Mr. Beekman's desk, one that seemed to him to be of German make. Senator Simpson in his questions ran into a series of defense objections and reframed his interrogation as follows:

Q.—Did you have the razor with Mr. Beekman's permission when you came out? A.—Yes; I had the razor with his permission. The razor was at the desk.
Q.—How far away was the automatic gun? A.—Right on the front there.
Q.—Don't tell what you said to him or he said to you, but were you discussing this case when you got the razor? A.—[illegible]
Senator Simpson—I offer the razor in evidence.
Mr. McCarter—I object to it and would like to cross-examine first.
Cross-examination by Mr. McCarter:
Q.—Mr. Caprio, you live where? A.—I live in Long Branch.
Q.—And what is your business? A.—My business is being a private detective and police officer.
Q.—And where is your detective office? A.—In Long Branch.
Q.—On what other work and what other case did you work for Mr. Beekman in Somerset County? A.—On two murder cases.
Q.—What were they? A.—The first murder case was from Jersey City, an—the silk case. They robbed silk and committed murder. There were two Italians from Jersey City.
Q.—And where was the murder committed? A.—Right in Somerset County.
Q.—What year was that? A.—I believe it was in 1918.
The Court—Do you know the names of any of these people who were indicted for it? A.—Yes, Cortesi brothers.
Q.—You were paid for your work in that case? A.—Yes.
Q.—By Somerset County? A.—By Beekman.
Q.—Personally? A.—Yes.
Q.—His personal check? A.—No; he paid me in cash.
Q.—What other work had you done beside the Cortesi case? A.—There was another murder case from Trenton by name of Salamandry. A bootlegger got shot and [illegible] killed here between Middlesex County and Somerset County.

Q.—Middlesex County and Somerset County?—A.—Yes—Salamandry.

Q.—Where was that murder committed?

A.—In Somerset.

Q.—And did you work on that case?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And paid by Mr. Beekman?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Again in cash? A.—Yes, he paid me in cash.

Q.—You were again employed by him, you say, in the Hall case? When? A.—I think it was on the 24th of September, 1925.

Q.—He sent for you and you came up here? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you spend the three weeks watching Mrs. Hall's house? A.—Not all the time.

Q.—What else did you do? A.—Well, I walked around.

Q.—Walked around where? A.—Around New Brunswick.

Q.—And then you quit? A.—Then I quit, yes.

Q.—Your work was done? A.—He told me that—

Q.—Your work was done?

Senator Simpson—I object to that.

Q.—Your work was done after three weeks in connection with this case? A.—Yes; he told me—to stop.

Mr. McCarter—I move to strike out what he was told.

The Court—You had plenty of time to stop him there and you did not do it.

Mr. McCarter—Exception.

Kept Razor in His Desk.

The witness, under further questioning, said he had the razor ever since Mr. Beekman gave it to him. He had put it in his desk in his office in Long Branch, he testified. The cross-examination went on:

Q.—Now, you were employed in the Detective or Police Department of Jersey City several years ago, weren't you, and dismissed? A.—Fifteen years—

Q.—And dismissed? A.—Not dismissed. You see a chance and I will tell you.

Senator Simpson—I object to that.

Q.—What is your first name? Frank?

A.—Yes.

Q.—On the 13th of May, 1915, did you plead guilty to attempted extortion, and were you sentenced to the penitentiary for one year by Judge Nott?

Senator Simpson—I object, unless you put the place first.

Q.—In the City of New York in the Court of General Sessions of New York County.

A.—When was this?

Q.—On the 13th of May, 1915, did you plead guilty to the crime of attempted extortion in the New York County Court of General Sessions, and were you sentenced to the penitentiary for one year by Judge Nott?

Senator Simpson—I object.

A.—No, sir.

Q.—That is not true? A.—Judge Nott.

Q.—Leave out Judge Nott.

Mr. McCarter pressed his question over objections. The witness asked the Court: "Do I have to answer that?"

Denies He Was Sentenced.

The Court replied: "Yes," and the witness continued with: "I have to tell how that thing happened," but was cut short and finally said:

"I was not sent to no penitentiary."

The questioning went on as follows:

Q.—Did you plead guilty to the crime of attempted extortion in the Court of General Sessions of New York County on the 13th of May, 1915? A.—1915? Haven't you got confused between my brother and I?

Q.—You said your name was what? A.—My name is Fortunato, not Frank.

Q.—You told us a moment ago it was Frank.—They bring it that way, but my proper first name is Fortunato.

Q.—Didn't you tell me, perhaps five minutes ago, that your first name was Frank? A.—You never seen an Italian by name of Frank.

Q.—Did you not tell me five minutes ago, Caprio, that your name was Frank? A.—My name commences with an "F", yes.

Q.—And aren't you known in Monmouth County as Frank Caprio? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, I ask you again, Frank Caprio, if you did not plead guilty on the 13th of May, 1915, to the crime of attempted extortion in Court of General Sessions of New York County? A.—Before who? Before what Judge?

Q.—Will you answer my question? A.—I did not plead not guilty.

Q.—Were you convicted of the offense of attempted extortion in the Court of General Sessions of New York County in the year 1915? A.—Not if I remember.

Q.—Can't you remember whether you were convicted of the crime of attempted extortion in 1915 in New York County?

A.—That is twelve years ago?

Q.—Yes. A.—I don't think so.

Q.—And as a result of a conviction such as I have been referring to, didn't you spend a year on Blackwell's Island in prison? A.—No.

Q.—Now, there is no mistake about that, is there? A.—I don't think it is true.

Q.—How long a time did you spend on Blackwell's Island doing time for a sentence in the New York courts?

Senator Simpson—I object to that.

A.—I never remember that.

Laughter in the Court Room.

The Court—Unless this laughter stops, the court room will be cleared.

Q.—Did you on the 13th of May, 1915, before Judge Edward Swan enter a plea of guilty to the crime of attempted extortion? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You didn't?—Or at any other time? A.—I heard you. You don't need to be rough, you know.

Q.—No, I understand that. A.—I didn't plead no "guilty."

Q.—You didn't? That is a mistake, it is not so?

Senator Simpson—I object. There is no evidence of a mistake. He says he didn't plead guilty. If they claim he did, they can produce the records.

Q.—And you didn't plead guilty and you did not serve time on Blackwell's Island? A.—Not if I remember.

Q.—Do you say you were not convicted of that offense? A.—I never plead guilty before no Judge in New York.

Q.—Do you say you were not convicted of that offense? A.—Have you got the papers to show I was convicted?

Q.—Were you convicted in the Monmouth County Court of Quarter Sessions on or about the 7th of July, 1919, of false pretenses on five indictments and sentenced for a period not exceeding three years to State's Prison in New Jersey at hard labor?

Senator Simpson—I think we ought to have the record straight. There is no crime of "false pretenses."

The Court—What are you chewing, Mr. Caprio?

The Witness—Gum.

The Court—Would you mind taking it out?

The Witness—Yes.

Not Sure About Conviction.

Mr. McCarter demanded an answer to his question about the Monmouth County case and Caprio insisted, "I didn't do no three years in State's Prison."

"If you will give me a chance to tell you, it will be all right," he added. "You will get along better." But Mr. McCarter pressed for an answer, and the witness finally admitted the convictions. Mr. McCarter went on:

Q.—Of the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses at Freehold, in Monmouth County, and were sentenced to the State Prison? A.—Yes.

Q.—For a term of three years? A.—Not three years; no, sir. I appealed the case.

Q.—Were you convicted of that offense in Monmouth County? A.—Well, Monmouth County—

Q.—Were you? A.—You won't give me a chance to explain myself. Monmouth County is a place where they sentence prisoners for nothing. You live there, too.

Senator Simpson—I wish you would answer these questions; I want to get along with the case.

Q.—I ask you, yes or no, if you were convicted on or about the 7th of July, 1919, under five indictments on the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses in the Monmouth County Court of Quarter Sessions. Answer me that, yes or no.

A.—Before Judge Lawrence?

Q.—I have not asked you what Judge. I don't care what Judge. Were you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And did you serve a term? A.—No, sir.

Q.—In State's Prison? A.—I appealed the case.

Exonerated, He Says.

Q.—Did you serve a term in State's Prison under that sentence? A.—I was exonerated afterward.

Mr. McCarter—I move that that be stricken out.

The Court—Strike it out.

Q.—Will you answer the question? A.—I am telling you—

Q.—Did you serve a term at State's Prison under that? A.—I went to Trenton. I appealed the case.

Q.—Did you serve a term in State's Prison? A.—Ain't that enough? I am telling you I went to Trenton.

Q.—Did you serve a term in State's Prison pursuant to those indictments and conviction? A.—I was sent, yes.

Q.—You did. A.—But wait. I appealed the case.

Q.—You did, didn't you? A.—Wait. Give me a chance.

Q.—I will give you all the chance that is proper. There is no doubt about that, is there? A.—That is all right.

Q.—Now you said I lived in Monmouth County? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you recently called upon me in my office in Newark, didn't you? A.—In your office?

Q.—Yes, in the Prudential Building, Newark. A.—I don't know where your office is.

Q.—Did you come to my office in the Prudential Building, Newark, and send in your name and I was engaged, and didn't you come in later in the afternoon and see me in my own office? A.—For what? I didn't do anything of the kind. I don't know where your office is located.

Q.—You were not in there at all? A.—No. Q.—And didn't you tell me that your office was in Red Bank? A.—My office is in Red Bank.

Q.—Why did you tell just a moment ago it was in Long Branch? A.—I lived in Long Branch. My office is in Red Bank, has been there five years.

Q.—You used to wear a mustache, didn't you? A.—Oh, no, I never wore a mustache.

Q.—And didn't you, at the time you visited my office about four weeks ago in the afternoon, introduce yourself to me as Cappris of Red Bank, and didn't you say that you had a friend who had a case, whom you thought it would be beneficial for me to see, or words to that effect? A.—No, sir.

He Sticks to Denial.

The witness stood on his denial that he had seen Mr. McCarter either at his office or at his house at Rumsen. The defense lawyer then turned again to the razor, as follows:

Q.—Where has this razor been from a few days or so after the Grand Jury quit until you gave it to Mr. Simpson, a short time ago? A.—It was in my possession.

Q.—At Red Bank or Long Branch? A.—Red Bank.

Q.—And how did it happen that you saw Mr. Simpson about that? Did you go to see him? A.—When I read in the paper the case was coming up again I went to see him, yes.

Q.—And, of course, you got no money for it? A.—Why should I get money for it?

Q.—I asked you whether you did or did not? A.—No, I got my own money.

Q.—Is that the money you got by false pretenses? A.—No got that. You tell me what money you got.

Q.—So as a public-spirited citizen, you jumped on the train from Red Bank and went up to Jersey City and hunted up Mr. Simpson to tell him about this razor, did you? Is that it? A.—Certainly I went over and told. I feel what I know before the justice, I felt that it was my duty to turn over—I don't know what it was. The razor I had in Beekman's office.

He "Sticks to the Law."

Q.—But it was your duty, you felt, as a citizens— A.—Always I did stick to the law. I don't care if you call me a crook or whatever you call me, always I try to stick to the law.

Q.—The law seems to stick to you. A.—Let it be.

Q.—What was the day you delivered the razor to Mr. Simpson? A.—Two or three weeks ago.

Q.—Are you at present a detective in New Jersey? A.—Yes.

Q.—What? A.—They did try.

Q.—Didn't they succeed? A.—Yes, your friend, what is his name—Quinn.

Q.—He is the prosecutor of Monmouth County, isn't he? A.—Yes.

Q.—A distinguished lawyer of New Jersey? A.—Who said that?

Q.—Well, you say that Mr. Quinn, the prosecutor of Monmouth County, who convicted you of those crimes I have alluded to, of false pretenses— A.—Yes, because I know too much about him—that is what I did. You want me to tell—

Q.—You know too much about Quinn? A.—Yes, I know too much about Monmouth County.

Got $150 From Beekman.

Court recessed for luncheon, and after the recess Caprio was recalled to the stand. Mr. McCarter resumed the cross-examination, bringing out that Caprio got $150 in cash.

Q.—When did he pay it to you and where? A.—He paid me at the office.

Q.—How often during that three weeks' service were you in his office in Somerville? A.—Not very many times in the office.

Q.—Each time in this office or sometimes in the other office over the bank? A.—I used to meet him.

Q.—Where did you meet him? A.—When he was going home.

Q.—On the street? A.—Yes.

Q.—You say this office was not occupied by anybody else, the office in this building, of the prosecutor? A.—He talked to me privately.

Q.—You did not want to go in his office? A.—That is the order I had.

Q.—That is the order he gave you—you were to meet him on the street, but no in his office? A.—Sometimes.

Q.—Would he give you any reason for meeting you on the street rather than in his office? A.—I was working for him privately. He wanted to talk to me private.

Q.—Now you are transacting business under the name of United States Detective Agency? A.—Yes.

Redirect examination by Senator Simpson:

Q.—Was your employment by Mr. Beekman after your conviction? A.—Yes.

Q.—So you say you never had any talk with General McCarter at any place about this razor? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Or about this case? A.—No, sir.

Senator Simpson—That is all. I won't offer this razor. I am not satisfied with the truth of this witness's statement, so I won't press this.

Mr. McCarter—I should not think you would.

Re-cross-examination by Mr. McCarter:

Q.—Now, I want again to ask you, Mr. Caprio, if, about a week before this case started, you did not come to my office on the fifth floor of the Prudential Building, the corner of Broad and Bank Streets, Newark, and did not desire to see me, and you found that I was engaged; later in the day you were able to see me and did see me? A.—No, sir.

Q.—That did not occur? A.—You did not see me; no, sir.

Caprio was permitted to leave the stand, but was recalled when a messenger brought a business card to the court. The messenger was from Mr. McCarter's office in Newark. The witness denied that he had left the card produced by the attorney at his office. He was then excused.

Map of Scene Ruled Out.

William J. Berryman was put on the stand and identified a map of the murder scene, which he had prepared for the prosecution. Senator Case objected to the offer of the map on the ground that it was prepared in October of this year, and therefore did not faithfully represent conditions on the Phillips farm as they were four years ago. The Court ruled the map out, when Senator Simpson said that he would not press his offer.

The State then offered in evidence the bullets and shells in the case. They were admitted. At 1:55 the State rested its case and at 2:25 Senator Case opened for the defense.

Mr. McCarter had made vain efforts to have certain evidence stricken from the record. Senator Case opened with a lecture, illustrated by a defense map of the topography of the farm. Justice Parker left the bench to take a seat in the pit before the bench in order to follow the lawyers' talk. The Court took notes on a map he had prepared for his own guidance.

MOORE'S SECRETARY CALLED.

Hall Defense to Ask Him About Pfeiffer Letter to Edwards in 1922.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 19.—Fred L. Bloodgood, secretary to Governor Moore, has been subpoenaed to appear at the Hall-Mills trial on Monday. He was asked to have with him a letter referring to the case written by Timothy N. Pfeiffer, now of defense counsel, to United States Senator Edwards on Sept. 23, 1922, when Mr. Edwards was Governor.

A search of the Executive Office has failed to disclose the document. It was explained that the Governor's correspondence is his personal property.

What the letter contains is not known here. It is understood that Mr. Pfeiffer has a carbon copy, but wishes the original to introduce as an exhibit.

Senator Edwards could not be reached last night, and no one in his Jersey City home knew the contents of the letter. J. Harry Foley, Secretary to Senator Edwards when he was Governor at the time of the crime, also could not be reached. It was said at his home that no subpoena had been issued for him.

MRS. GIBSON WAITS CALMLY FOR DEATH

Dictates "Last" Statement, in Which She Reiterates "I Have Told the Truth."

THEN WATCHES CHILD PLAY

Doctors Assert She May Live a Few Months or May Die Any Day.

Her dramatic rôle in the Hall-Mills case concluded, Jane Gibson calmly resigned herself to death at the Jersey City Hospital yesterday. On her own initiative she called for a recorder and dictated what purported to be an ante-mortem statement from her hospital bed, starting with the reiteration of her climactic phrase, "I have told the truth." Concluding her statement, she raised herself on her elbow and boldly signed "Jane Gibson" at the bottom. Then she sank back, obviously weak, yet apparently in complete mental ease and watched her 5-year-old daughter playing about the room.

Her own calm, yet definite conviction, that she was shortly to die was in spite of the careful efforts of the hospital authorities to keep from her the full seriousness of her illness. Yet it was partially confirmed by medical authorities, who admitted that though care might conserve her life for weeks, or possibly months, it was at best a matter of time and she might slip off any day.

"I have told the truth," she dictated slowly in a clear, steady tone. Thomas J. Golden, secretary to Dr. O'Hanlon, medical director of the Jersey City Hospital, sat by her bed and wrote down her words. "Now let justice take its course. I told it four years ago but people did not and would not listen to me. It seemed to them as if everyone connected with the case was looking for money. They tried to bribe me and when that failed they threatened me and they tried to poison my stock and burn down my home. They foreclosed the mortgage on my property right after the 1923 Grand Jury affair and I was compelled to sell forty-one acres of land to clear the mortgage on the other twenty, for less than I paid for them.

"A few days after I sold the land the man I sold it to was offered twice what he had to pay for it. When I went to get a mortgage on the property I was told by people in New Brunswick whom I know are connected with the Halls that the property had no value. They have continually hounded me, but thank God, there are some honest men in the world, and the Hall money could not reach Mr. Simpson or the Jersey City officers and at last I have been allowed to tell the truth.

"I have told the truth, and I am ready to die with a good, clear conscience."

Mrs. Gibson's assertions that she had been persecuted were denied in New Brunswick last night from two sources, Walter C. Sedam, who was her attorney when she sold part of her property, and Professor P. A. Vandermeulen of the chemistry department of Rutgers College.

Professor Vandermeulen told of Mrs. Gibson's bringing to him the stomachs of several pigs some years ago, asserting that they were of a number which had been poisoned. His analysis revealed no poison, he said, and indicated that the pigs had died of disease. The bill for $25, for the analysis, it was said at the college, had never been paid.

Preparations are being made at the hospital to administer radium treatment to Mrs. Gibson. It was said there last night that she had suffered less than expected from her trip to court.

GOODYEAR OFFICERS SUED FOR $15,000,000

'wrongfully removed' and asks that 'judgment he rendered in favor of these plaintiffs and for the benefit of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, for any and all sums found due, together with interest thereon, from the date of default.'

Stockholders Want Control.

"Leaders of the group of Goodyear stockholders who have sponsored the suit declare it ths 'most important move in the battle to regain control of the company for its stockholders.' It attacks practices of the present Goodyear management as having been opposed to the best interests of the stockholders and, citing many instances, demands recovery for ths stockholders of sums which mount up to figures of incomprehensible size. Involved in the suit are profits of Dillon, Read & Co. on the sale of four groups of Goodyear securities. It asks readjustments in the status of Goodyear bonds and debentures, both of which pay 8 per cent. and are redeemable at 20 per cent. premiums, which would return an unestimated sum to the Goodyear coffers. Prior preference shares and 225,000 shares of Goodyear common named in the suit account for nearly $12,000,000.

"Leaders of the movement asserted that 'various efforts to stop the action have been made by those against whom it is directed,' but that 'this suit is the entering wedge which will force disclosures of greatest importance in the tangle of Goodyear finances and will be prosecuted vigrously.'

"Plaintiffs in this and other actions intended to unseat Dillon, Read & Co. from Goodyear control seek to force the issue to an early trial. They charge an attempt on the part of Goodyear management to delay court action until after the forthcoming stockholders' meeting, at which time they anticipate an effort on the part of the managemsnt to devise a new means of controlling the company."

SHERWIN DENIES CHARGES.

Issues Statement Explaining His Connection With Goodyear.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 19.—John Sherwin tonight issued the following statement relative to the suit of stockholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company against him:

"Prior to the reorganization I had no personal interest of any kind in Goodyear. My only interest was due to the fact that the bank with which I had been connected all my business life had unfortunately made loans to the Goodyear Company and to F. A. Seiberling, who at that time was President of the company and in practical control of its affairs.

"In the Summer of 1920 the company had attempted to bolster up its weakened financial structure through the sale of preferred and common stock, but late in the Fall of 1920 the company's cash and credit were exhausted and the management resorted to a temporary loan through a New York banking house, which involved a practical receivership of everything the company owned except its manufacturing plants, due to the fact that it had to pledge all of its inventories and receivables and market its product through releases by the bankers in control of everything it manufactured.

"I had no connection with the bankers who furnished this temporary relief to the company. This temporary financing proved to be utterly inadequate, and early in 1921 the company surplus had been entirely wiped out, and in the place thereof there was a deficit of more than $60,000,000.

"Creditors with debts aggregating approximately $125,000,000 were pressing for payment. The bankers who had furnished temporary relief declined to proceed with permanent financing, and in order to protect, if possible, the claims of the bank with which I was connected and at the present urgent request of the creditors holding many millions of claims against the company and to do what I could to prevent, if possible, a receivership of the company, I interested myself in seeing what could be done to save the company, its creditors and stockholders. The statement that I ever proposed, favored or listened to any suggestion of a receivership for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company is a lie."

WHITEHOUSE DENIES BRITAIN IS GLOOMY

Takes Issue With Dean Inge, and Says He Never Has Been So Hopeful for England.

PRAISES AMERICAN SCHOOLS

Noted Educator, Who Gave Exhibit to N. Y. U., Is Guest of Honor at Suigrave Luncheon.

John Howard Whitehouse, F. R. G. S., F. R. S. A., British educator, was guest of honor yesterday, at a luncheon given by the George Washington-Suigrave Institution "in recognition of the gift of his English Education Exhibit to New York University, and his services in the cause of friendship among English speaking peoples." The luncheon was held at the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway.

After thanking the Suigrave Institution and Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University for the arrangement and setting of his exhibit, which consisted, among other things, of examples of creative work done in English public schools, Dr. Whitehouse proceeded to "repudiate" descriptions that would make England appear as a spot where gloomy conditions abounded. "I have respect for Dean Inge," said Dr. Whitehouse, "but I have never been so hopeful for England."

Dr. Whitehouse insisted that whatever black conditions obtained in Britain they were "legacies of the World War" and purely temporary. He said the miners on strike were not bandits, but were fighting to maintain their standard of living. And the mine owners, he said, had their problems as well.

Expressing admiration for the American system of public education, Dr. Whitehouse explained that in England there was no educational system corresponding to that of America. "In England," he said, "a 'public' school is in reality a private school." The free schools, he explained, instructed children of the poor until they reached the age of twelve, but bore no relation to the higher schools. The reason for this, he said, was that poor children were not expected to go on with education.

Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of The Review of Reviews, and Chancellor Brown paid tribute to Dr. Whitehouse as an educator and emissary of good-will between Britain and America.

GET YALE BOOTLEGGER IN CLEAN-UP DRIVE

Police Aid University Authorities to Make Campus Dry—Flapper Parties Investigated.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—Yale University and the City of New Haven have begun conferences to reduce bootlegging and petting party evils which have been reported from several sources. Complaints that the Yale dormitories are infested with New Haven bootleggers have been received at Yale offices and the police station, while evidence that New Haven girls have been making repeated midnight calls at apartment houses in which Yale graduate students lodge has been obtained by the police and turned over to the university officials.

Mrs. Mary Nevins, the city policewoman, who for several weeks has investigated the apartment house situation, has given a list of the houses, rooms and students to the police and to the university officials.

A bootlegging case was reported by the mother of a Yale student, and acting on her information the police arrested Erneet Erickson of 206 Dover Street and confiscated liquor valued at $15,000. Erickson insisted that it was worth double that amount and boasted that he had a patronage that covered the Yale campus. He was arrested in a raid last year upon the Trumbull Literary Circle, a "Key" club on Church Street.

Dean Wilbur L. Cross of the Graduate School said tonight that the cases of two graduate students were being investigated and if fonnd guilty they would be expelled.

Dean Clarence Mendell of Yale College said efforts to mitigate the bootlegging industry on the campus were being pushed.

MYSTERIOUSLY LOSES VALUABLE JEWELRY

Diamond Broker Bound in His Office—Fails to Recall How It Happened.

Joseph I. Pomerantz, a diamond broker, drew diamonds valued at from $10,000 to $20,000 from a vault in the Maiden Lane Safety Deposit Company at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Then he hurried to his office on the eighth floor of the Sheldon Building, 68 Nassau Street. Once there he stooped over to pick up a letter, lost consciousness, and "came to" fifteen minutes later with his arms and legs bound with adhesive tape and the diamonds gone. These details he told to the police of the Old Slip Station.

The bound diamond broker, who lives at 184 East Ninety-sixth Street, Brooklyn, was discovered after Julia Aster, his nineteen-year-old bookkeeper, came to work at 9 o'clock and found the door locked. She notified Harry Goldschmidt, an elevator operator, and Bernard Weiner, a diamond broker, who keeps a police siren in his office. The call of the siren brought Patrolmen Quinn and O'Connor, who, with the aid of a pass key, entered Mr. Pomerantz's office and undid the adhesive tape thongs.

The diamond broker appeared in a daze. Dr. Hardcastle of Beekman Street Hospital examined him and found only a slight increase in heart action. There were no marks of violence on his person and there was no evidence of a drug having been administered. According to detectives of the Old Slip Station the broker had not been gagged.

The only clue came from Goldschmidt, the elevator operator, who said he took a stranger up ten minutes after Mr. Pomerantz had ascended. Goldschmidt said the stranger must have walked down, for he did not see him again.

LAUDER THREATENS RADIO.

Warns Stations and Singers Against Use of His Songs.

BOSTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Sir Harry Lauder today issued an ultimatum to Scots that they must not go on the air with his songs. He transmitted the order to all through Sandy McFarlane, who has presented Scotch programs at Boston, New York and Schenectady radio stations.

Sir Harry, who is appearing this week at a Boston theatre, had a receiving set installed in his dressing room today, and tonight listened to McFarlane singing at WEEI. There were no Lauder pieces on the program.

Sir Harry, in threatening suit against singers using his material, and against stations at which they appeared, said he had spent a lifetime writing and collecting the scores, and that their use by other entertainers was harmful to his interests.

STORE EMPLOYES ENROLLED

The Altman Foundation contributed $25,000 yesterday to the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies in the tenth anniversary campaign for $4,720,000 which the organization is conducting. Colonel Michael Friedsam is President of the Foundation.

The contribution was announced by Frederick Brown, general Chairman of the campaign, who also reported an anonymous contribution of $10,000.

Before sailing last midnight on the steamer Majestic for Europe Mark H. Rogers, division head of the upholstery trade, brought in $6,000 in new subscriptions to campaign headquarters at the Hotel Pennsylvania, placing his group within several hundred dollars of its $10,000 quota.

The upholstery trade in last year's campaign raised $500 in new subscriptions, and Mr. Rogers canceled his passage originally booked for last week to better the previous figure.

Another passenger sailing on the Majestic was Leo Lewek of the Women's Neckwear Committee, whose group yesterday passed the $7,000 mark.

Hundreds of subscriptions for small amounts were received yesterday at headquarters, and efforts to obtain membership enrolments among salaried employes in department stores and factories gained new ground. It was announced that ninety-three new subscribers of $10 and more were enlisted at Bloomingdale's, with a total subscription of $1,875. Samuel J. Bloomingdale is a councilor in the campaign.

An open forum meeting in the interest of the federation campaign was held last night at Congregation Drech Emunch, Sixty-seventh Street and Larkins Street, Arverne, L. I., with Jonah J. Goldstein as the principal speaker. The meeting was part of an intensive effort being made in the Rockaways to exceed last year's total of $100,000, under the chairmanship of Leo J. Goldberger, who is again in charge of the work.

POUGHKEEPSIE CHARGES THROWN OUT OF COURT

Fifty-eight Indictments of Six Town Officials Are Dismissed by Justice Seeger.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Seeger today dismissed fifty-eight indictments charging malfeasance and misfeasance in office, returned against six officials of the town of Poughkeepsie. Justice Seeger recommended that the cases be resubmitted to the next Grand Jury.

The officials and the number of indictments returned against them are: Silas L. Davis, Arlington, Supervisor, 14; Harry Graham, Wappingers Falls, Town Clerk, 14; John F. Hoppe, Arlington, Justice of the Peace, 10; Edward G. Gray, Arlington, Justice of the Peace, 8; Joseph V. Lyons, Wappingers Falls, Justice of the Peace, 8; William J. Workman, New Hamburg, Justice of the Peace, 4.

Justice Seeger found that hearsay testimony prejudicial to the defendants had been given before the Grand Jury; that an insufficient number of Grand Jurymen were continuously present to hear all the evidence; that records necessary to establish vital facts were not offered in evidence, and that offers of the accused officials to waive immunity and testify before the Grand Jury were rejected by the jury.

Charges against the officials were based on reports made by examiners of the State Controller's office, who reported in January, alleging illegal and unwarranted payments to the several Town Board members for services they contended they gave the town while officials. The indicted officials appeared voluntarily when the indictments were returned and have since been at liberty under nominal bail.

MENCKEN IS FOR MONOGAMY

Denies Opposition, Attributed to Him by Anna Carlin Spencer.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19 (AP).—H. L. Mencken, editor of The American Mercury, denied here today that he had ever opposed monogamy.

Commenting on a statement made at Atlanta, Ga., by Mrs. Anna Carlin Spencer, special lecturer at Teachers' College, Columbia University, that she was ready to "explode bubble theories" of Bernard Shaw and himself relative to monogamy, Mr. Mencken said:

"Mrs. Spencer, whoever she is—I never heard of her before—has got the wrong sow by the ear. I have always advocated monogamy and have always opposed polygamy, free love, birth control and allied things.

"My belief is that man is a natural monogamist and no sensible man wants two girls. I will always oppose polygamist, in or out of marriage.

"I have no idea what Mrs. Spencer is referring to. I spoke about a month ago in Atlanta, but certainly did not make any such statement or inference then."

BLAST RENDS SHIP; 20 TO 40 MEET DEATH

were being sent for the firemen and ambulances and physicians from hospitals, volunteers were called for to rescue the men whose terrible plight could be plainly seen from the walls of the dock.

The rescuers, too, faced death and injury, for the torn and twisted metal of the ship's decks was red hot, sundered parts of the steel superstructure were still falling and there was danger that other tanks would explode. Nevertheless the husky dockworkers and longshoremen of the waterfront leaped aboard the gaping ship and, making their way over the dismantled deck began taking those still alive to a place of safety. They stepped over the dead and dying to reach those who implored their help.

Flames were still seething aboard the tanker and leaping from the rents in her hullplatee, impeding the rescuers and adding to their danger. Dense smoke hid dangerous fissures in the deck from them and made the injured they sought almost invisible.

Wives Weep for Their Dead.

When the fire in the interior was subdued, the firemen descended into the blackened, smoke-filled, red-hot recesses where burning oil still glistened, to search for the dead. Wives and children of the dock workers living in the town of Sparrowe Point had gathered at the scene while the rescue work was going on and formed a weeping cordon behind the police lines as sheeted forms, some living, some dead, were brought from the mangled tanker and placed in ambulances.

A workman, Matthew Prucha, was in the engine room when the explosion came. He said the ship shook all over as if it had been seized in a giant hand.

"The ship reared and plunged like a horse and seemed to lift ten feet from the drydock," said Prucha. "Then there seemed to be another explosion—I don't know—it was all so quick—maybe just an echo. I made my way to the deck and saw men running around with their clothing on fire and crying. Some of them had arms off and some lay on the deck with legs and heads cut off.

"Nobody seemed to know what had happened or what to do. It was terrible. I ran up to some of the men who were on fire and pulled their clothing off. Everybody was crying and yelling. I saw big hunks of steel lying on the dock 100 feet away, and there were pieces of men and wreckage strewn all about. The smoke came rolling out of the boat and it was hard to see. I went back to the bow and tried to help some of the wounded men and then the fire came and cut me off. I couldn't get back to the gangplank."

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 19, (AP).—Chester Rosten, father of six children, walked the streets for four months attempting to find work. Today a contractor engaged in repair work on the Norwegian tanker Mantilla hired him. Two hours later Rosten was caught in the explosion on the ship. Hospital physicians said he probably would die.

English Golf Rule Challenged—Duane Beaten by Tod Morgan, Who Retains Title

U. S. DEFIES ENGLAND IN FIXING GOLF DATE

TEST OF STRENGTH SOUGHT

U. S. G. A. Not Consulted by Royal and Ancient After Cooperation Had Been Promised.

ENGLISH MUST MOVE NEXT

Prospects of Any International Play in Summer Vanish Unless the Conflict Is Adjusted.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

After working along harmoniously for years, the United States Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, which control golf here and in Great Britain, have come to a parting of the ways.

The action of the Executive Committee of the U. S. G. A. at its meeting held at the Belmont Hotel yesterday fixing the dates of the next national open for June 23, 24 and 25, after the Championship Committee of the R. and A. had already announced June 22, 23 and 24 as the dates for the British open was in effect a challenge to the British golf body.

Coming as it did after protestations on the part of President William C. Fownes Jr. and other U. S. G. A. officials who went abroad with this year's Walker Cup team that all was well between the two ruling bodies and that they were well on the way toward mutual understanding and agreement, the action was a distinct surprise. While none of the officials would make any comment regarding the decision, preferring to allow any and all deductions to be drawn from the bald announcement of conflicting dates, it was generally understood by those who have followed recent legislative acts of the two organizations that the decision was made to force a test of strength between them.

Long a Bone of Contention.

The open championship dates have long been a bone of contention between the U. S. G. A. and the R. and A. In fact, ever since 1921 when international golf received its initial impetus through the visit of a team of American professionals and amateurs to the other side the question has been a recurring one. Many protests have been lodged with the R. and A. over the fact that the selection of a late June date for the British event has made it necessary to hold the American open championships at times when the Northern courses are generally at their worst.

As yet these protests have gone unheeded by the British authorities, who have continued to fix their dates far in advance of the time when the American schedules are made and at essentially the same time of the season. As a result of this failure on the part of the R. and A. to lend a responsive ear to the protests of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, which ratifies the dates, and the U. S. G. A., which fixes them, the American championships have been scheduled so as to give participants an opportunity to play in the two championships, although doing so often meant playing the United States open at times when conditions were adverse, usually in July.

Adjustment Had Been Expected.

With the departure of President Fownes and other U. S. G. A. officials to England this year it was believed that the matter, as well as others in which there were controversies, would be straightened out in a satisfactory manner. It was one of the things that the head of the U. S. G. A. took up with members of the Championship Committee of the R. and A., and President Fownes was led to believe that hereafter the British authorities would cooperate with the U. S. G. A. in schedule making.

Having that assurance, President Fownes and other executives were considerably surprised when the R. and A. announced that the British open championship of 1927 would be played at St. Andrews on June 22, 23 and 24. No word had been received from the other side, nor was any attempt made to ascertain whether or not those dates would be acceptable to the U. S. G.

Consequently, when the Executive Committee met yesterday it decided that in view of what was regarded a breach of faith on the part of the Championship Committee of the R. and A. it would set the dates for its own open championship at the time that seemed to be most favorable, regardless of the fact that so doing would make it impossible for the American professionals to play in the British open unless, of course, they desired to forego playing in the United States open.

Unless, therefore, the British authorities decide to back down, which is somewhat doubtful, there will be no international golf of any nature this year, for it is improbable that any representatives from this country will go abroad and forego playing in the United States open and it is equally improbable that the British golfers will pass up their own championships for the opportunity of playing here.

Pro Match Is Put Off.

The action likewise brings to naught the negotiations that have been going on between the two professional bodies for a team match to be played here in 1927. It is unlikely that any of the British professionals would consider it worth while to come to America solely for the opportunity of meeting the Americans in a team match. Were it possible for them to play in the championship as well, with the team match as a side issue, interesting eight British professionals in the proposition would not be at all difficult.

There is still plenty of time for the two organizations to get together and straighten out the difficulties, but in its action taken yesterday the U. S. G. A. virtually announced to the world in general and the R. and A. in particular that the first step to bring about a harmonious working agreement would have to come from the British authorities. The action is also taken to mean that hereafter the U. S. G. A. is ready to stand on its own feet in all matters relating to the conduct of golf.

Dates for the United States amateur and the public links championships were also decided at yesterday's meeting.

The amateur, awarded some time ago to the Minnikahda Golf Club, Minneapolis, will be decided during the week of Aug. 22, and the public links tournament, which will be decided at the Ridgewood Golf Club, Cleveland, on Aug. 2 to 6.

The amateur, it will be noted, has been advanced about three weeks over the dates on which it was played this year. Conditions for playing the 1927 event will be practically the same as they were this year, two days for qualifying, two rounds of eighteen hole matches on the third day and thirty-six hole matches on the last three days of the week.

Qualifying for the open championship, which is to be held next year at the Oakmont Country Club, near Pittsburgh, will be held in the various districts on Monday, June 6.

No action was taken regarding the dates for the national women's championship, which is to be played at the Cherry Valley Club, Garden City, L. I. The decision as to dates was left to the Women's Committee. It is possible, however, that with the amateur championship set for August the women will advance their event into early September in order to permit the younger players to take part without interfering with their scholastic careers.

British More Affected Than We.

That the break between the U. S. G. A. and the R. and A. will detract from the British event far more than it will from the American is regarded as a certainty. For several years the Americans have been going to England in droves, and their presence there has lifted the British open out of the purely local class to one of international importance. There has, on the other hand, been little travel this way for the American open, only a few representatives of golf in Great Britain coming here to add international lustre to the event.

It was in 1921 that American professionals made their first concentrated attack on the British ramparts, and Jock Hutchison, whose birthplace was within a stone's throw of St. Andrews, where the championship was then played, was returned the winner. His victory, gained after a play-off against Roger Wethered, the British amateur star, marked the first time that a representative from this country had ever carried off the British Cup. Since then an American, either a home bred or a naturalized Briton, has been returned a winner on four occasions, the only time that a British professional won the title being in 1923, when Arthur Havers, an Englishman, carried off the title by the margin of a single stroke.

Walter Hagen won the British title in 1922 and finished just behind Havers the following year. Hagen again won the title in 1924, and in 1925 "Long Jim" Barnes, whose birthplace was in Cornwall, but whose golf was developed almost wholly in America, gained the title. This year Bobby Jones won and Americans finished second, third and fourth, Al Watrous trailing Jones by a single stroke, followed by Hagen and George Von Elm, who were tied for third.

Jones to Defend Title.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 19 (AP).—Bobby Jones, American and British open golf champion, said tonight that unless his business interfered, he would defend his American golf title at Oakmont, Pa., next June. He announced several weeks ago that he would not defend his British title due to pressure of business.

Jones said also that, business permitting, he would seek to retrieve the amateur title, which he lost to George von Elm of Los Angeles last Summer.

BARNES-FARRELL WIN ALL-PRO TEST

FARRELL SAVES THE DAY

Barnes Trapped in the Woods and the Rough, but Partner Comes to His Rescue.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 19.—Jim Barnes, unattached, and Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge star, won the All-Professional event of the annual Mid-south golf championships here today with a total of 134, two strokes ahead of Bobby Cruickshank of the Progress Club and Pat Doyle of Elmsford.

Starting with a stroke lead this morning, Farrell scored the first nine holes in 33 himself, just to show Barnes he was grateful for the latter's sensational work yesterday, which included a hole-in-one. Barnes and Farrell won in 1924.

Going out, Barnes was trapped at the seventh, in the woods at the eighth and in the rough at the ninth, but Farrell saved all three holes with par, birdie and par. Farrell added another birdie at the tenth when his second was six inches from the pin. Barnes was again in trouble at the eleventh, which Farrell took with a four, but played steadily thereafter, getting a birdie at the fourteenth and sinking a twenty-footer from off the green at the sixteenth.

The great rally turned in by the Armour brothers was a feature of the day. Handicapped by a 71 yesterday, they scored 66 today to tie for third money. Five consecutive threes going out was the high spot of this scoring.

SILVER WINGS WINS OVER FROZEN TRACK

Noses Out French Doll After Stretch Battle in the Fifth Race at Lexington.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 19.—G. Watts's two-year-old filly Silver Wings nosed out French Doll in the fifth race, a Futurity Course dash, over a frozen track here today. Silver Wings was kept off the pace set by French Doll, but in a spectacular stretch duel got up to win in the last stride. Marion Elizabeth, the odds-on choice, met with interference early but made up ground fast in the stretch to finish third. The victor paid $25.60 for $2.

The condition of the track was so bad this morning that the association considered calling off the races, but hard work finally made the strip fit for racing.

JOCKEY ABEL CLAIMS FOUL

But Stewards Fail to Listen to Rider of Whitney's Beaming, Which Is Beaten by a Length.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 19.—A. M. Mounce's filly Germaine Chauvelot, a rank outsider, after running roughshod over her opponents was returned the winner of the Scandal Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs for two-year-old fillies, which was the leading number of an ordinary card at Prince George Park this afternoon.

Those who backed Harry Payne Whitney's Beaming and W. R. Dulaney's Single Star thought it was a scandalous finish, as the winner crossed over sharply onto the rail in the stretch drive, interfering with these two, which finished in that order behind her.

Germaine Chauvelot, which hadn't been given a chance by the talent, paid $67.60 for each $2 ticket, $26.30 for the place and $8.20 to show.

As soon as the boys came back to the scales there was a howl from the spectators, and a cheer followed when Jockey Abel, who had the leg up on Beaming, climbed the stairs to claim foul. Despite the fact that it was evident to all that the winner had interfered with the others when she crossed over, the claim was not allowed and the numbers stood as the horses finished.

Track Heavier Than Ever.

A steady rainfall last night made the course heavier than ever and the going was deep and holding, making the times very slow. Overhead, however, conditions were ideal, with an almost cloudless sky and a sharp northerly breeze, a day that brought out another good-sized attendance.

Two scratches in the Scandal Purse left seven of the overnight entry to go to the post. The bulk of the public's money was distributed in tickets on Samuel Ross's Festive, Beaming and Marshal Field's Ommiad. When the barrier snapped Chick Lang got Festive away with a rush and she showed in front for a time, giving place to Single Star, with Beaming coming up into the picture on the turn.

In the stretch drive Single Star appeared a certain winner, but Brooks rode a weak finish. Then Thomas brought Germaine Chauvelot up on the outside and she climbed right over her opposition.

Inside the furlong pole Germaine Chauvelot swung over sharply, interfering with both Beaming and Single Star. Abel had to pull the Whitney filley up sharply to save himself. The foul was evident to all watching the race and a disqualification appeared a certainty. Abel, however, was given a scant hearing and the "official" board was immediately displayed.

Has Length at Wire.

Germaine Chauvelot had a length on Beaming at the wire, with Single Star four lengths back to take third money by a head from Ommiad.

Johnny Maiben gave the backers of the Xalpa Farm's three-year-old colt Forever and Ever an anxious time in the race for maidens of all ages over the course of a mile and seventy yards. The son of Negofol was a standout in a field of seven and was backed accordingly, going to the post at 2 to 5.

Maiben didn't get his mount going until the far turn, where it appeared that he never would be able to get up. Lawrence Waterbury's Carloman had made the pace and came very wide into the homestretch. Maiben had to come all the way around the leaders, and, while he rode a sterling finish, Forever and Ever only got his head in front right at the winning post.

P. F. Joyce's Lehigh Valley came on to take the place by a couple of lengths from the Bell Farm Stable's Alldin, Carloman finishing fourth.

H. Church went to sleep in the stretch on E. P. Summerfield's Overfire in the claiming race for four-year-olds and upward over the course of a mile and a sixteenth, after he had it all sewed up. He took the Underfire gelding out into a winning lead and then forgot that there were seven other horses in the contest.

Overfire was galloping along serenely in the stretch when Stevens came charging down on the leader on D. L. Rouse's mare Belphrizonia. Before Church came to, the mare was alongside and she nipped the favorite right on the wire, gaining a head decision. Stevens's sharp finish netted followers of Belphrizonia $12.20 for each $2 ticket.

The victory of Anthony Angelo over Charles Monroe featured the amateur bouts of the N. Y. A. C. last night. Wyoming Battler Scores Knockout in the Sixth—Murray Gets Verdict Over Seaman.

GARDEN BOXING RESULTS.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Tod Morgan, Seattle lad, retained his junior lightweight title against Carl Duane, rugged Bronx challenger, last night before a crowd of 15,000 [illegible] fans in Madison Square Garden, after fifteen rounds of exciting fighting. Referee Lou Magnolia and Judges Harold Barnes and George Kelly collaborated in a unanimous decision for the champion.

The crowd cheered the [illegible] which was fair and justified. [illegible] deserved the verdict because he [illegible] boxed and outfought Duane in [illegible] of the fifteen rounds. Duane [illegible] strongly, but weakened after the [illegible] five rounds and then class began to tell. In the end the challenger was floundering around, wild and inaccurate, while the champion [illegible] coolly and cleverly and drove his punches home with the accuracy of a sharpshooter.

Morgan entered the ring a [illegible] favorite in the betting, but [illegible] win like a 2½ to 1 shot. On the contrary Morgan had perhaps the [illegible] battle of his career as champion [illegible] 130-pound division to retain his title. He won because he was a better [illegible] a better fighting general and a [illegible] marksman, but he found in Duane a rugged youngster, who is a veteran of many hard-fought engagements [illegible] wise in his store of ring knowledge.

Duane's Stamina Fails.

Where Duane was weak, however, was in his endurance. Under the [illegible] and the application of occasional terrific rights to the heart and body the Bronx steam-roller weakened [illegible] many had expected he would carry [illegible].

It was a fiery battle in which Duane gave everything he had in his [illegible] a title. At the finish both lads were bleeding and marked with the [illegible] ations of battle. Morgan had a [illegible] cut lower lip and the left side of his face was swollen.

Duane, the beaten lad, looked the conquered. His right eye was swollen and bleeding, gore streamed from his nose and mouth and he was weary at the end. He made a great fight at the start and cracked. He wound up the encounter making a game stand against overwhelming superiority.

In victory Morgan again [illegible] local fight fans that he is no [illegible] tal champion. On the contrary, he is a worthy successor to a title [illegible] by the ring's marvel, Johnny Dundee.

Like the steam-roller after which he is named, Duane started as if he was going to mow the champion down, and his partisan admirers in the [illegible] had plenty of opportunity to [illegible] lungs. For the first four rounds the challenger forced the fighting, [illegible] ing what appeared to be a timid champion before his fiery attack. Duane played for Morgan's body with a drumfire of rights and lefts and occasionally shifted to the head with his attack.

Crowds Morgan Hard.

He sent Morgan back on his heels in the first round with a hard right to the head and had the champion in retreat. In his counterfire in the second round Morgan opened a cut over Duane's right eye, but most of the time the champion contented himself with a defensive style, trying to get the range.

Morgan got the range in the [illegible] and landed flush to the jaw with a hard right, but Duane charged in again and continued his fire to the body with both hands. In the [illegible] round Morgan again landed to the jaw with a right late in the round, but again Duane charged like an enraged bull and had the champion retreating across the ring.

With the fifth round the tide turned and class began to tell. Morgan won this round, the sixth and the seventh because he was a better boxer than his rival. He employed an [illegible] varied attack for which Duane had no defense. Straight left jabs [illegible] to the body or head and an [illegible] right which grazed the jaw or landed solidly to the side of the face [illegible] Duane.

The Bronx lad, however, had one more rally and he sustained it over the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds. In these three sessions he forced Morgan steadily around the ring with a vicious fire which lost none of its point-scoring effectiveness because at times it was wild.

But after the tenth session Duane "blew," and Morgan came on like the boxing master he is among these junior lightweights. The last five rounds were marked by many sharp fire exchanges, when Duane, desperate, rushed in recklessly. But in these exchanges Morgan held the upper hand.

The fight was notable in a financial sense, for it drew in receipts the largest gate attracted by a junior lightweight title struggle since the class became recognized.

For his pains Morgan got about $[illegible]000, a record sum for a 130-pound champion.

Ryan Stopped in Sixth.

HARVARD SHIFTS LINE-UP

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—The consolation round in the football series of the Big Three, a collegiate combination which, it may be recalled, flourished in past years, will be played here tomorrow when Yale and Harvard perform in the celebrated Bowl in their forty-fifth game.

Although neither team is going anywhere at all, some 78,000 persons will assemble tomorrow to see them go. This is the most remarkable tribute ever paid to the traditional popularity of the Yale-Harvard football game. Here are two teams which have lost four games apiece, yet the demand for tickets this cool November evening is the greatest in the history of the fixture.

Frenzied customers are battling madly for the privilege of seeing two teams that do not have a happy ranking in Eastern football. The crush around the Yale ticket offices was so great today that the police reserves came up on the run thinking the freshmen and sophomores were staging a riot.

Last Big Three Clash.

Possibly the explanation lies in the fact that this will be the last Big Three game for some time—unless, of course, the Harvard-Princeton spat is satisfactorily adjusted by the League of Nations or some other impartial body.

It is entirely possible that the great crush for tickets is caused by the eagerness of so many persons to be in at the death of the Big Three. One can easily imagine that in years to come the spectators of tomorrow's final will be highly envied. When the progeny inquires, "What did you do in the great war, papa?" the parent can reply, "Not much, son; but I saw the last Big Three game."

Yale was a snappy 10-to-8 favorite as this was written. At these odds there was not much betting. A few dormitory wagers were laid by the feverish undergrads, but Harvard showed a strange reluctance to advance any considerable amount of cash in support of the boys in Crimson.

Princeton having walked away with the Big Three title, there is not much left for Yale and Harvard to shoot at. Time was when this game was the all-important battle in deciding the mythical championship of the nation at large. Later it simmered down to a fight for the title of the New England States, but in this unhappy year it looks as if the only championship at stake is that of New Haven and Cambridge.

Still, the eager hordes of ticket buyers surge up to the windows to lay down $5 for a ticket. Tradition is a wonderful thing. There is no other sport in which two losers could sell out the house. Imagine two boxers with four previous knockouts drawing 78,000 persons in any State in the Union.

Persons who are experts in such matters said they had never seen such a demand for tickets. Even the local politicians were left out in the cold. It was very hard to get two tickets together. The situation was reminiscent of the time when President Taft, desiring two seats for his personal use, was accommodated with one on one side of the aisle and one on the other side.

The hotels were sold out months ago and the streets are full of visitors looking for lodgings. However, the bulk of the crowd will arrive here tomorrow. The New Haven Railroad will run ninety-two special trains, consisting of 916 cars. A local statistical expert has figured out that between 11:46 A. M. and 12:55 P. M. a train will arrive in the New Haven station on the average of every two minutes and ten seconds.

Mr. Tarr, the head of the local Weather Bureau, came out tonight with a flat prediction that it would be cloudy and colder tomorrow. Without any sun to temper the frigidity, it looks like a tough day for those who are not appropriately accoutred in fur coats, wool socks and foot warmers.

On the morrow Yale will pay its tribute to its greatest football son, Walter Camp. Almost every college in the country has held ceremonies in honor of the father of football, and now Yale will come forward to provide the climax.

Between the halves a bugler will blow taps from a distant post in the Bowl. Following that the Yale and Harvard bands, massed as one, will play the Yale alma mater song, "Bright College Years."

Yale Regulars Are Ready.

On the basis of the comparative showing against Princeton, Yale is favored to win from the Crimson host of Arnold Horween. The biggest thing in the Elis' favor is that they will start with their regular line-up for the first time since the Dartmouth game. Noble and Kline, who are Tad Jones's best bets, will start the game, and both are said to be in tip-top condition.

The other halfback position on the Blue eleven apparently has been won by Foote, although there is still some doubt about this particular assignment. Hoben was supposed to have clinched the job until yesterday, when Foote bounced to the front. Goodwine, Holabird and Failing are other stalwarts who may see a lot of action in this position.

Following the hearty licking at the hands of Brown, Coach Horween of Harvard gave his team an enthusiastic shakeup. At left end Rudman, who has been one of the humble scrubs during most of his football career, has edged past his competitors to win the starting assignment in the big game. Stewart, who is starting at right guard in place of Kilgour, also has been decorating the scrubs most of this season.

The Harvard back field situation is a bit more uncertain. The prospect tonight was that Al Miller, the 205-pound sprinter, would not be one of those present when the whistle blows at 2 P. M. Miller was an immense disappointment against Princeton, and Horween is likely to replace him with Eben Clark.

It also appears that the Crimson quarterback, Mr. Putnam, is out of luck so far as the Yale game is concerned. After his poor showing against Princeton, Mr. Putnam was supplanted by Jake Stafford, a field general of greater experience and more steadiness, although not as brilliant.

Crimson Line Is Better.

The consensus of opinion among the assembled experts is that Harvard has the better line, while Yale has something of an edge in the back field. Offensively, the Crimson line is one of the best in the country, but whether it can stand up under the punishing attack on the Yale back field is another question. It will be remembered that the defensive weakness of the Harvard line was the most distressing feature of the Princeton game.

With Bunnell, Kline and Foote all hitting on six cylinders, Yale will put on fully as strong an offensive as Princeton. If the Cambridge forwards couldn't cope with the Tigers, what will they do against the slashing tactics of the Blue backfield?

If Yale is weak at the ends, as the critics allege, Harvard is likely to shoot some of its fast backs at the flanks, Guarnaccia, French and Miller in particular.

Harvard's advantage in the line is offset by Yale's superiority in the backfield, where Tad Jones has a number of swift and shifty lads. Furthermore, the Blue's passing game is a shade better than Harvard's. The Crimson has been weak against the air attack all season, and Jones is likely to open up a new bag of tricks in this department tomorrow.

The biggest factor against Harvard is a lack of offensive drive. All season the backfield has been a disappointment, although the line is a fast charging outfit. Harvard's only hope is to sift through Yale for at least one touchdown, which might be enough to win.

Harvard Drills in Bowl.

The Harvard squad arrived in town early this afternoon and was taken out to the Bowl for a practice at 2 o'clock. It was a light workout, designed primarily to accustom the athletes to the wind and light conditions in the Bowl.

After the drill the Crimson squad was whisked away to the Hotel Clark at Derby, where the players and coaches will stay overnight.

The Yale workout was the lightest of the season. Tad Jones was convinced that his athletes are keyed up to the concert pitch and need no more work to make them fit for the Crimson enemy. Yale has been beaten by the Army, Brown, Maryland and Princeton. Harvard has met with setbacks at the hands of Geneva, Holy Cross, Brown and Princeton.

The Yale-Harvard series is slightly younger than the Yale-Princeton series. The former began in 1875. Of the forty-four games, Yale has won twenty-three and Harvard fifteen, six being tied. The Crimson hasn't beaten the Elis since 1922 when Doc Jordan's Yale eleven stopped a fast one in the Bowl.

Among the mourners at the deathbed scene of the Big Three will be the members of the Princeton team, winners of the last Big Three title.

Both Yale and Harvard Teams Have Had Disastrous Season

Both the Yale and Harvard elevens already have met defeat at the hands of Princeton in their only Big Three starts, and in their other games neither eleven has met with much success. The Blue has lost its last four starts, three being scoreless defeats. Harvard, like Yale, has lost four games, two at the start of the season and the final two. Both have lost to Brown and each has scored a victory over Dartmouth. Success for either eleven today will, in a measure, brighten a disastrous season. The season's records for the elevens follow:

YALE AND HARVARD RESERVES PLAY TIE

Second Elevens Battle to a Scoreless Draw in Game at New Haven.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—The Yale and Harvard second elevens fought a scoreless tie on Yale Field this afternoon as a curtain raiser to the Yale-Harvard varsity game tomorrow. The slippery field made long runs difficult and was the main reason for the inability of both teams to score. Neither eleven reached the other's 10-yard line, each team had three punts blocked.

Clyde Bingham, brother of Bill Bingham, Harvard Athletic Director, tackle for Yale, was the chief obstacle in the path of Harvard's efforts to score, while Hubbard's line plunging and Loud's passing were the ground-gaining features of the Yale play. Minor and Owen played well for Harvard.

The line-up:

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 19.—The announcement was made here tonight that a two-year contract had been agreed upon by Lafayette and West Virginia University, which provides that the Lafayette eleven will play at Mountaineer Field here on Oct. 15 next, and West Virginia will go to Easton to play in 1928.

It was also announced here tonight that Pittsburgh would be played by West Virginia on Oct. 8 next year at Pittsburgh.

CROWLEY INCLINED TO FAVOR THE ELIS

Looks for Close, Hard Battle Against Harvard With Backs Giving Yale the Edge.

ALSO FAVORS N. Y. U. TEAM

By CHARLES F. CROWLEY,
Head Columbia Football Coach.

Yale vs. Harvard, New York University vs. Nebraska, Minnesota vs. Michigan and Stanford vs. California. These are the four games that stand out today as the football season approaches its conclusion, with many of the leaders resting in preparation for their final appearance on Thanksgiving Day.

There is not much variety to the day's program, but the interest that is wrapped up in these four games, at least for the partisans of the teams concerned, is at a fever pitch.

Three of the four will have an important bearing upon the selection of sectional champions, while the Yale-Harvard game, in spite of the numerous defeats suffered by the two teams, still remains one of the greatest spectacles of the season and will probably draw as large a gathering as ever saw the Blue and the Crimson come to grips.

Test for N. Y. U.

New York University, with eight victories to its credit in as many starts, invades Nebraska for its biggest test of the season—biggest not because Nebraska is necessarily better than any team the Violet has met, but because Coach Meehan's team will be playing far from home against a team that is known for the size and ruggedness of its players and for the consistency with which it turns out strong machines.

Michigan, undefeated in Western Conference play, goes up against a powerful Minnesota eleven for the second time of the season, faced with the necessity of winning in order to earn at least a tie for first place in the Conference standing. The Wolverines gained a decisive victory over the Gophers in their first meeting early in the season, but since that time Minnesota has improved greatly and Michigan looks for one of its hardest struggles of the year.

While Michigan is playing Minnesota, Northwestern, which also has been unbeaten in the Conference, faces an easier assignment against Iowa and has the better chance of the two of keeping its slate clean and so to win the title.

Out on the Pacific Coast those two great rivals, Stanford and California, meet in their annual classic before a gathering of 90,000 spectators. Stanford, unbeaten and with a victory to its credit by the margin of a point over Southern California, will have first claim on the sectional title if it wins today, and there does not appear to be much chance of Glenn Warner's team losing, for California has had a disastrous season and has lost five of eight games.

There is no title involved in the meeting between Yale and Harvard, neither sectional nor Big Three, for Princeton has beaten both of them. But when the Blue and the Crimson clash everything else is forgotten. Ten or fifteen years from now it will mean very little to the members of the two teams how they fared against any one else. The one question that will be asked of them is, "How did you come out against Yale?" or "How did you come out against Harvard?"

Expects Close Battle.

A victory in this game means more than success during the rest of the season, and for that reason a hard, bitterly fought game may be looked for today, regardless of the performances of the two teams to date.

In New York the big attraction this afternoon is the Georgetown-Fordham game at the Polo Grounds. Georgetown is clearly the favorite, with a victory to its credit over Syracuse and the record of its great stand against Navy. But in spite of the more impressive showing of Lou Little's team, Fordham can be counted on to make a desperate fight, particularly with the memory of last year's defeat in mind. Two years ago Georgetown was the big favorite and Fordham won, and while I don't look for any such upset today, I do not think that the score will be top heavy.

Brown and Lafayette, two of the Eastern teams which have won all of their games, face New Hampshire and Lehigh, respectively, and neither is expected to have any great difficulty, although New Hampshire defeated Maine, while Lehigh always makes its strongest fight against its traditional rival from Easton. Boston College, which was tied by Haskell last week, should have no trouble with Providence, while Holy Cross, tied by Fordham, has nothing to fear from Boston University.

Army will have a light workout in preparation for the Navy game with Ursinus, while Syracuse will meet Niagara. Notre Dame's reserves should be good enough to win from Drake. Illinois will be in for a rough day with Ohio State, which lost to Michigan by only a point, and Southern California should win by a comfortable margin from Idaho.

Harvard-Yale Seems Even.

HARVARD-YALE—Odds mean very little in a Harvard-Yale game and there does not seem to be any reason for offering any on either team today. Harvard appears to have the greater strength in the line, while Yale's backs look the better.

A team that can pass and that has fleet runners for the wide sweeps such as Noble, Goodwine, McGuigle, Foote, Holabird and Hoben, carries a greater threat on the attack than does Harvard, whose offense has not been as versatile as that shown by Tad Jones's team against Princeton.

Yale has been mainly a threat so far, and little more, except against Dartmouth, for it has failed to make the most of its opportunities, but nevertheless its backs are dangerous if given a chance and the Harvard ends and tackles will have to be on their job.

It can be said that Harvard is not worrying about its tackles, for in Pratt and Coady it has two of the strongest in the East, and its ends have shown up better than Yale's. Against Brown they perhaps played too close in and so were circled, but Horween and Carney can be depended upon to teach them their business against Yale.

I do not look for Yale to make much headway through the centre of the Harvard line. Cornsweet of Brown, as powerful a plunger as he is, could not make any, and it remains to be seen whether Kline can do any better.

Harvard has used straight football almost entirely on the attack, but with Guarnaccia back in shape and Eben Clark showing so much promise the Crimson may spring something new on the Elis today. If pressed for a decision, I should perhaps lean to Yale, but I look for a close, bitterly contested game without much scoring on either side.

N. Y. U. Has Best Record.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY-NEBRASKA—Of the two teams N. Y. U. has the better record. In defeating such teams as Carnegie Tech and Davis and Elkins, the Violet has given unmistakable evidence of the power of its offense. It has not made the most of this power at all times, but it is there and if the players are not troubled with nervousness and give their best N. Y. U. should win.

The Violet line, with Lassman, Skudin and Bunyan standing out, has yielded very little ground in its eight games, and Nebraska has not shown a particularly impressive attack. The size of the Cornhuskers and the fact that they are playing on their own field will be to their advantage, but if Coach Meehan's team plays the game it is capable of playing it should win.

GEORGETOWN-FORDHAM—Georgetown has one of the biggest lines in the East, two outstanding ends in Waite and McGrath and a hard-hitting back field. In every department of the game it appears to have the edge over Fordham, which has met with more than its usual number of reversals this year. Nevertheless, Frank Gargan's team showed how much fighting spirit can do when it held the unbeaten Holy Cross team to a tie, and I look for it to play its strongest game of the season today.

It is doubtful whether its strongest will be good enough to win, but the team is in fine physical shape and with Buckley, perhaps the most dangerous carrier on the team, back in the line-up, Fordham is likely to make a better showing than it did last year. It will be greatly to the credit of the Maroon if it holds this powerful Georgetown eleven to a small score.

Lafayette Is Favored.

LAFAYETTE-LEHIGH—Lehigh has won only one game this season, while Lafayette has beaten all comers. Herb McCracken's strong eleven is the decided favorite, but here again the fighting spirit of a team against its traditional rival is likely to have a bearing on the outcome.

Lehigh showed decided improvement in defeating Rutgers last week and every man on the team will be out to redeem as much as possible a season that has been one of the most disastrous in years for the Bethlehem school. Lafayette should win unquestionably, but not by a top-heavy score.

MINNESOTA-MICHIGAN — Meeting Notre Dame in the second game of the season, Minnesota had hardly got over the effects of its 20-7 defeat in that game when it met Michigan the following week and went down to 20-0. Since that time Coach Spears's team has followed a normal course of development and each week has found it a stronger team.

In its last two games it defeated Iowa, 41-0, and Butler, 81-0. Neither of these two teams, of course, furnished very strong opposition, but the size of the scores shows the strength of the Minnesota offense.

Michigan, aside from its defeat by Navy, has won all of its games, and after its return from Annapolis scored an overwhelming victory over Wisconsin at 37-0. Last week it defeated the strong Ohio State team by one point. With Friedman, Gilbert and Molenda in the back field and Oosterbaan and Flora on the ends, Yost's team is one of the strongest in the country in spite of its defeat by Navy. But it will have a harder time today against Minnesota than it did in the first game.

In Joesting and Almquist the Gophers have two of the best backs in the Conference, and the former has been performing in such brilliant style that he looks like one of the best line smashers in the country. I favor Michigan by a narrow margin, but would not be surprised if Minnesota won.

Northwestern on Top.

NORTHWESTERN-IOWA — According to Notre Dame men, Northwestern gave them a harder battle than did the Army. Beaten only by Rockne's team, the Purple must be placed well up near the front in any ranking of the teams. In Baker it has one of the outstanding triple threats of the country, and Lewis and Gustafson are also dangerous carriers. Northwestern should win by a comfortable margin today.

STANFORD - CALIFORNIA — California, one of the strongest teams on the Coast for years, is experiencing one of those lean years that every college must expect now and then. For five successive weeks the Bears went down in defeat before they were able to break their losing streak last Saturday against Nevada.

Stanford, on the other hand, has one of the outstanding teams of the country, and there appears to be little hope for California today. The Bears may be expected to make their best fight of the year, for the game with Stanford is one of those rivalries that arouse the contestants to their greatest efforts, but Stanford looks much too strong for them.

FORDHAM TO FIGHT GAME THROUGH AIR

GRAHAM TO END CAREER

Captain Leary Also to Play His Last Game for the Maroon—Blue and Grey Team Strong.

Fordham University's football team, buffeted in a storm of heavy opposition all season, has the opportunity of making a success of its somewhat checkered campaign at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The Maroon will meet its ancient rival, Georgetown, in the fourteenth game of the traditional series and the only college game on a New York gridiron today. The opening kick-off will take place at 2:30 o'clock.

Although there is no Tony Plansky or Jack Hagerty to bother Frank Gargan's eleven, which was turned back by the Blue and Gray for the Maroon's only defeat last season, mainly through the efforts of these two, Fordham will face one of the strongest elevens that has come out of Washington in late years. Lou Little has built up a rush line this season which ranks with the best in the East.

Georgetown's record has been far more impressive than Fordham's, and on this score it has been made the favorite. Georgetown has lost two games. The losses were at the hands of West Virginia, 13-10, and Navy last Saturday by the close score of 10-7. The Blue and Gray numbers Syracuse among its victims and has a tie with Pittsburgh. Little's team has compiled the third highest total score in the country, with 250 points, ranking only behind Lafayette and Minnesota.

Stars to End Careers.

While Fordham has won only three games and tied one, the Maroon cohorts are confident of victory. Coach Gargan is banking on an accurate forward-passing game to offset Georgetown's air-tight defense against running plays, and he is of the opinion that his aerial attack will reach its peak against the Hilltoppers.

Two of the Maroons' shining lights for the past few seasons will conclude their college careers today. Zev Graham and Captain Tom Leary, quarterback and end, respectively, are to play their final game for Fordham and it is on their shoulders that Maroon adherents are placing a good part of the burden of downing the Washingtonians.

The Blue and Gray will have a veritable giant in its line-up in the person of Babe Connaughton, a 230-pound guard who adds a fair amount of speed to his bulk. It will also have Jerry Thompson in the back field, said to be one of the fastest men on the gridiron. In 1924 he raced Charley Paddock to a world's record in the 250-yard dash and has one of the long runs of the season to his credit, racing 99 yards to a touchdown against Lebanon Valley after a kick-off.

To Have Regular Line-up.

For the first time this season Fordham will be able to throw all of its strength into the game. Ralph Buckley, ailing halfback, will get into action for the second time this year, while the remainder of the squad has reached the height of physical condition.

Coach Little will start the same line-up which opposed Syracuse and Navy. His back field, composed of Thompson, Nork, O'Neil and Gormley, is said to be the equal of last year's ball carriers, who romped through the Maroon for a 27-0 victory.

The probable line-up:

SPINELLA'S FIVE WINS.

Advances Into Second Place in American National Bowling.

Barney Spinella's five moved into second place in the American National Bowling tournament by winning three games from the Orpheum team at Thum's last night. The Spinella combination rolled 968, 1,006 and 966, while the Orpheum team tallied 942, 901 and 916.

J. Broedell of the Spinella outfit established the high average record of the tournament by making 218 2-3 points in three games.

Haverford Wins at Soccer.

Leary and Graham Will Play 34th in Row for Fordham

Captain Tom Leary and Zev Graham, stars on the Fordham football team, which closes its season this afternoon against Georgetown at the Polo Grounds, in playing their final game for the Maroon will participate in their thirty-fourth consecutive contest. Graham, the Maroon's scintillating quarterback, has established somewhat of a record in that he has never had to call for a time-out because of an injury. Leary, star end, has never been hurt seriously, while neither has missed many practice sessions during their gridiron careers.

RUTGERS CRIPPLED FOR FINAL BATTLE

3 Regular Backs and 1 Lineman Will Be Unable to Face Swarthmore Today.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 19.—A crippled Rutgers team will meet Swarthmore in the final game of the season here tomorrow afternoon. Al Brown, veteran centre; Ozzie Nelson, quarterback, and Irwin and Prelets, first string fullbacks, will be unable to play because of injuries. Bill Mason, substitute centre, has an infected arm and will not start, his place being filled by Chick Fox, a letter man last year, who has taken part in only a few games this season.

Coach Jack Wallace has shifted Hibbs from guard to fullback, and has moved Captain Hanf from end to halfback in an effort to strengthen the Scarlet's running attack. Hibbs, who started the season at centre, had considerable experience in the back field last year and will take care of the passing and punting in tomorrow's game. Tex Rosen will start at quarterback and Wild Bill Dalton, another converted lineman, will complete the back field. This will give Rutgers an entire new combination behind the line, but injuries to Prelets and Irwin have allowed the coaches no alternative.

The probable line-up:

CANADIANS HERE TODAY.

Ulster United Soccer Team Will Play the Wanderers.

Ulster United, soccer champion of Canada for the second year in succession and a team that has appeared quite frequently in the metropolitan area, will be seen in action at Ebbets Field this afternoon against the Brooklyn Wanderers of the American Soccer League. The Canadians will present their strongest line-up, the one that carried the club to the Dominion title.

Due to the hard games of last week and the battle tomorrow with the Indiana Flooring eleven, the Wanderers have been forced to make a few shifts in their line-up, but these changes have not reduced their strength in the least and the Canadians will be in for a stiff battle this afternoon. There will be a preliminary game between Manual Training High School and Erasmus Hall High School. This game will start at 1:30 and the major contest is expected to go on at 3. Tom Cunningham will referee the international battle.

The probable line-up:

SHETTSLINE QUITS PHILLIES

Veteran Business Manager Ends 43 Years of Service With Club.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19 (AP).—William J. Shettsline, business manager of the Philadelphia National League baseball club, and one of the oldest executives in the National League in point of service, has resigned, it became known today. Shettsline, associated with the club since its organization in 1883, has held positions ranging from office boy to president.

One of the few remaining pioneers of baseball still in harness, Shettsline, who has been acting as business manager since 1909, entered the National League before President John A. Heydler or any of the eight club owners. In 1896 he headed a team which had as members such stars as Delehanty, Lajoie, Tuck Turner, Lave Cross and Jack Clemments.

NATIONALS TO MEET HERE.

President Heydler Switches Session From Chicago for Dec. 14, 15.

John A. Heydler, President of the National League, yesterday made the announcement that the annual National League meeting would be held in this city on Dec. 14 and 15, thus changing a previous announcement that the annual session would be held in Chicago on the same dates. Mr. Heydler explained that the National League constitution called for the holding of the annual meeting in this city unless, by unanimous consent, the club owners agreed to a switch to some other city, as was done two years ago at the request of Baseball Commissioner Landis, who desired to have the meeting called for Chicago.

Matsuyama to Play Cutler.

Kinrey Matsuyama, who will defend his national junior 18.2 balkline title against Ary Bos in Philadelphia the latter part of this month, will meet Albert G. Cutler, a former junior champion, in a 3,600-point match which will start at the Claridge Academy on Monday afternoon.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 19.—New York University's last barrier to classification as one of the few undefeated football teams of the country will be faced here tomorrow afternoon when the New Yorkers clash with Nebraska.

The game will be the last of the season for New York University, which has thus far scored eight victories. Twenty thousand spectators are expected to see the contest despite the cold weather which greeted the Easterners on their arrival here this morning. Led by Chick Meehan, Coach, the twenty-seven men in the squad detrained about an hour late, due to heavy snows in Illinois and Iowa.

All through the night the train went West through a snow storm, but the sun came out as it crossed the Missouri River. No snow has fallen here and the forecast is for clear weather tomorrow.

Temperature 15 Above Zero.

After lunch Meehan worked the men out in the Nebraska Stadium despite the fifteen above zero temperature, the coldest of the season here. All the players are in tip-top shape and had no difficulty in getting back the feel of a football. The practice was perfunctory as was that of the Cornhuskers, who followed the Violet on the gridiron.

Both teams are confident of victory, although local betting is heavily in favor of the home team. The folks out here regard the defeat of Carnegie Tech as the biggest feather in the Violet cap and belittle the visitors' 21 to 0 victory over Tulane, which played a scoreless tie with Missouri, the only eleven to beat Nebraska this season.

A warm welcome was accorded the New Yorkers throughout the day. Automobiles in town were plastered with big stickers in violet reading, "Welcome West, New York."

The Nebraska students staged a torchlight procession in honor of the Violet team tonight and serenaded the visitors with N. Y. U. songs in front of the Cornhusker Hotel, where the team is stopping. What the visitors lacked in harmony they made up in warmth of spirit. Several persons took time to congratulate the team on its showing to date.

That interest in the game is unprecedented was shown by a statement from J. B. Pemberton, City Superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who said today that more words would be filed out of the Cornhusker Stadium on tomorrow's game than on any previous sporting event held here. Pemberton said the requirements of New York and Chicago papers were such that the total number of words filed would far exceed that for any of the Conference clashes or Notre Dame games.

N. Y. U. Squad at Theatre.

Although under the pressure of keeping a winning streak intact, none of the N. Y. U. players showed any strain. After dinner they went to a theatre and retired soon after. The game means a great deal to New York University, for it has never had a football team that was untied and undefeated. The nearest it came was in 1909, when the Violet won all of its games save one contest in which Lehigh tied it.

Meehan himself would make no prediction of the outcome, contenting himself with repeating a previous statement that "Nebraska will at least know it has been in a football game." Coach Bearg of Nebraska was equally modest, praising the early season showing of N. Y. U. He has a further worry, for the Cornhuskers go West to conclude their season against the University of Washington on Thanksgiving Day.

The first teams of both universities will be started tomorrow, according to present advices. Meehan will use Captain Briante, Conner, Roberts and Strong in the back field at the outset against Stephens, Brown, Presnell and Oehlrich. There is little to choose between these two back fields from the standpoint of weight. Whatever advantage there is is in favor of Nebraska. Meehan, however, feels that his team has a slight edge in the matter of speed.

The Cornhusker line is heavier than the New York University line, although the weight is equalized somewhat by the use of Ashton in place of Loss at end. Meehan is again going to try out Ashton, who played first string end in the Tulane and Rutgers games, largely because of his greater weight and the better showing he has been making recently. Lassman, giant Violet tackle, at 208 outweighs any man in the opposing line, which, however, includes several 190-pounders.

Alumni Enthusiastic.

One of the most interesting developments of the trip here, which, incidentally, is the longest ever taken by a New York University team, has been the rallying of the hitherto unheard of Western alumni of N. Y. U. From Chicago, Des Moines and Omaha these old grads have come to the train at unearthly hours to wish the team luck. About fifteen of them stayed aboard, carried away by their enthusiasm.

One from Chicago, who graduated about ten years ago and has been in the West since that time, said:

"Gosh, I didn't know N. Y. U. was still going until you got this team. It's been the first mention of the school in the Chicago papers since I've been out here."

Coach Meehan himself is no stranger to the West nor to Nebraska. He was quarterback on the Syracuse eleven that came West and defeated Montana, Occidental and the Oregon Aggies in 1915.

Alexander Hamilton Eleven Beaten by James Monroe High; Friends Academy Wins

JAMES MONROE HIGH TRIUMPHS BY 20-0

FRIENDS ACADEMY WINS

Crushes Woodmere, 35 to 0, as Plumb Leads Attack With Four Touchdowns.

With its second team, which had started the game, unable to score against the Alexander Hamilton eleven, James Monroe High School placed its first combination on the field in the second period and the regulars romped away with a 20-to-0 victory at Dyckman Oval yesterday afternoon.

With the first team in action, Monroe speedily put over a touchdown. The drive down field ended with Valitsky skirting the Hamilton end for the first touchdown of the game. Militano kicked the goal. After this tally Hamilton stiffened considerably and held Monroe for the rest of the period.

In the third period Hamilton again displayed defensive strength and held its opponents scoreless, but in the final quarter another drive by the Monroe cohorts netted a pair of touchdowns. Mooney, the regular quarterback, plunged through the Hamilton line and, eluding the entire enemy team, ran 75 yards for a touchdown. A short while later Valitsky rounded the Hamilton end for 10 yards and the final score of the day.

Woodmere Eleven Beaten.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODMERE, L. I., Nov. 19.—A whirlwind attack in the final half after a scoreless two first periods enabled the Friends Academy to defeat the Woodmere Academy here this afternoon, 35-0. Plumb, the visiting fullback, was the star of the game, tallying all except six of Friends' points.

Woodmere showed its best form in the first half when it kept the visitors away from the goal line. In the third quarter, however, the Friends eleven worked the ball down the field to the 5-yard line and Gosman plunged over for the first tally of the game. Plumb kicked the goal. The score remained at 7—0 until the final period when Plumb started off on a scoring spree.

While on the 30-yard line Gosman tossed him a 10-yard forward and Plumb sprinted the remaining 20 for a touchdown. Three more times in succession was the play repeated. Plumb kicked all four goals after his touchdowns.

4 BROWN RESERVES IN STARTING LINE-UP

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 19.—Brown's varsity football team, which will meet New Hampshire tomorrow and Colgate Thursday, was let off with a light practice this afternoon. The squad reported at the clubhouse and then watched the freshman team defeat Roxbury School, 13 to 0.

After the game Coach D. O. McLaughry put the team through a thirty-minute signal drill on the baseball field, followed by another of fifteen minutes behind closed gates on Andrews Field.

While McLaughry has kept the original eleven intact in all signal drills, he has announced that four substitutes will start the New Hampshire game. They are Walter Trefethen, back, who will replace Eddie Lawrence; Bill Miller and Charles Provonchee, tackles, who will substitute for Ed Kevorkian and Paul Hodge, and Harry Cornsweet, who will replace Orland Smith. The latter is likely to be held on the bench throughout the game as he has developed a slight sorness in one leg and with the all-important Colgate contest just ahead, McLaughry intends to take no chances with his regulars.

Edes, substitute halfback, who turned Harvard's end for a touchdown at Cambridge, also will be kept out as he is too light to stand much battering and may be needed in the Thanksgiving Day contest.

New Hampshire gave Brown a great battle last year, McLaughry has been drilling his varsity team against the scrubs, who have been equipped with the New Hampshire plays. A short dummy scrimmage was held as the final touch to today's practice to refresh the team in the defense it will employ tomorrow.

St. Jean's best run was 4. In the evening engagement Copulos trimmphed, 50 to 27, in forty-two innings. Copulos had runs of 7 and 8, while St. Jean had a best run of 3.

BUTTERFIELD LOSES QUARTERBACK POST

Dobie Says He Will Not Pilot Cornell Against Penn, Though He May Play.

Spscial to Ths New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 19.—That Victor Butterfield will not direct the Cornell football team against Pennsylvania next Thursday was the statement of Coach Gil Dohie today. Dobie did not say that Butterfield, who has been playing quarterback, would not be in the varsity line-up, but he declared that he would have nothing to do with the direction. Butterfield's selection of plays in the Dartmouth game did not please Dohie at all. Cornell's plays were not sufficiently diversified, he said.

Who will succeed Butterfield as field general has not been disclosed, but it is generally assumed that Dutch Hoekelmann will have the call. Henry Isaly and George Threfts are also under consideration, but in the drill today it was Hoekelman who piloted the team.

This is Hoekelmann's last year in the university, his first as a regular on the varsity team, and it has remained for the last three weeks of the season to reveal his real ability. Even Dobie has nothing but praise for his recent form in the line-up.

In today's dummy scrimmage were Wickham and Schoales, ends; Anderson and vans, tackles; Carey and Munns, guards; Rapuano, centre, and Hoekelmann, Balderston, Beck and Molinet in the back field. Butterfield replaced Beck toward the end of drill and Gassner played for Molinet.

COLGATE MISSES STAR BACK

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 19.—With only three more practice sessions before the squad leaves for Providence Tuesday, the Colgate line-up is still without its full strength. Duke Saughnessy's injury does not seem to be coming around as fast as the Maroon mentors had hoped, and Ray Vaughn remains at the fullback berth.

Shaughnessy was in uniform this afternoon and took part in the signal drill for a few minutes, but Vaughn worked in the back field during the greater part of the practice.

If Shaughnessy does not get in shape within the next three days Colgate's whole plan of attack for the Brown game will be changed, since he is the big siege-gun of the Maroon line offensive. In the event that Shaughnessy is lost, Coach Hauser has developed a running attack with Vaughn and Smith as the ball carriers. This would leave Mehler and Brewer as the other two men of the carry on the passing and end runs.

Vargas Beats Hammer, 500-466.

Juan Jacinto Vargas and Herbert Hammer shared honors in the final block of their 18.2 balkline contest at Lawler Brothers' Brooklyn Academy 250 to 250, in nineteen innings last night, but Vargas won the match, 500 to 466. Vargas's high run was 56, unfinished, and Hammer's 54. Vargas won the first block, 250 to 216.

LAFAYETTE ON EDGE FOR LEHIGH BATTLE

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 19.—The Lafayette football squad is resting tonight on the shores of Saylor's Lake, in Monroe County, awaiting the sixtieth clash with Lehigh here tomorrow. The players left for the mountains after a brief practice this afternoon on the new stadium field. Chill winds that threatened to send the temperature down below freezing tonight caused the players to run through the short workout with plenty of snap and enthusiasm.

There is no sign of overconfidence among the Maroon players. The team is in splendid physical condition and anticipates a hard battle in spite of Lehigh's poor record. Lehigh has not defeated Lafayette on the gridiron in the last seven years. In the fifty-nine games between the rival colleges Lafayette has been the victor on thirty-four occasions. Lehigh has won twenty-three contests while only two ended in a deadlock. With practically every seat in Lafayette's new stadium sold, the largest crowd ever to see the game is assured.

The probable line-up:

LAFAYETTE.		LEHIGH.
Grube	L. E.	Burke
Highberger	L. T.	Littell
Warren	L. G.	Harmon
Kressler	R. G.	Cancillo
Thompson	C.	Wilson

Lehigh Ready for Old Rivals.

Spscial to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 19.—An attitude of grim determination prevails around the campus at Lehigh University tonight, the eve of the traditional combat between Lehigh and Lafayette, which takes place on March Field, Easton, tomorrow afternoon. Pep meetings, both public and private, were carried on throughout the city, with the biggest gathering in Taylor Gymnasium, where the students held the annual smoker. At a near-by theatre the alumni were having a smoker of their own.

Head Coach Percy Wendell said tonight that the Lehigh team "is fit and hopes to win."

Several living members of Lehigh University's first football team, established in 1884, were honored here tonight by the Lehigh Alumni Honor Club. Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Board of Trustees of Lehigh, presided at the dinner. Each of the surviving members present tonight received a gold football.

Interesting reminiscences were recalled by Jacob S. Robeson, who was captain of the first Lehigh team, and by George H. Nellson, who was the first quarterback. The other members of the original team who were present were Clarence M. Tolman of New York City, Dr. Henry W. Frauenthal, prominent surgeon of New York City, S. Smith of this city, John W. Ledoux, Philadelphia; D. K. Nicholson, Rankin, N. J., and Dr. R. W. Wilson.

Strangler Lewis Must Decide On Match or Forfeit $5,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19 (AP).—Ed (Strangler Lewis has been given until Monday in which to notify the State Athletic Commission whether or not he intends to wrestle Joe Stecher here Dec. 1 to settle the claims of the two to the heavyweight wrestling title. If he fails to reach a decision regarding the match by that time, Promoter Lou Daro said he would ask permission of Seth Strelinger, Chairman of the Athletic Commission, to prepare a substitute match which would involve the loss by Lewis of his $5,000 forfeit. The match, originally set for Oct. 6, was postponed when Lewis injured his arm.

COLUMBIA LINEMEN HOLD BUSY SESSION

Regular Backs Excused From Heavy Work, but Forwards Drill in Scrimmage.

The first-string Columbia back field was excused from participation in ..y work at Baker Field yesterday, but the regular line and the remainder of the squad were sent through an intensive session. With four more practices before the final game of the season, Coach Crowley will have his entire squad out next week to wind up preparations for the Thanksgiving Day game with Syracuse at the Polo Grounds.

In yesterday's practice the regular line took part in a 15-minnte scrimmage with members of the second and third elevens. The back field that replaced the regular combination was made up of Kumpf, Thorsland, Matthews and Farrell. Both teams took their turn on offense and defense, but no touchdowns were scored.

The backs came in for a half hour of individual instruction from Coaches Crowley and Murray, brushing up on passing, running and interfering. Line Coach Depler took the linemen under his supervision and had them practice charging and checking, with emphasis being placed on offensive charging.

Preceding this workout the centres, ends and backs, in skeleton formation, had a half hour drill in going through their assignments. Perfecting the offense and defense was stressed in a one-hour dummy scrimmage. The squad will have a workout today, its first Saturday drill since early in September.

NAVY TO USE RESERVES.

Regulars May Also Play for a While Against Loyola Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 19.—Coach Ingram will start a strong team of Navy Reserves against Loyola here tomorrow and expects to use his regulars for a brief time during a portion of the game. He will also use as many of the varsity substitutes as he can.

Much interest will be taken in the work of Shapley tomorrow. He now is in fine shape and running brilliantly. His work tomorrow is likely to determine whether he will be used against the Army.

200,000 WILL SEE BIG TEN RACE END

FIRST PLACE TIE POSSIBLE

Victories or Defeats for Both Michigan and Northwestern Would Leave Them to Share Honors.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (AP).—Two hundred thousand persons will see the Western Conference football season of 1926 roll into history tomorrow, and with an eye to dramatic values the climax of the campaign has been saved for the closing act.

Michigan and Northwestern, playing the leads in the Conference spotlight, will know by nightfall tomorrow whether they share the championship jointly or whether one shall sport the title alone. Each team has won four Conference games and is unbeaten by a Big Ten foe.

If the Wolverines crush Minnesota and Northwestern conquers Iowa, honors will be divided, and if both teams should lose they will still share the highest percentage. However, if either Minnesota or Iowa should spring an upset while the other is losing, one of the two unbeaten teams would wear alone the mantle of supremacy.

Minnesota in Form.

Minnesota is more favored than Iowa as a prospective winner, for Iowa has yet to record a Conference victory, while Minnesota has been going great guns since it hit its stride in midseason.

Illinois, Minnesota and Ohio State have in sight nothing better than third place, for those of them that win will have only three victories against one defeat, while defeat would leave either Michigan or Northwestern with four victories and one setback.

Sixty thousand persons will see Michigan and Minnesota at the Gophers' Stadium, and close to 50,000 will see Chicago battle its traditional foe, Wisconsin. Illinois will entertain almost as many more when it confronts the Buckeyes, and whichever team wins will be assured of a tie at least for third place in the Big Ten rating.

20,000 Expected at Iowa.

Twenty thousand will watch Northwestern attempt to win its first Conference title at Iowa, and 15,000 will watch Purdue and Indiana scramble for the Old Oaken Bucket at Lafayette.

Two other games attract Midwestern interest tomorrow. New York University's unbeaten team is at Lincoln, Neb., to clash tomorrow with the Cornhuskers in an important intersectional scrap, and Notre Dame will entertain Drake at South Bend. These games will be played before another 50,000 fans.

YALE'S '91 ELEVEN DINES.

Team That Scored 490 Points and Kept Own Goal Safe Celebrates.

Five members of the Yale University football team of 1891 celebrated that team's thirty-fourth anniversary at a dinner at Town Hall last night. The team, which has been described as the greatest of all time, scored 490 points without having its goal line crossed and used the same men in the Princeton and Harvard games without once making a substitution.

Columbia Victory Decisive.

The victory of Ed Pfister, N. Y. E. H. S., over Joe Spitola of the Astoria K. of C. centre, marked the amateur bouts of the Columbus Council of the K. of C. last night. Still Amateur at Golf, Says Miss Browne, but Waits Ruling

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (AP).—When is a professional an amateur, wonders Mary K. Brown. She has no lament for having turned professional at tennis, but she is among the half-dozen ranking women golfers of the country and hopes her amateur status in that sport will not be impaired. She cites the case of Arnold Stats, who though a professional baseball player, is a golfer of prowess in amateur tournaments. She thinks she ought to have the same right to play professional tennis and still be an amateur on the links, but she says that high officials of the United States Golf Association have thus far been unable to enlighten her.

U. S. RELAY RECORD SET BY SWIMMERS

MISS AMES, 16, SHINES

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Nov. 19.—The establishment of a national record for 600-yard backstroke relay swimming and a brilliant performance by a girl novice were the features of the inaugural water carnival in the 75-foot pool of the newly completed Y. The Misses Elaine Delany, Ethel Hertle and Eileen and Doris O'Mara, swimming in thn order named, engaged in a sanctioned trial against time to set a mark for the recently introduced dorsal team event, each covering 150 yards, and they negotiated the 600 yards in 8:51 1-5, returning the remarkable average of 2:12 4-5.

Miss Katherine Ames, 16 years old, taking part in her first race, surprised by winning a 100-yard handicap in 1:11 3-5, claimed as the fastest time ever made by a nnvice.

16-Year-Old Belgian Flyweight Acclaimed by London Critics

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP).—The 16-year-old Belgian flyweight boxing champion, Petit Biquot, has made a favorable impression here. He was accorded much praise for his work in a bout against Phil Lolosky, who gained only a narrow verdict after fifteen rounds. Critics were impressed by the Belgian's pluck and the fact that he possesses many of the fighting attributes of the famous Jimmy Wilde. Although only 5 feet in height, Biquot is a veritable fire-eater and keeps on battling whether the fight is in his favor or not.

M'ARDLE TO MATCH BOXERS FOR ARENA

Board Approves Appointment by Brooklyn Club, but Niederreiter Will Protest.

Tom McArdle, veteran local fight club matchmaker, yesterday was approved by the State Athletic Commission at its meeting as the matchmaker for the New Broadway Arena, Brooklyn, to succeed Andy Niederreiter, Brooklyn club official of the past several years. Niederreiter, however, intends to protest the action of Promoter Ben Feinberg in engaging McArdle, in the face of a contract Niederreiter claims to hold and which, according to the deposed club official, has two years to run before its expiration.

Niederreiter's case will come up for consideration today at a special meeting of the Matchmakers' Association, of which Niederreiter and McArdle are members. It is understood one of the provisions of the association's constitution is involved in the New Broadway case.

The commission also recognized a change in the management of Frankie Genaro, little Italian flyweight of the west side, who formerly held the American championship and, through the death of Pancho Villa, was recognized as the world's champion. Phil Bernstein of the Bronx, who has managed Genaro's affairs for several years, sold his interest in the ring midget to Harry Kleine "for a consideration." The consideration was said to be $3,500.

Eddie Koven of the New Walker A. C. received a license as matchmaker of the Harlem organization to succeed Tony Martello.

LOUGHMAN REPEATS IN SQUASH TOURNEY

Frank Loughman of the New York A. C., who gained a surprising victory over Hewitt Morgan of the Harvard Club in a Class A team match last week, advanced to the fourth round of the annual Fall scratch squash tennis tournament at the New York A. C. last night by defeating Armin W. Riley of the Princeton Club.

Loughman was slow to find his best form and dropped the opening game, but once he had steadied down in making his terrific smashes he swept aside all opposition and dropped only six points in the last two games. The score was 12—15, 15—2, 15—4.

In the only other match played last night Morris Phinney of the Harvard Club defeated R. E. Hughes of the New York A. C. at 15—7, 15—7. Hughes is No. 1 man on the New York A. C. Class A team and the decisiveness of Phinney's victory was unlooked for.

SYRACUSE ALL SET FOR NIAGARA GAME

Will Use Both Regulars and Reserves in Final Home Contest Today.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A combination eleven of substitutes and regulars will carry the Orange colors of Syracuse against Niagara tomorrow in the final home appearance of the Syracuse team. Ray Jones, clever mud runner of the seconds, will be at quarterback, with Bizik at fullback and Goldman and Clark, regulars, at the halves.

Captain Hanson and Fontaine will be at the ends, Taylor and Newman at the tackles, Levy and Winick at the guards and Nicolello at centre. Archoska, Barbuti, Cook, Carr, Lee and Bayley of the first varsity will not be used unless Niagara proves stronger than expected. Most of the Syracuse players are in good condition, but Coach Reynolds will not run the risk of any more injuries with the Columbia game coming next Thursday.

Tomorrow will be the final appearance in football here of eleven varsity men, including Captain Vic Hanson, who is regarded as the greatest end as well as the greatest all-round athlete ever produced at Syracuse. Hanson is captain of football, basketball and baseball and the leading star in each sport. Tomorrow he will be honored by the student body and townspeople in a ceremony preceding the game.

Syracuse doesn't look for an easy game from Niagara because the Purple cataracts have never played anything but smart and gritty football against the Orange. Coach Pete Dwyer of the Niagara team is a Syracuse resident and he and his team will be guests of the Knights of Columbus at a banquet following the football encounter.

TWO TITLE RUNS ON TODAY.

P. S. A. L. and Private Schools to Stage Cross-Country Events.

The scholastic cross-country course of about two and one-half miles will be the scene this morning of two title hill-and-dale chases which will bring into action the foremost scholastic distance runners of the district. The Public Schools Athletic League will conduct its annual championship chase for the Johnny Overton Trophy and immediately after the P. S. A. L. run the private schools' championship event will be conducted.

A field of twenty-five teams has entered for the P. S. A. L. race. In the private schools event fifteen schools have nominated teams, among them Poly Prep School of Brooklyn, winner of the team title last year. Vincent McArdle of Manhattan Prep, winner of the individual title last year, is entered to defend his honors.

Two Institutions That Never Change

THERE are two fashions in clothes for men, and two only, that never change—one is a BLUE SUIT—the other is a BLUE OVERCOAT — singly, each dominates in its own particular sphere—together, they are an unbeatable combination—and that is true, whether a man has one hundred changes or just one overcoat and a solitary suit of clothes—provided, of course, the tailoring and the fit are what they ought to be—and so far as ours are concerned, you have our assurance that they are.

an even dozen of the tumbles being experienced by Ryan.

Anderson was floored once in the first round, a session in which the Wyoming lad four times deposited Ryan on the ring canvas. But each time Ryan went down in this round and throughout the fight as long as it lasted, the Brooklynite got up fighting and lashing out furiously. The crowd enjoyed the spectacle.

The battle started in wild and woolly fashion. There was a flashing of arms, an exchange of swings, and then almost before the crowd knew it Ryan was on the floor, his eyebrow ripped and bleeding from a roundhouse right swing of Anderson's. The Brooklynite regained his feet at the count of nine only to be rushed around the ring and sent down again under another right to the jaw, this time for a count of seven.

Ryan was floored again, this time for a count of seven, and again for a count of two. Then he amazed the onlookers by dropping Anderson with a left hook to the jaw, but Anderson got up before a count could be started.

There were no knockdowns in the second session, nor in the third, although the lads sent over many healthy swings, but in the fourth round Ryan was floored three times for a count of eight each time, and twice was almost knocked through the ropes. Twice in the fifth Ryan went down for counts, and on another occasion he went down only to bound up like a piece of India rubber. Ryan went down twice more in the sixth session, and then Referee Jim Crowley stopped the battle after one minute and eighteen seconds of the round. Anderson weighed 130 pounds and Ryan 135½.

Les Murray, Australian lightweight, received the decision over Solly Seaman, Harlem fighter, in their ten-round bout. This was an exciting battle, in which Murray made a remarkable closing recovery to carry off a verdict which, while popular with the crowd, found disagreement among the critics. Murray, however, did the best work, winning five rounds, although Seaman also won five rounds.

The Harlem lad's boxing ability against the rushing attack of Murray gave Seaman the first four rounds and the eighth round. Murray won the fifth, the sixth, and with a spectacular rally in which he almost knocked Seaman out under a savage firn of lefts and rights to the jaw and body. Murray also won the ninth and tenth rounds.

Early in the battle it appeared as though Seaman would win by a knockout. He boxed cleverly and countered solidly with left jabs and hooks to the face and right crosses to the head and body. The tide of battle changed after the first half of the fighting, and at the finish Seaman was fortunate to have survived. He was rocked and staggered repeatedly with rights to the jaw, but when threatened with a knockout Seaman held when opportunity offered. Murray weighed 134½ pounds and Seaman weighed 132½ pounds.

In the first bout of the night, scheduled for four rounds, Blas Rodrigues, Mexican flyweight, knocked out Al Truno, Filipino, in one round. A right to the jaw sent Truno down and out after 1 minute 23 seconds.

In an emergency bout of four rounds Walter Babcock, Jersey City lightweight, won the decision over Willie Greenspan of the east side.

FARMING FUNDAMENTALS.

It was a wise and proper thing for the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York to invite Mr. MEREDITH of Iowa, former Secretary of Agriculture, to speak at its annual dinner. Such a move may help a little to dispel the Western notion that people in this part of the country have no interest in the problems, difficulties and complaints of the great farming regions. New Yorkers are not so ignorant or indifferent as Iowans sometimes seem to think. Our bankers, railroad men and leading industrialists are fully aware of the serious nature of the troubles that confront farmers. And they know well that a continuance of prosperity, not to speak of political stability, depends in large measure upon the products of the soil. If those engaged in farming have reason in their grievances, and in the remedies which they urge, it is the business of the East to listen to them sympathetically and with as friendly an understanding as possible. It may be that they mistake their physician, but there can be no donht of their conviction that they are suffering from an economic disease.

In stating the case for the Western farmers, ex-Secretary MEREDITH said little that was new. Like many others, he points to the unwieldy agricultural surplus as the main root of the trouble. There have already been many plans to relieve this. Conflicting bills have been urged in Congress, though none of them has passed. Governor LOWDEN has long been urging schemes of cooperative marketing, and only the other day farmer representatives of twelve States endorsed this and other projects of his. At about the same time the National Grange of Patrons of Husbandry voted 26 to 1—the voting was by States—to approve the issue hy the United States Government of "export debentures for farm products." This is only one of many proposals to have the farm surplus bought np and paid for hy the Federal Treasury. Mr. MEREDITH'S plan is not precisely the same, since he would favor a revolving fund, to which the farmers themselves should contribute. But the aim in all cases is identical—namely, in some way or other to take away from agricultural prices in this country the lowering pressure of an exportable surplus. By whatever door we enter, there is where we always come out.

Mr. MEREDITH'S suggestion of a method of price fixing, and so of stabilizing the business of agriculture, is ingenious, bnt grave doubts must arise whether it could be made to work. In the process of attempting it there would be sucb constant possibilities of political meddling, snch jealonsies on the part of farmers, such rivalries and competitions between different sections of the country, each appealing for special favors for its own particular crops, that the plan might easily get itself into a maze from which it could never be extricated. Moreover, it is doubtful if the great body of farmers could be got to approve, or even to understand, Mr. MEREDITH'S idea. They wonld be certain to object to the contrihutory tax to be laid on themselves. In fact, one of the chief difficulties in the whole perplexing matter has been the inability of farmers' societies, or their elected representatives, to agree what should be done. Agriculture has been pursued for so long on a basis of each farmer for himself, the units of production have beeu so widely scattered, the force of habit has been so strong, that no one should wonder because of the obstacles whioh have till now existed and been so formidable to anything like united action hy our farm population.

Nevertheless, explanations of past failures will not serve as excuses for present inaction. The reality of agricultural discontent cannot be questioned. It is not wholly a pretense blown np by aspiring politicians. Tho facts speak for themselves, and they are stubborn. The working of economic forces, and the adjustments which individual farmers are compelled to make, are all the time bringing about certain improvements in production and marketing. But these processes are slow and naturally appear to farmers to be unnecessarily painful. To many of us the main hope is the agricultural districts, and Congress may come to open their eyes to wbat may be called international solutions of the American farming problem. We have a surplus. Other nations are eager to take it. Tbeir increasing prosperity will make them better customers of ours. But we must allow them to pay for what they buy in the only way open to them. They have recently been counseled by leading American financiers, and by the Secretary of the Treasury himself, to throw down their tariff barriers, as between themselves and against us, and allow commerce to flow as freely as possible to the profit of all concerned. It is not strange that they are asking us to take the medicine which we ourselves prescribe. If it is good for them, it will be good for us. In any event, the United States, in every aspect of its foreign commerce, is now drawn more and more into international relations; and can succeed, whether at home or ahroad, only by ntilizing them in the fullest and most skillful manner.

THE NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE.

In 1925 the first New England Conference was held at Worcester. Representatives of six States discussed the same questions that are before the second conference, which met at Hartford this week: marketing of crops, merchandising of goods, development and transmission of water power. It would be hasty to assume that New England feels herself to be in a bad way. She had sat comfortable and prosperous for generations. Was she falling behind in the manufacturing competition ereated to some extent by her own ingennity and capital? The United States Shoe Machinery Company, for example, established in the West rivals in the shoe and leather industries so long centred in Massachusetts. Partially for profit and later for self-defense, Yankee capital went into the Southern cotton mills, modern plants right on the edge of the cotton fields, so to speak.

Still, New England has more than half of American spindles. In the finer goods she is unrivaled. It seems to be the present theory in. Boston that nearness to the market is as good as nearness to the raw material. A hereditary and patrician ownership is said to be responsible in the case of some mills for the preservation of ancient installations, now unproductive. There is still superfinous whining about long hours and smaller wages in the Southern establishments, hut if higher costs of labor mean, as they should, higher efficiency and productiveness, there is nothing in that. The New England manufacturers have only to stir their stumps, quit wailing for a steeper tariff, depend on themselvea. The woolen men are at least nearer the supply of fine wools than their competitors in the interior. Probably the causes of depression in that industry are temporary.

New England makes half the shoes of the country. So far as that industry has suffered, apart from labor troubles, inadequate or obsolete methods of merchandising are to hlame. Some Bostonian has said that the Yankee manufacturer knows how to manufacture hut not how to sell. Remedies are sought for this. The considerable falling off in the value of all New England manufactures is not discouraging. The six States are now trying, as a unit, to study what is necessary for the improvement of agriculture, transportation, commerce, industry. Mr. OWEN D. YOUNG has again urged them to make a waterpower "pool" and "mobilize" power in a common system of transmission. There is a project to do this by putting power companies operating in two or more States under the joint jurisdiction of the Public Service Commissions of those States.

It is a good bet that the Yankees, a term which now includes many strong and notable stocks, will be able to look after Numher One successfully.

A DEFICIENT WATER SUPPLY.

Although the mystery of Ashokan has not yet been solved, tbe engineering reports to the municipal authorities seem to dispose of the theory that there is under the reservoir a geological fault which permits the water to seep out. But there has been no satisfactory answer to the question why the demanda for water should have been so much greater than had been anticipated. That the rainfall in the watersheds which drain into the reservoir has been below normal during the last two years is only a partial explanation. As the official report points out, these years were only "moderately dry" and a repetition of them, followed by a renewed shortage, may occur at any time.

The engineers explain that there have been special drafts on the water supply from the very beginning. The city will face another possible lack of water unless additional sources are tapped in the near future. According to tha geologist Professor BERKEY, the continued growth of ths city will make inevitable a further supply of water. Droughts may occur at any time. Then there is the ever-growing drain of a population constantly increasing.

The chief engineer of the Board of Water Supply is even more pessimistic. Says Mr. SMITH: "I am certain "that even with the full use of all "the supplies now available • • s the "people of the city will suffer the "hardships of an insufficient supply "before additional water ean be made "available." Fortunately, data on potential watersheds are already available. The cost of extending the water reserves will naturally be great. It may mean the removal of villages and the condemnation of much property. Meanwhile, New Yorkers, accustomed as they are to plentiful supplies of water, will continne to drain the reservoirs. Apparently citizens have no other recourse than to pray for rain during the many months that will elapse while the municipal authorities decide what tbey will do.

SKYSCRAPERS.

Skyscrapers bid fair to be a leading topic of the debating season, with Messrs. CURRAN, EDISON, MILLER and others taking vigorous part. Do these great structures pay? About that there are diverse judgments. One real estate operator declares that the first two stories are the revenue-producing ones; above that height only enough income is yielded to pay the interest on construction costs. That view will be disputed. Skyscrapers would certainly not be huilt on the present scale if they did not pay.

The tower top that is so much the fashion nowadays, and often so artistic a feature of the city's landscape, presents a special problem. Individual and group wants play their part. Insurance hrokers like to be fairly low down and get-at-able; lawyers prefer to be high up, remote and quiet. It is probably true that on many of the more pretentious structures the return is limited. The yield is large only where the location is specially favored and can eommand sure tenancy and the highest rentals.

What incentive have the builders of skyscrapers other than profit? Advertising, for one thing. Certain buildings have promoted the sale of sewing machines the world over, or enhanced the prestige of the five-and-ten-cent stores. Then there is the characteristic American desire to build the higgest and best of something, whether it be theatre, hotel or office building. Recent zoning ordinances give the New York City architect a chance to let his fancy roam more freely than in the old days of block construction. How much does the builder of a skyscraper think in terms of beauty and civic pride? Not all the skyscrapers in our city are beautiful and few represent pure idealization. But behind profits or advertising there has been, in many cases at least, an incentive less material. Call it enlightened self-interest if you will, but be grateful for its expression in the beautiful buildings that are ours.

We do not yet know all about the sheer investment value of these huildings, particularly of the more modern towers, and their broader significance is far from being finally determined. Certainly, if twenty-five years ago we had foreseen the present development it would have given us pause. When we undertook zoning we thonght largely in terms of light and air. Now we are told that traffio congestion should be a major consideration. Mr. CURRAN'a thesis is that the towers that are beautiful ought to be encouraged, but in such a way that the streets about them are not overloaded. "The "most beautiful architectural creation "today is the American tower, if we "can only keep it free and clear of "tbe ugly types of packing-box office "bnilding surrounding it."

THE MODERN ENGINEER.

When WENDELL PHILLIPS spoke of Lord BACON'S taking his "march down the centuries," laying one hand on the steam engine or the steamboat and the other on the telegraph and claiming them as his own, "for I taught you how to think," he was saying in a more rhetorical way what a great engineer who hullt six bridges across the Mississippi and ten across the Missouri River has said in later time: "It is the "mind which is opening the new "epoch, and it is by the training of "this mind that the engineer must "prevail." What tbat training should be, the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education has in a report just published undertaken to suggest. It is a matter of general concern, for engineering enters into all the major and many of the minor enterprises and activities of the modern world. Engineers are required everywhere: to design the means by which power is produced and used, to guide the chemist and physicist in the application of their forces, to dig treasures out of the earth and conquer the winds, to manage the affairs of corporations, and to do more and more of the work of governmenis.

What is especially recommended in this report is that there should be "a "band of humanistic subjects extend-"ing throughout the curriculum." It should begin with an engineering basis for all, and in the final period, the fourth year, show considerable differentiation for the purpose of "bringing engineering principles to a focus" and gaining the "cumulative affect of narrowing the field of effort." In the periods intervening hetween the first and the last there should be more or less variation, for there ara not only the hroad divisions of civil, mining, metallurgical, mechanical, electrical and chemical engineering, hut such specialties as naval architecture, architectural, ceramio and aeronautic engineering. But there should be a progressive sequence of the fundamental sciences and the related engineering principles. With these should be included general economics, competently taught. History, political science and sociology should also be open to the students' election, and emphasis "adeqnate and sustained" given the bearing of engineering on the broader problems of society.

It is a report of outstanding value. The engineer is coming to take to some extent the place of the lawyer, who in turn took the place of the soldier in some of the phasee of government. Especially does municipal government require more and more tbe skill of the engineer. There is an increasing service in the field of private effort. In Jos's time the primitive engineer had taken iron out of the earth, found the "dust of gold," made a shaft, hewed at the "roots of mountains," cleft the rock and searched for stones in darkness. Today he has achieved many things that were then tauntingly imputed to be beyond the knowledge or the power of man. The engineer has become the chief exponent of that genius which is most characteristic of the twentieth century—organization. His training becomes, therefore, of prime importance to 'the society which he will be increasingly called upon to serve.

LABOR AND PROSPERITY.

Recipes for huilding British prosperity on the American model are viewed askance hy The London Times. It seea little hope in the "golden panaceas" brought back hy British observers. There is no question that the British investigators who urge American high wages, mass prodnction, stimulated consumption and other factors have overlooked a number of basic conditions. They have slighted differences between the two countriee in the matter of natural resources, character of the population, social organization and traditions. American energy, evincing itself in American production, is traceable to something beyond economics. Without importing our climate and our ethnic make-up, it is doubtful whether Great Britain can ever achieve the pace of American life.

On the other hand, The London Times goes astray in overstressing one difference. It seems to think that our prosperity is largely due to the weakness of the American labor movement and the fact that Big Business is in the saddle. In the course of the analysis occurs one odd statement: "The "Administration [at Washington] is "exceedingly severe toward labor agi-"tation," hut smiles upon Big Business engaged in making itself bigger hy mergers and combinations. To the American people, even to American labor, this will be newa. If American labor policy has been "mild," it is not because labor has been repressed or cowed. Labor has been shifting its viewpoint.

The old theories of "capitalistic exploitation" and profits "stolen" from the workers are fading out. The dogma of irrepressible class conflict is replaced by the doctrine of cooperation in industry. A labor organization like the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, half a dozen years ago regarded as "red," now guarantees to the employer a fair labor output. The Baltimore & Ohio plan of industrial partnership is spreading rapidly. Workers and management on the railroads have joined to frame their own articles of agreement. The American Federation of Labor has formally subscribed to the view that higher wages can come only out of increased production.

There seems to be no reason why British labor cannot be brought to the same understanding. If organized labor sets out to be a drag npon industrial leadership, there is no doubt that 11,000,000 British trade unionists in a population of forty-odd millions can do more harm than 4,000,000 American trade unionists in a population of 115,000,000. But if British labor can he eonverted to the doctrine of cooperation, the effects should be perceptihle. That is not a golden panacea in the unattainable distance.

FROM CLUB TO HOME.

The women of Denver are interested in many things outside their homes. They discuss politics, education, art, literature and music in their clubs, and take a hand in censoring moving picturea. Last week, however, at the meeting of the Twentieth Century Discussion Club, one of Denver'a long-established women's organizations, the debate left the field of civic activity and was carried into the home. The women had a fine, hearty, old-fashioned argument about husbands.

It sounds more like the title of a movie than the subject of a serious debate—"How to Hold Your Husband." The first question concerned the status of the Denver husband. Was he worth holding? Was he a creature to be tolerated, coddled or endured? For three hours the battle raged. Finally the ladies agreed that he was worth hanging on to if he could he properly managed, and ways and means of holding him were discussed.

By this time it was quite dark. Tea was brought in and lights were switched on. To the pleasant clatter of tea eups the decision to be kind and considerate to husbands was made. Delightful little plans for having slippers and dressing gown laid out handily each evening were made. A resolution was unanimously carried not to wheedle fur coats out of husbands' pockets by underhand methods. The men are to eat a favorite dish in utter confidence that it ia not served as the prelude to a request for cash. A beautiful period of "peace, prosperity and contentment" was foretold.

As the meeting broke up there was a general rush for the delicatessen shop. It had taken so long to formulate the plans for holding husbands that no time was left for preparing them a proper meal. The promised "contentment" ought to make a good sance for a cold snack from the ice box.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Shaw and the Prize.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW is unquestionably a commanding literary figure in Europe. If anybody deserves the Nobel prize for literature, he does. It is awarded to an author not on account of any particular book, but because of bis total output over a series of years. In this sense, no doubt, the honor was accorded to Mr. SHAW.

He appreciates it, hut in the very act of acknowledgment allows his incurable whimsicality to break out. He accepts the award, but refuses the money that goes with it. Instead of taking the $40,000 and using it for aome public purpose, as President ROOSEVELT did, be undertakes to tell the Swedes what tbey should do with it. Asked if he agreed with Mr. SINCLAIR LEWIS in objecting to any kind of monetary prizes for literature, he cheerfully replied, "I don't agree with anything."

It seems a pity that he could not have either taken or left it in a more dignified manner. But, of course, that is not the Shavian way. If Mr. SHAW had been a sculptor, he would have given a mischievous tilt to the sitter's nose, or a quizzical twist to his mustache, so as to make sure that the result would be not only different but supprising. This instinct is now so indurated in him hy long practice that it was impossible for him to deal with the offer of ths Nobel prize without cutting soms kind of fantastic caper. All that his friends can say is tha that he is built that way.

The Return of the Topknot.

It was reported the other day that Vassar girls have added ons more activity to the many that now engage their attention. They are concentrating on the growing of hair. Bobs of all kinds, curly, moderately short, shingled, fluffy or lacquered, are suddenly out of date, common and pitiabls. Ths harbers of Poughkeepsie may shed tears at the loss of business, but weeping will avail them nothing. A fsw hundred determined young women who want to grow hair are going to do it sven if they have to keep their hats on during the hideous months of the neither-long-nor-short stage.

Perhaps the outcropping at Vassar is not a purely local change, hut rather an indication of a trend in fashion. Certainly wherever one looks there is svidence that a revolution is on. The surest sign of a change is the youth of most of those who are displaying hraids and knots rather than shaven necks. With no hint of apology for long tresses, this advance guard proves itself an innovation rather than a left-over by its dash and confidence. Nothing is hers of servile obedience to a man who prefers long hair for ladies. Rather does it appear to be conformity to the demands of that mysterious thing, the fashion.

Choosing Books for Children.

With ths sager young curiosity that bolls over continuously in the normal child, he investigates everything impartially. He learns rapidly that some things are nnworthy of his attention; others maintain an endless fascination. Books are among the latter. First the pictures and later the text. His grown-up relatives then taks a hand in directing his choice, and the child's continued interest in reading is either fostered or sadly curtailed, according to the wisdom of his guides.

At the meeting this week of authors and critics who discussed books for children it was agreed that children had a right to do their own choosing. Plenty of books of all kinds should be available, and if by chance a youngster is found reading a modern novel it ehould not be enatched from him. Not all parents will agree on this point. It is, after all, a question on which generalization is unsafe. To forhid, to recommend, or simply to acquiesce in the child's choice—there is the three-cornered dilemma. The answer cannot be the aame for all children.

If any bright young readers could have overheard the discussion at the meeting, they must have been irritated at the assumption that their unguided selection of reading matter would inevitably be bad. The pleasure of hearing that, undiscriminating though they are, they may yet run wild in the library, mnst be considerably offset by the implication of their naturally poor taste. Yet there are children who actually prefer good hooks.

Vengeance by Airplane.

The initiative which seems to mark the activities of many of our leading crooks has shown itself in a practical use for airplanes. Heretofore we had thought tbat the principal service of these machines was in war and to transport express mail and hurried passengers.

Now, however, they have become weapons of revenge. The gentlemen of the underworld have always resented it when their friends have betrayed them to the law. As a rule they have meted out vengeanca with a six-shooter in one of our city streets. In Illinois, howsver, they have taken to dropping bombs from airplanes on those whom they do not like.

This method is ingenioue but undiscriminating, as the aim doee not appear to be very accurate. It is bad enough for the poor, law-abiding citizen to be "winged" by a stray bullet in the street; but if his home is likely to be bombed at any time by some disgruntled bandit who mistakes it for the place of refuge of one of his former associates, it may be necessary to stiffen the license fees for airplane pilots and to ecrutinize more closely the giving of permits to the purchasers of airplanes. It may even be advisable to make the possession of airplanes illegal and to make bombing a criminal offense.

A NORTH-AND-SOUTH TICKET

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was reading yesterday a most interesting history of the two parties in the United States since the war between the States, written by Sam Small, formerly of The Atlanta Constitution and now a sort of religious evangelist, political writer and what not, residing in Washington. He stressed the fact that never had it entered the heads of the political leaders that tbe Southern States had any right to ask or to expect any recognition from the national conventions of either of the parties. Especially is this significant with respect of the Democratic Party, whose candidates have with Spartan regularity, and in spite of the neglect accorded its big men, received the electoral votes of the Southern States. And the South has had some "big" men in public life in the past—men big enough to occupy the Presidential chair.

Why is it not possible to break this monotonous rule of neglect and make friends for Governor Smith by adroitly beginning a movement for a Southern man for the Vice Presidential nomination? Looking the Southern States over, however, I can see but one man—Senator George of Georgia—who would be available. The rest are either too old, too flighty, too provincial or too cowardly to be available. I believe George has the making of a strong leader. He made a bad start, but has recovered himself with admirable skill, and emerges with added strength and poise as a representative of a whole people rather than a mere segment wherein he got his votes.

I believe THE TIMES could, in due time, hy its skill in debate, its sound methods of diplomacy and its influence gained hy its never-failing friendly attitude to the South and the Southern people, direct the attention of the Democratic leadership in so favorable a way that a ticket—Smith and George—might become acceptable to the Southern people. Georgia has a mighty hold on Southern sentiment, and ehe has the "timber" to offer for the structure.

It is abont time the "penalty" of the South should be withdrawn. Sixty years after, with her record of loyalty, her stern determination to restore her lost fortunes and retrieve her prestige among the States of the Union—all faithfully and inerrantly carried out—entitle the Southern people to particiption in the executive affairs of the nation, or at least to a step in the direction of participation in its executive affairs.

She came pretty nearly to having such participation in Woodrow Wilson, but he was chosen as a representative of New Jersey and not of the Sonth. He did so well, however, that I am sure the Democrats of the East would be willing to "experiment" with a Southern man as Vice President. By auch a move we would kill off the silly and demoralising talk about a political juncture between ths South and the West and at the sama time save the country the humiliation of defeating ons of the country's greatest finds because of his religion. Faulty Subway Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Traveling in New York is bad enough, and the people are to be commended for the spirit shown under such nerve-racking conditions. But when it comes to riding on the B. M. T., one loses patience.

I waited about ten minutes this morning for a local at Seventy-seventh Street, and when it arrived I could hardly get on. Then I changed at Fifty-ninth Street, and the station was like a football stadium after a big game. The train was crowded, but the station was worse. I waited about ten minutes for an express train (Sea Beach) and only five or six persons could get on each car, leaving hundreds on the station. The word "Express" is a misnomer.

I managed to get on the second local that followed the one from which I had alighted and rode to Thirty-sixth Street, where again I tried to chenge to an express train and succeeded, after letting two go by. One car had two windows pushed out by the jam. This'coodition is unbearable and abominable. It promotes malice and ill-will. Many fights between passengers take place as a result of the crowding, and the women suffer from the vulgar actions of some of our young fullbecks. This condition has existed since last Summer. There is one solution and that is more trains. HOWARD VANCE.

TO A FELLOW-PRISONER.

As prisoners in dungeons side by side,
Silent and sundered by eternal stone,
So our twin souls in solitude abide,
Always and ever near, yet how alone!
How my soul's longing may I then make known?
A sigh too eager for thy fett'ring pride,
Or pride that loneliness hath beaten prone,
Oh! is not flesh impregnable as rock!
Then, tho' I tap crude signal on the wall
And rattle all my chains and strain the lock
Only that little message is our all!
Yet through long hours when even that we miss
Doth that not seem a glory and a bliss?

LABOR AND SOVIET RUSSIA.

Matthew Woll States the Position of the Unions in This Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allow me to congratulate you on the editorial on Soviet Russia in THE TIMES of Monday. I am in hearty accord with your conclusions that, while competent observers believe that changes "may be impending," they prefer to wait and see, and that we cannot speak of a definite change, least of all a fundamental change, "until the conditions of stability have set in."

But, unfortunately, your editorial eeeme to have been hased not on my statement as issued, but on the somewhat shorter version given in the press. For there could be no other explanation for your assumption that I rest my case against the Soviets on Stalin's declaration and pronouncements. On the contrary, I agree heartily with you that what counts mainly are the "facts and not doctrinal statements." It is for this reason that 95 per cent. of my statement was given over to facts.

The newspaper abbreviations emphasize two sentences of mine which dwelt upon Stalin's pronouncements, one of which you quote in your editorial. But even in your abbreviated version of my statement the sentences you quote regarding Stalin's declarations were immediately followed by a paragraph dealing with Stalin's acts, as follows:

"He has given no proof that he has abandoned a single one of the main positions of Lenin, either in Russia's internal affairs or in her foreign relations. The revolutionary Soviet Constitution declaring for a world-wide class war remains intact. The Red Army is still taught that it exists to wage a revolutionary war against the existing Governments of all other nations. All countries hordering upon Russia are still constantly menaced by the Red Army. They are overrun hy another army of subsidized Communist conspirators. The wildest forms of world revolutionism are still taught in every school. The Soviets still exercise a monopoly of the press and of politics."

I am in hearty accord with your proposition that Stalin "must be judged from his acts." My text, to which I gave the greatest possible emphasis, was that President Coolidge was fully justified and spoke for America when he demanded deeds, not words, before recognition could be considered.

In closing, may I make what is to organized labor a very important correction? You speak of 6,000,000 trade-union members in Soviet Russia. There may be 6,000,000 nominal members of the Soviet Government unions. The Soviets with their usual boldness have labeled these "trade unions"; they have no resemblance to trade unions at any point; they are organized as a weapon with which to fight and destroy trade unions, and are opposed to trade-union principles all aiong the line. Even the radical Socialist trade unions of Continental Europe will have nothing to do with them. It is one more instance showing that everything in Russia apparently turns out to be exactly the opposite of what it seems to be if judged by the propagandist labels in which the Communists never fail to clothe their despotic, reactionary and anti-social experiments.

An Englishman's Hopeful View.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I hope you will give a little space to a Londoner who admires Dean Inge in his saner moments, detests him when he hates human beings, and does not share his gloom.

I think many ordinary unvocal Englishmen are grateful just now for our national good luck, (a) in having at an admittedly critical time a Premier who is something better than a politician; (b) in having had a Labor Government in office but not in power, with the result that the best type of Labor leader obtained valuable experience, and the old cry that Labor had never had a chance to show how it could solve all our difficulties lost half its power; (c) in getting Mr. Baldwin back in time to deal with the general strike firmly and without an eye on the vote. The strike taught the Labor men who were teachable and the country, too. Even the lunatics learned a little. (d) The coal war. Despite all the waste and misery, something is happening that may be worth it all.

The average Englishman who hates thinking except after he has paid full fare is beginning to think, and such thought as he rarely permits himself always leads to action.

Public opinion is forming so strongly that I am certain class war and disunion are on their last legs. The darkest hour is nearest dawn, and the light is already to be seen by those who have faith as well as love.

Prophecy is the hobby of fools, but there are worse fellows than these, and I will risk the assertion that in a few years there will be so large a body of moderate opinion awakened that the fear of the extreme Government (Right or Left) will be gone for perhaps a generation. And England will be the better for her trial, as she and most countries always are.

The Need for an Airport.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES'S proposal that the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey work out a plan for an interstate airport is one that should receive careful and serious consideration. It is, as you say, illogical—in fact, it is absurd—for the people of the metropolitan district to be slow in making adequate provision for an airport. Smaller communities throughout the country, where public sentiment is more crystallized, are preparing municipal airports.

That New York and New Jersey measure up to their responsibility in this respect is a clearly defined duty. Included within their borders is the greatest urban development of all time; they should have an airport worthy of their cities and of the people in other States whose visits and business contacts with the metropolis have made it great.

This great centre of commerce and social activity must be keenly alive to the necessity of providing adequate facilities for air mail and express as well as for the comfort and dispatch of air visitors. Business foresight, pride in the great metropolis and our reputation for hospitality to our millions of friends in other States all demand an airport commensurate with and accessible to our terminals for surface transportation.

Offensive Broadcasting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Lately we have had some very suggestive songs broadcast by cheap singers. Last Sunday afternoon one of these was especially coarse. It came from a hotel station in New York. I cannot imagine any decent person being pleased by such offerings. A protest should stop it. DECENCY.

URGES QUICK RETURN OF ALIEN PROPERTY

Mondell Contends That Germany Has Obligated Herself to Pay American War Claims.

WOULD HAVE CONGRESS ACT

Tells Ways and Means Committee Provision Should Be Made for Advancee to Claimants.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Frank W. Mondell, former Republican floor leader of the House, gave the Ways and Means Committee today an interpretation of this country's obligation respecting seized alien property that differed from most of the other proposals suggested since the hearings opened. He contended that in the Berlin peace treaty of 1921 Germany obligated herself to take care of American claimants and, therefore, private property seized by the United States should be returned at once. To hold it longer, he argued, would amount to confiscation. Mr. Mondell is an attorney for some of those who lost their property.

Mr. Mondell said he was not concerned so much over propositions advanced for taking care of American claimants as with the duty of this Government to relinquish what it had seized during the war, because satisfactory arrangement for their payment already had been made, but he urged that Congress provide for American claimants against Germany if the taxpayer did not "ultimately" bear the burden.

"By no possibility," said Mr. Mondell, "could we now open the case with Germany, and, if we did, Germany would have to refer it to the Allies. There is no reason to believe the Allies would be willing for us to become a preferred creditor."

If the seized German property were a lien, he said, that status had ended with the advent of the Dawes plan, which provided a form of reparations out of which funds had been received for taking care of some claimants.

"Something has been said with regard to the character of the ownership of the German property still held by the Alien Property Custodian," said Mr. Mondell, "and, I think, some perhaps have the impression that the property is wholly, or very largely, the property of very large German corporations having little or no interest in the United States, and that the funds returned would be taken, in the main, out of the country. That is far from the fact. Much of the property still held is in the United States and will remain here. A large portion of the investments are here and will continue here. A considerable portion of the property owned or held by aliens when seized is now property of American citizens or citizens of countries with which we were not at war.

"While I believe the German property should be promptly returned, and we would be making a very great mistake from every viewpoint if we failed to return it promptly, I also think there is an obligation on the part of Congress to adjust the matter of American claims. I know of no reason why advances should not be made on that behalf, provided they do not lay an ultimate hurden npon the taxpayer, assuming that Germany meets her obligations.

"If Germany does not meet her obligations under the Dawes plan, which the allied and associated powers interested in her doing so, on what theory may we expect a continuation of payments to us from the allied powers, with no one interested in the payment except the good faith of the borrowing nations?"

OFFER $50,000 FOR BIBLE

Brothers Want It to Prove Claim to Estate of Illinois Oil Man.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19 (AP).—Fifty thousand dollars was the price offered yesterday for a family Bible, said to contain the record of the births and deaths of the descendants of James Alexander Cowan, who came from Scotland to Hudson Falls, N. Y., many years ago.

The offer was made by Robert L. (Bud) Cowan, his wife, known to readers of Western fiction as "B. M. Bower," and his brother, James Cowan of Mexico City, who are seeking to prove their claim to the millions left by William P. Cowan of Wheaton, Ill., who died in 1918.

The old Bible, which disappeared mysteriously ten years ago on a South Dakota homestead, is sought by Robert and James Cowan, who say they are in their boyhood the written proof that their father, James Alexander, and William C., father of William P. Cowan, were brothers.

William P. Cowan was at one time President of the Standard Oil Company of Illinois. He died virtually intestate, for his wife, to whom he left his fortune, died a few months before him and there were no children. Under the will was probated six claimants came forward as cousins and shared in the estate. They traced their relationship through Cowan's wife.

UNVEILS TABLET TO LINCOLN

Dedication in Gettysburg Cemetery on Anniversary of His Address.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 19 (AP).—Sixty-three years ago today newspaper correspondents here wrote about the simple address of President Lincoln in connection with the dedication of the National Cemetery.

Today honor was paid to his memory at exercises commemorating the anniversary of the dedication of the national burying ground and the unveiling of a tablet on the Wills House where Lincoln spent the night of Nov. 18, 1863. There, according to some historians, he wrote his memorable address. Several persons who heard it participated today. Among them were former Judge M. W. Jacobs of Harrisburg, Dr. H. M. Bikle of Gettysburg and Dr. J. D. Hemminger of Carlisle.

Joseph Riggs of Gettysburg, who fought beside his father, unveiled the plaque, which was erected by Gettysburg Camp 112, Sons of Union Veterans.

Addresses were given hy Representative Franklin Menges of York, Judge D. P. McPherson and the Rev. Dr. J. E. Wagner, both of Gettysburg.

URGES HEALTH UNIT FOR EVERY COUNTY

Dr. Plunkett Tells the Charities Meeting Rural Folk Need More Medical Science.

TYPHOID IS ON THE WANE

Diphtheria Also Fast Yielding to Science, It Is Stated at Final Session in Buffalo.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Nov. 19.—Dr. Robert E. Plunkett, Director of the Division of Tuberculosis of the New York State Department of Health, in an address at the final session of the New York State Conference of Charities and Correction today, advocated a full-time health commissioner for every county in New York State. He declared that in the past health officers in villages and townships had been principally emergency officials on part-time duty, and that some physicians, not free from "petty jealousy," had hesitated to call them in when in doubt concerning a communicable disease.

Dr. Plunkett said that the practice of public health had practically eliminated the bubonic plague, cholera and yellow fever from the United States, and that malaria and typhoid were fast disappearing.

"Thirteen years have elapsed since I entered the practice of medicine," Dr. Plunkett continued. "In the section of this State in which I practiced, typhoid fever was almost constantly present. Today that disease is rarely seen in that community.

"At intervals during the past few years smallpox had become a serious problem in some of our States. Not realizing the significance of these outbreaks of this most dreaded of diseases, the people of our State have been rather indifferent toward it, and only the vigilance of the health officials has made such complacency possible.

Progress Against Diphtheria.

"The scientific work which is being carried on toward the elimination of scarlet fever may be the means of giving us a similar program for diphtheria and may soon make it possible for us to say that this disease also has ceased to be a problem.

"The tuberculosis death rate has been on the decline for years.

"The infant mortality rates have decreased, particularly in sections where the public health workers have had an opportunity to demonstrate the efficacy of clinical and educational work.

"In the past our local health officers have been principally emergency officials. When communicable disease became prevalent in their community they became active, and when the epidemic subsided they gracefully retired from active service.

"Our present-day knowledge of the prevention of disease demands that we have a different form of health administration. The people of this State and country are entitled to more than emergency service. They are entitled to protection from every disease of a communicable nature.

"There are in the United States approximately 300 county health departments, most of which are administered by full-time county health officers, and New York, the greatest State in the Union, has one county health department, located at Cattaraugus County.

Law Provides for State Aid.

"The Legislature of this State has seen the need for full-time rural health administration, and it has so expressed itself by providing laws by which a County Board of Supervisors, with the permission of the State Commissioner of Health, can establish their county as a county health district.

"Further appreciation by the Legislature for the need of better rural health work is exemplified by the law known as the 'State aid to counties engaging in public health work,' which law provides that any county not having within its boundaries a city of 50,000 population or more may apply to the State for financial aid to the extent of 50 per cent. of moneys expended for public health work in a given year, which aid can only be granted after the approval of the State Commissioner of Health.

"The people in our rural and semi-rural places lack the opportunities which are offered to our urban people. No one will deny that they are entitled to the same protection from disease as their neighbors in the cities are receiving."

The conference elected the following officers:

President, William H. Gratwick, Buffalo; Vice Presidents, Luella R. North, Plattsburg; Emanuel Ceiler, Brooklyn; Frederick A. Moran, Albany; Treasurer, George J. Gillespie, New York City; Secretary, Richard W. Wallace, Albany; Assistant Secretaries, John F. Tremain, Albany; Mrs. Margaret G. Lowrey, Troy; George F. Shierler, Brooklyn.

Troy was chosen as the next convention city.

From the Founder's Writings

Do You Love Your Work?

Workmen or workwomen love the work they are doing; they take great pleasure in perfecting themselves, and practice makes perfect. They also serve their employers best when with beautiful manners they show the goods to the visitors wherever and whenever they get the opportunity.

Sometimes an employe has been known to drop a customer who was known to be seeking a small article for another customer whom the employe knew and had waited on before, or to neglect a customer who said: "I do not wish to buy today." All of which was the worst kind of performance of duty. A looker never forgets that lack of attention, and she speaks of it to her friends and sometimes to one of the managers.

But the opposite is also true—that real politeness and no sign of disappointment in taking much or little time is evident to the customer; all her friends are sure to hear of her experience.

You serve best when you try to be a pleased hostess for every one you meet in your business place.

There is very little fault to be found with the large assortments that we always have at this time of the year; but it is well not to be too long in seeking such goods as are known to be irreplaceable.

(Signed) John Wanamaker

BROADWAY PARADE VIEWED BY THRONGS

MARCHERS AVE A CHILL

CUPS FOR BEST ENTRIES

Replica of Hell Gate Power Station and a 'Safety First' Bus Attract Interest of Crowds.

Yesterday was a bad day for gauze draperies, as the men and girls who constituted the floats which took part in Broadway's tercentenary parade walked before they reached Times Square. The route was from Seventy-second to Thirty-eighth Street. Even the little page of the Hotel McAlpin was covering his shivers by a brave smile as he went through the square and disappeared south.

The parade was to bring back to the famous street the days of long ago, and the barouches, victorias and other carriages of other days looked sufficiently incongruous as they passed through the Great White Way behind automobiles. But most of it was devoted to modern advertisements of light, heat and power, orange juice and the moving pictures which are now current.

It was on the floats which were to portray modern progress that most of the teeth chattering took place. A gay young thing in gauze tried to tuck more hair shirts as she passed through windy zones and looked up with a brave smile, but the wind blew through her thin garments and she was anything but happy. But most of the girls with long curls, purely symbolical and tucked above their bobs, were wise enough to wear their fur coats under their draperies.

Crowd Lines Times Square.

The parade aroused the interest of the crowd which lined the street, however, largely because of its circus-like aspect. In Times Square the sidewalks were jammed and the policemen under Inspector Dodd had a hard time keeping their lines, but the Inspector decided good naturedly that as it was a Broadway show Broadway might as well see it and was lenient. When an elephant tried to pull the spare tire from a NEW YORK TIMES automobile and wrapped his trunk about the nose of a dog alongside him during a wait the crowd roared its appreciation of elephantine humor.

The parade was led by the Sixteenth Infantry Band and a detachment from the same regiment, followed by a United States naval band and a naval detachment. Following the officials of the Broadway Association came Father Knickerbocker and Miss Broadway, all in whits in a white car. Adrian Van Der Donck and Miss Yonkers were not far behind them. The Pennsylvania Railroad had a miniature electric train with its locomotive in action, and behind that were some floats advertising moving pictures now on Broadway. One showed a fairly clad and unhappy archangel hurling defiance at a black-browed Satan, and Satan had much the best of it because he was sheltered from the wind.

Replica of Hell Gate Station.

The United Electric Light and Power Company had an interesting float which represented in careful detail the huge Hell Gate central station. The New York Central Railroad showed the famous De Witt Clinton, the first locomotive in this country, and other prehistoric vehicles were also drawn down the street to the amusement of the crowds. Even jazz had its place in the procession, for there was a jazz orchestra with a radio announcer who chatted to the crowds en route.

The parade took about half an hour to pass, including delays. After it was over the following prize winners were announced:

Floats—Silver cup, first, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company; second, New York Central; third, Automobile Merchants' Association. Bands—Gold cup, first, Keith's Boys' Band; second, Pennsylvania Railroad; third, THE NEW YORK TIMES Press Room Band. Cars—Silver cup, Father Knickerbocker and Miss Broadway; second, Adrian Van Der Donck and Miss Yonkers. The Hotel Astor won the cup for the best outdoor exhibit, the reproduction of the old Longacre Farm.

When the parade reached Times Square scores of tiny balloons were released from the Paramount Theatre building and floated over the square for several minutes until the wind distributed them over the city.

In the parade there appeared what the Fifth Avenue Coach Company called its traveling "Safety Preacher," a bus, brilliantly lighted. On the front was the sign "Bound for Safety" and on the radiator a warning hand and the words, "Play Safe." On the bus appeared other safety slogans such as "Our Men Work For Safety—Please Help." "Why Take Chances? Odds Are Against You." "Hurry Leads to Worry."

The bus will be used in regular service, shifting from route to route.

LAGUARDIA CONTEST MOVE.

Opponent's Application Granted to Delay Election Certificate.

Former Sheriff H. Warren Hubbard's application to restrain the Board of Elections from issuing a certificate of election to Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Republican Representative from the Twentieth Congressional District, was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel. LaGuardia assented to the order.

An application for the inspection of void and blank ballots cast at the November election was also granted and a check-up was made in court of the filed returns. The count confirmed the plurality of fifty-four votes by which LaGuardia was credited with re-election over Hubbard, his Democratic contestant.

An inspection and recount of the actual ballots will be made later and proceedings to this end will start in the offices of the Board of Elections on Monday.

Turks Ban the Charleston As a Menace to Health

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 19 (AP).—All kinds of maladies attributed to too much dancing of the Charleston have resulted in its being banned by the municipal authorities "as a hygienic measure."

Just to show that the authorities do not favor the Orient more than the Occident, the Minister of the Interior at the same time forbade public exhibitions of an Oriental dance which has been a favorite national amusement from time immemorial.

MINE BLAST SHOWN TO COAL EXPERTS

Rock Dust Saves the Delegates from Flames in Experimental Pit at Bruceton, Pa.

GAS EXPLOSION IS VIEWED

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 19.—Delegates to the International Bituminous Conference, which ended yesterday, spent today on inspection trips arranged for them by the Carnegie Institute of Technology and the United States Bureau of Mines with the cooperation of directors of industrial plants in this vicinity.

The visitors from Europe were particularly interested in the demonstrations arranged this afternoon at the experimental coal mine of the United States Bureau of Mines at Bruceton, Pa., nineteen miles from this city. The use of rock dust barriers to extinguish mine explosions was shown and tests were made of permissible explosives.

The delegates were thrilled in the experimental coal mine when an explosion of coal dust was arranged for their benefit near the pit mouth. Many of them were "on the wrong side" of the explosion and felt something of the horror experienced by miners trapped in an explosion. However, the rock dust whipped up by the force of the explosion raised an effective barrier between the flames and the spectators.

Expert Explains Process.

Before the rock dust demonstration began, S. P. Howell, explosives engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines, explained that 'coal dust had been sprinkled generously near the opening of the mine. The dust, highly explosive, he said, would be set off by an arc light near the roof of the mine. Further along in the mine the roof, sides and floors were sprayed with rock dust.

"It is a very interesting sight, viewed from inside the mine," said Mr. Howell, inviting the delegates to enter the pit. Nobody stirred. The engineer smiled and added, "I'll go with you." Twenty-five men followed him into the cave-like entrance for about 100 feet. The others remained on the hillside, about fifty feet from the opening.

At a signal from Mr. Howell inside the mine a workman turned a switch. The arc light near the entrance showed a white heat for a few seconds. Suddenly, as the coal dust exploded, there was a terrific roar and the cave was filled with smoke and flame. The spectators in the mine saw the vast onrush of flame moving toward them with express train speed. Almost instantly the rock dust, blown into the air by the advance wave of the explosion, surrounded the coal dust, insulated it and extinguished the flame.

Shown How Gas Explodes.

The visitors also were shown how gas in a mine explodes and causes great loss of life annually. An iron pipe, about fifty feet long and a foot in diameter, was filled with coal gas. The gas near the opening was ignited. Slowly the line of thin blue flame began traveling toward the closed end. As it neared the middle of the tube the flame quickened. The speed increased with such rapidity that it ended in a roar like that of an express train as the gas exploded near the sealed end.

Some of the delegates visited the by-products coke plant of the Carnegie Steel Company at Clairton, Pa. They were told that this was the largest by-products plant in the world making metallurgical coke and coal by-products. There they saw 1,200 ovens in operation, with 300 more in process of erection.

Other groups visited the Indianola mine of the Inland Steel Company, one of the model mines in the Pittsburgh district; the West Penn Power Company's mine and plant at Springdale and the Edgar Thomson Steel Works at Braddock, Pa.

JURY AT ODDS IN RUM TRIAL.

Fails to Convict Crew That Had 1,000 Cases "for Own Use."

The trial of Captain William Kinlock and three of the crew of the schooner yacht Missoe on charges of conspiring to violate the Volstead act and the custom laws by bringing liquor into Manhattan resulted yesterday in a disagreement. The jury before Federal Judge William Bondy reported twice that it was unable to reach a verdict.

The defense had maintained that the 1,000 cases of gin seized aboard the Missoe off Nantucket were for consumption on a high-seas cruise by the captain and his crew. They relied entirely upon Government testimony to prove their contention that when the seizure was made the men aboard the Missoe had already "made a pretty good start in the consumption line."

Captain Kinlock and his co-defendants did not take the stand. The three others were Ovelio Escurez Lopez, George Smith and James Smith. Erik Rosenberg, a fifth defendant named in the indictment, did not appear for trial, and his bail was ordered forfeited by Judge Bondy.

One of the Government's principal witnesses was Lieutenant Irving W. Buckelew, who commanded the United States Coast Guard cutter Carey, which made the seizure last month. In his testimony he said:

"I asked Captain Kinlock who owned the vessel. He answered 'I do.' I asked him who owned the cargo. Same asked him who owned the cargo. Same answer. I asked him what he intended to do with the cargo, and he told me that he had bought it for his own pleasure and intended to remain at sea until it had all been consumed by himself and those aboard with him."

DOUBLE FAREWELL TO GEN. SUMMERALL

OUTLINES HIS ARMY POLICY

New Chief of Staff Would Have Officers Enabled to Develop Nation for Defense.

Stressing the need of a fixed military policy that would leave the leaders of the army free to devote themselves to their duty of raising the army to its maximum degree of efficiency instead of having each year to defend the actual existence of such forces, Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, in an address last night on the eve of his departure for Washington to take over the office of Chief of Staff of the army, outlined the plan of national defense, which he preferred rather to style a plan for preserving peace.

It was a civic farewell to the General in the Hotel Astor when more than 700 representative men and women gave him a rousing reception as he appeared here for the last time as Commanding General of the Second Corps Area. An hour previously officers and men of his corps, with the massed colors of two dozen regiments, had escorted him from his quarters at Governors Island to the ferry boat that brought him to this city.

Farewell to Soldiers.

General Summerall, accompanied by Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Division, who will command the Second Corps until the arrival next month of Major Gen. John McRae, walked through a line of officers and men of the First Division, all standing rigidly at "present arms" while hundreds of calcium flares lit up the night sky in a manner reminiscent of the long Winter nights of eight and nine years ago in France.

Pausing at the dock just before the band of the Sixteenth Infantry played "Auld Lang Syne," General Summerall thanked the men of his command for their loyal support during the two years he has been in command here.

"I have been fortunate to command a band of brothers," he said, paraphrasing Lord Nelson's address to his sailors after the victory of the Nile, "and no officer can have any greater degree of loyalty from his men than being able to call them brothers."

At the dinner, at which Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard (retired), General Summerall's predecessor at Governors Island, presided, addresses were made by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War in the Cabinet of President Taft; S. Stanwood Menken, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Security League; William C. Green, President of the American Federation of Labor; Bishop Manning, and Miss Marie Dressler.

General Summerall's Address.

In his address General Summerall said, in part:

"There is no fear that the nation will not fly to arms and sacrifice itself prodigally to repel an enemy in time of war, but there is a danger that its sacrifice will be ineffective. The people rely implicitly upon their civic leaders to guide their destinies. They should demand that a settled policy should exist and that the military leaders be free to devote themselves to their primary tasks of giving to our defensive forces and plans a maximum of efficiency rather than exhausting their energies in defending year by year the existence of such forces. Such a procedure would not contemplate militarizing the country but citizenizing the military forces.

"Our war plans, which might better be called our plans for preserving peace, should therefore be based upon a nation in arms. With the draft of soldiers should come also the requisition of labor and services; of housing, except private homes, for our soldiers; of food, clothing, utilities of every description, transportation, and literally the entire resources of the country. It would then be sufficient to maintain a regular and citizen army, with a reasonable store of munitions, to meet the first sudden shock of arms and to furnish trained leaders and administrators to organize the army of the people swiftly and effectively."

SAYS SMUGGLERS RING RAN IN 1,000 ALIENS

Vermont Immigration Inspector Accuses Montreal Company of a Gigantic Plot.

NEWPORT, Vt., Nov. 19 (AP).—As many as 1,000 aliens have been smuggled across the Canadian border this Summer by a Montreal ring, Chief Immigration Inspector James Ford said here tonight.

John Adah, one of two men captured in an automobile near Rutland Wednesday, when another automobile escaped, was an employe of this ring, which operates under the name of the Quebec Land and Improvement Company, Inspector Ford said. Adah, with a man giving the name of Sada, is held here for arraignment before the United States Commissioner tomorrow.

Inspector Ford declared that the Montreal company advertised abroad the possibilities of America and told its prospective clients that an unguarded 3,000-mile boundary separated Canada from the United States. The aliens, most of whom were Czechoslovak and Jewish nationals, were landed in Canada and kept there a month or two before the attempt was made to smuggle them over the line.

Adah confessed, according to the Inspector, that he was paid $175 for each alien whom he delivered safely at Boston. Mr. Ford said seventeen men were now in custody here awaiting trial on similar charges.

Search was maintained all Wednesday night on the wooded hills of Pittsford, but no trace was found of the three men who fled when Adah and Sada were caught. Yesterday the search was abandoned.

Confer on Nassau County's Needs.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 19.—Several committees were appointed here today at a conference of the Board of Supervisors and others with Robert C. Cummings and William F. McCormack, bill drafters, of Albany, to plan for adequate legislation meeting certain governmental needs of Nassau County, resulting chiefly from its rapid growth within the last ten years. Former Assemblyman Thomas A. McWhinney was chosen as General Chairman of all the committees named.

Cheap Publicity Hurts Women in Politics, Says Miss Butler, Asking They Be Left Alone

Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, Vice Chairman of the Republican State Committee, declared yesterday that excessive publicity was the greatest handicap to American women in public life.

Addressing 300 members of the Women's Forum at the Hotel Biltmore, Miss Butler complained that American women who became successful in politics were made the object of an endless flood of newspaper notoriety, while in Great Britain, Germany and other European countries their participation in politics was "taken for granted."

"One of the greatest handicaps that Governor Ferguson, Governor Ross and Mrs. Knapp in our own State have faced is that they have been the victims of cheap and sensational publicity," Miss Butler said. "In Europe that is not the case. Women are given a chance to work with men in politics without that consciousness of sex difference which is fostered to such an appalling extent by our newspapers.

"To my mind, one of the chief objects of women's clubs in the next few years should be to make the press take women in politics for granted. We must make our newspapers realize that if a woman is successful in politics it is not because she is a woman, but because she is an effective and efficient person. Every time a woman is successful in an election our newspapers try to give some vague, mysterious feminist significance to her victory."

In England, Miss Butler said, the campaign for woman suffrage had been more bitter, intense and violent than in the United States, but that once women won the vote their participation in politics was treated in a matter-of-fact way. Thus, she pointed out, there were six women in the House of Commons, and one of them, the Duchess of Atholl, "has the extraordinary distinction of being an Under-Secretary in the Ministry of Education—all without any noticeable clamor in the newspapers."

Germany already is thoroughly accustomed to women in the Reichstag, she said, and these women seem to be serving capably and quietly.

YOUTHS EXONERATED IN MODEL'S DEATH

HEARING HELD IN CHAMBERS

Suicide Presumption Accepted on Plea of Counsel for Murphy and Fitzpatrick.

Because of lack of evidence against them, Francis Murphy and John J. Fitzpatrick, the youths who were charged with the murder of Miss Dorothy May Smith by throwing her out of a fourth floor window, have been discharged from custody, papers filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday disclosed.

The documents showed that a hearing was held in the chambers of Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel in the late afternoon of Nov. 12, at which Assistant District Attorney George M. Brothers admitted that there was no evidence that the 23-year-old cloak model had actually been hurled from the window.

At the conclusion of the hearing Justice Wasservogel sustained writs of habeas corpus and discharged the prisoners. His ruling will prevent the case from going to the Grand Jury, although Magistrate Charles Oberwager, after a hearing on Oct. 5, held the two men for the Grand Jury. Justice Wasservogel remarked that his disposition of the matter would not prejudice the right of the District Attorney to press the prosecution if more evidence developed.

Murphy and Fitzpatrick were arrested on Sept. 27 after the screams of Miss Smith had awakened residents of the apartment house at 215 East Eighty-ninth Street. She was found fatally injured in the stone court yard below.

At the hearing before Justice Wasservogel, James A. Delahanty, counsel for the prisoners, rehearsed the testimony adduced before Magistrate Oberwager. His summation was approved by the Assistant District Attorney.

According to Mr. Delahanty, the evidence there showed that the two men had visited a number of night clubs, going finally to Sophie Tucker's Playground. They were joined by Miss Smith, who deserted another party. She set out with Murphy for his apartment, the latter's parents, who lived there being out of town. Fitzpatrick followed a half hour later.

Some time later screams were heard, Miss Smith was seen hanging from the window, and the man holding her was shouting, "Fits, help me." There was evidence as to two letters written by Miss Smith to another person, intimating she was going to commit suicide.

Mr. Delahanty argued that the presumption of suicide should be accepted rather than the inference of murder.

MASKED BAND TAKES FOSTER ESTATE RUM

THUGS WORK THREE HOURS

Leave Guardian and Family Tied to Chairs—Reporter Later Conducts Interview at Guns' Points.

Special to The New York Times.

BABYLON, L. I., Nov. 19.—Eight masked armed men held up the caretaker of the estate of the late J. Stanley Foster, President of the Bowery Bank of New York, on the Little Neck Road near here early today, bound him, his wife and son in chairs and looted the cellar of $40,000 of wine and whisky which they carried away in automobiles.

Captain Charles Hartt, once commander of Mr. Foster's fleet of boats, has been in charge of the estate since the death of Mr. Foster in August, 1925. He lives there with his wife and son, John, 21 years old. Entrance to the place was barricaded today when a reporter went there to confirm a report of the robbery and he was compelled at the point of a pistol in the hand of Captain Hartt and a shotgun in the hands of his son to stand with his hands held above his head while he questioned the caretaker.

Captain Hartt said he and his family had been in a rear room at 9 P. M. during the storm when some one knocked at the rear door. He opened it, he said, and found a young man who asked to see his son, but before he could question the caller four masked men pushed him aside and thrust pistols against him.

He said his first impulse was to run indoors, but realizing that he might be shot as he entered the lighted room, he darted past the men into the darkness, hoping to reach a hedge and crying out to warn his wife and son to shut and lock the door.

He was drawing his pistol, he said, as he tripped and fell, whereupon several of the men hauled him up and marched him into the house. All eight men were apparently young. They forced the Harttts into chairs, and while three men stood guard over them the other five, evidently knowing their way perfectly, went to the cellar, forced open the door to wines and liquors stored there in 1910 and started carrying the loot out.

They worked steadily, Captain Hartt said, until past midnight. Once, he said, he observed his son eyeing a double-barrel shotgun in a corner and knew the young man was awaiting an opportunity to seize it and shoot at the raiders. He said he warned the young man aloud not to attempt the act because there were only two shells in the gun, while each robber had a pistol.

Shortly after this a police dog, fastened in another room, began barking, as if sensing something wrong. The robbers, he said, forced him to lead the dog outside to a pen, where he barked until they left.

The men put the last load of liquor into their cars at 12:15 o'clock, he said. They snipped the telephone wiree with a pair of pliers and used the wire in binding the Hartts to their chairs. Then they switched off the lights and left.

Captain Hartt said he loosed himself an hour later. He untied his wife and son and went to Babylon alone to notify the police.

Try to Rob Police Head's Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A second attempt to rob the home of M. H. Elvidge, Police Commissioner of East Chester, who lives at Pondfield Crossways, Bronxville, was frustrated early this morning by the Police Commissioner's chauffeur, Joe Rumler. Rumler and his wife were alone in the house. He said that when he heard a noise shortly after 3:30 A. M., he fired three shots in the air and then notified the police.

Dinner to Retiring Justices.

LEOPOLD CONFESSES HE SPED INTO CRASH

Admits in License Hearing He Was Going 45 Before Spill Which Caused Death.

CONVICTED BEFORE, HE SAYS

But Seeking Permit to Drive, Swore He Had Not Been—Declares He Thought Fines Cleared Him.

James Leopold, the revocation of whose automobile driver's license is being sought by George Spiegelberg, was driving between forty-five and fifty-five miles an hour on the wrong side of a damp road, when his car was wrecked on a New Jersey highway in November, 1925, and Frederick Spiegelberg was killed, according to testimony given yesterday at the continuation of the hearing before Deputy Commissioner John B. Hennessey of the Motor Vehicle Bureau by Leopold himself and the widow of the man who was killed.

It was brought out, in addition, that although he had been convicted three times of infractions of the motor vehicle law, Leopold, in applying subsequently for a license, had not only failed to record those facts, but had answered "no" to the question as to whether he had been convicted, and had sworn to the statement, as all applicants for a renewal of a license are required to do. When confronted with these sworn applications by George Spiegelberg, young Leopold replied:

"I thought that when I paid my fine of $25 it was over and done with. I thought the question meant something serious—an accident."

"You didn't think speeding was serious?"

"I do now—when I've learned my lesson. I never thought anything was serious before this accident."

Widow Tells of Mishap.

Mrs. Frederick Spiegelberg testified that the party had been driving up from the Harvard-Princeton football game in a light rain, and that she and the others had asked Leopold to drive more slowly. She described sketchily how the car had swerved off the road into a ditch. She was thrown out. She believed it had been a case of skidding. She did not see her husband stand up; nor did she see him fall from the car. She estimated the speed of the car as between 50 and 55 miles and said they had passed a great many cars that were traveling between 20 and 25 miles.

Ruth Hausman, sister of Mrs. Spiegelberg, testified that while she thought, perhaps, Leopold had taken one drink some time during the day as they went to and from the Princeton game, she could not remember that he had drunk in her presence or that he had had any liquor with him. Later Leopold admitted he had taken some drinks during the game.

Benjamin E. Farrier, an inspector for the New Jersey Motor Vehicle Department, testified to being at the scene of the accident fifteen minutes after Spiegelberg was killed, and said Leopold had been in such a state of mind that he could obtain no explanation as to how the accident happened. He said Spiegelberg's body had been seventy-five feet behind the wrecked car.

Leopold on Stand.

After George Spiegelberg had testified that his brother's death had been instantaneous, Assemblyman Julius S. Berg, counsel for Leopold, moved the hearing be closed, saying no new evidence had been produced. The motion was denied and Leopold was called to the stand. He was nervous and erratic as a witness, and interrupted his own and opposing counsel and also Commissioner Ryan, when the latter was questioning him.

"First I want to say," began the witness, only to be called to order and made to answer questions. "My car shot over to the side of the road and I lost control of it. Then I tried to stop it and found I had no control—and that's all!" said the witness.

He did not think he had been going as fast as fifty miles, but admitted he was going forty-five. He told of getting out of the car and helping the women out. The trio did not at first miss Spiegelberg. Then:

"I walked back; it was the worst walk I ever took in my life; one of the worst things I have ever gone through."

He could not tell how far Spiegelberg's body was from the car. Continuing he said the ball fixed when he was arrested had been $2,000, while it appeared later it had been $3,000; said it was returned to him in April, whereas it was returned in March, and made other errors which were corrected by his lawyer.

Commissioner Harnett, head of the bureau, had been called in by Mr. Hennessey when Leopold took the stand. When Leopold concluded his evidence his license was asked for, and thus, for the time being, the license is suspended until the determination of the case. Following Leopold's testimony argument was heard on the legal questions involved. George Spiegelberg said:

"It seems to me that any one after hearing Leopold's testimony that he was driving his car on the wrong side of a damp road at forty-five miles an hour, after he had been requested by the occupants of the car to drive more slowly, must be convinced that he showed complete disregard of life and property in violation of the law. I have no desire to see Mr. Leopold punished for the unfortunate death of Mr. Spiegelberg, but I do believe and urge that it is unsafe to the people of this State to allow a man of his obviously neurotic temperament to ever again drive a motor vehicle on the highways."

Commissioner Harnett and Mr. Ryan said that a decision in the case will be announced shortly.

MRS. MANTON SUES AGAIN.

Resumes Action for Divorce, Naming Marjorie Rambeau.

Mrs. Mabel Manton of 47 West Fifty-fifth Street for the second time within a year pressed her suit for divorce in the Supreme Court yesterday against her husband, William Kevitt Manton, actor and stage manager. Early last Winter, when the trial of the action was almost completed, the jury was discharged without a verdict, and it was announced that negotiations looking to the settlement had begun. No order of discontinuance was entered, however.

At the trial before Justice Edward J. McGoldrick yesterday, Manton did not defend the action. Marjorie Ramheau, screen star, who had previously denied Mrs. Manton's charges, was named again as corespondent. Witnesses told of a raid on an apartment on Aug. 29, 1925. Decision was reserved.

Farmers and Filling Stations Draw Will Rogers's Comment

To the Editor of The New York Times:

DENVER, Col., Nov. 19.—Hit Denver and ran into another farmers' conference, passing resolutions for relief. What the farmers need to pass is filling stations and they won't need to pass resolutions. Colorado voted dry and now they are blaming it onto the altitude.

ORDERS LONG ISLAND TO GUARD CROSSINGS

ALSO MORE WATCHMEN

This Action Is Taken Pending the Elimination of Places Like Eldert's Lane.

Pending elimination of the grade crossings on the Atlantic Avenue Division of the Long Island Railroad, methods for which are now under consideration by a committee appointed by Mayor Walker, the Transit Commission ordered the railroad company yesterday to install safety devices immediately to prevent repetition of accidents similar to the recent one at Eldert's Lane, in which five persons were killed.

The commission's order directs the company to install at each crossing an automatic warning signal of the flashing red light type and an automatic warning bell and to provide at each crossing an additional watchman so that a watchman may be on duty at all hours except between 1 and 6 o'clock in the morning. The commission also directed the company to place the pedestrians' subway at Autumn Avenue in a safe and sanitary condition and asked the Police Department to cooperate in handling traffic at the crossings. It was said that many passengers now avoided the subway and passed over the tracks at great risk.

The order was issued by Commissioners Leon C. Godley and Charles C. Lockwood, both of whom are residents of Brooklyn, where most of the crossings are situated. It followed a public hearing last Wednesday, at which William C. Lancaster, the commission's chief engineer; William L. Selmer, the engineer in charge of grade crossing elimination, and Gilbert C. Whitney, signal engineer, testified that the installation of an automatic signal system would lessen the hazard greatly. Mr. Whitney estimated that the installation of the red light and bell signals at the nineteen crossings would cost about $114,000.

The crossings in question are at East New York Avenue, Norwood Avenue, Logan Street, Euclid Avenue, Crescent Avenue, Autumn Avenue, Eldert's Lane, Benedict Avenue, Woodhaven Avenue, Vanderveer Place, Napier Avenue, Freedom Avenue, Wyckoff Avenue, Greenwood Avenue, Linden Street, Jefferson Avenue, Johnson Avenue, Lefferts Avenue and Beach Street.

"The question of the elimination of the nineteen grade crossings on the Atlantic Avenue division of the Long Island Railroad between East New York and Van Wyck Avenue has been pending for a number of years," a statement by the two Commissioners read. "The section of the Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens through which the road runs at grade has been built up very rapidly and the nineteen crossings are now used by thousands of pedestrians and vehicles daily, so that there is no question of the need of their elimination.

"Heretofore, when this matter has been up for consideration, there have been conflicting suggestions from the different divisions of the State and City Government having authority, so that the consideration by the committee appointed by Mayor Walker will make for a uniform plan and saving of time.

FIVE HOLD-UP MEN GET LONG SENTENCES

Five men received long terms in Sing Sing when they were arraigned yesterday in General Sessions for hold-ups. Carroll O'Brien, 23 years old, of Woodside, Queens, received a twenty-year term for first degree robbery. William Moore, 22 years old, a first offender, of 4,008 Third Avenue, who had pleaded guilty, got from ten to twenty years.

Sentences of from fonr to ten years each were imposed on Sydney Smith, 23, and Samuel Jones, 23, both of 129 West 134th Street. Hyman Siegel, 24, of 161 Rivington Street, received five years. The latter three had pleaded guilty.

District Attorney Banton, commenting on the sentencing of the robbers, said there appeared to be some misunderstanding about the attitude of himself and other prosecutors in the State on the new Baumes crime laws. He said that while he believed the Baumes laws should be amended when it was found necesesary, he was not in sympathy with condemnation of the new laws as a whole.

"We do not want to get into a fit of hysteria that would swing the pendulum back the other way and destroy all the good that has so far been accomplished and is likely to be accomplished in the future by the Baumes laws," he said. "We do not want the hysteria which results from exceptional cases, like the man who was sent to jail for life as a result of a joy ride, to destroy all the good these laws have done. They have accomplished some real good to my mind."

NIGHT CLUB CURFEW IS HOTLY ASSAILED

Storm of Criticism Causes the Aldermanic Branch to Delay Action on Walker's Bill.

ONE ALDERMAN FIGHTS IT

Stand Calls It Discriminatory and Decries Move to Censor Morals of the Public.

NOT AN ADVOCATE PRESENT

Club Maxine Spokesman Urged "Jimmy" Not to "Hurt Us"—Next Hearing on Nov. 29.

Mayor Walker's so-called curfew bill, which would compel the closing not later than 3 A. M. of all night clubs, cabarets and dance halls, was roundly assailed during a public hearing on the measure yesterday before the Local Laws Committee of the Aldermanic branch of the Municipal Assembly. The bill already has passed the Board of Estimate branch of the local legislature and is now pending before the Aldermanic branch.

Although opponents of the restrictive law were outspoken and emphatic in its denunciation, nobody appeared in its defense. Some of Mayor Walker's friends in the committee thought this was because the prospective hearing had not been well advertised. For that reason, the committee, after hearing some spokesmen of the opposition, voted to adjourn the hearing until 2 o'clock on Monday, Nov. 29.

Alderman Murray Stand, Democrat, representing a lower east side district, although not a member of the committee, declared he was appearing in opposition to Mayor Walker's proposal not as an Alderman, but in his capacity as a private citizen.

Calls it Censorship of Morals.

"I am opposed to this bill," he said, "because it is a piece of discriminatory legislation. It permits certain persons to do things and denies that right to others. In our time we have condemned prohibition, but now we propose to tell the people when they shall go to bed and when they shall stop spending their money. When did we get the right to set ourselves up as censors of the morals of the people of this city? What right have we to invoke the powers of the home rule law for that purpose?

"It is not easy for me to stand here and oppose this measure which has been introduced by Mayor Walker. But even Mayors make mistakes. This bill, no doubt, was introduced with good intentions, but it contains bad clauses."

The speaker declared it was discriminatory because it exempted clubs and hotels with fifty rooms or more. "It has been said," Alderman Stand declared, "that night clubs and cabarets are the rendesvous of 'white-collar' thieves. But what is to prevent the 'white-collar' thieves from going into the night clubs and into the hotels of fifty rooms and upward? This committee cannot discriminate in its legislation without making itself subject to severe criticism. I am absolutely in favor of the 3 A. M. closing hour, but let everybody alike close at that hour. If it be fixed for one class let it be fixed for all. I am asking you to give this measure consideration so that everybody shall be included."

Speaks for Taxi Drivers and Others.

David Stone of the Club Maxine, 10 West Thirty-second Street, announced that he appeared as the spokesman for 26,000 cab drivers, 11,000 night club entertainers and 19,000 musicians who are employed in the night cabarets.

"We owners and performers," said Mr. Stone in an aggrieved tone, "all feel deeply hurt because our friend, Jimmy Walker, introduced this bill—"

"You mean Mayor Walker," corrected Alderman William J. Solomon, Chairman of the Local Laws Committee.

"Yes, of course," assented the Alderman. "Why, we're all good friends of Jimmy Walker and — —"

"You are speaking of Mayor Walker," again suggested the Chairman.

"Yes, Mayor Walker," echoed the speaker. "We think so much of Jimmy—er—Mayor Walker—that we have a song we sing, 'How Do You Do, Jimmy Walker.' That's how much we think of Jimmy—I should say, Mayor Walker—and we are asking him not to interfere with our livelihood. There are 11,000 entertainers, 19,000 musicians and 26,000 taxicab drivers whose wages will suffer if we are forced to close.

"Now, all these people," continued the cabaret advocate, "stood by Jimmy—I mean Mayor Walker—and we stood by the Board of Aldermen during the city elections, and we ask him and you to stand with us this time. Don't hurt us.

"Just think what will happen to business if you close us all down at 3 o'clock. Every night, after midnight, 20,000 visitors come into this city because they know it is a little livelier than where they come from, and they go to our night clubs. They go there to step out and to have a good time and spend their money."

Mr. Stone said he favored a 5 A. M. closing hour and that at present his club was remaining open until 6 A. M.

TESTED FOR PANAMA FLIGHT.

Two Navy Planes Fly Ten Hours Preparatory to Hop Monday.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—Two navy PN-10 seaplanes expected to take off here Monday on a non-stop flight to Colon, Panama, today successfully made a ten-hour test flight from Philadelphia to Hampton Roads.

The planes, built especially for the Panama flight, to demonstrate the possibilities of long-distance scouting, left Philadelphia at 7:15 A. M. and arrived here three nours later, but flew over this city and Chesapeake Bay for seven hours, to carry out the original ten-hour test.

Lieut. Commander H. T. Bartlett, in command, said the hop was uneventful and the motors functioned satisfactorily. The planes covered 800 miles, cruising at a "lazy" speed of 90 miles an hour. The flight to Panama is 2,179 miles.

TELLS NEW ENGLAND TO CHANGE METHODS

Dr. Klein Declares That Section Is Suffering From Out-worn Ways.

PRESSES MARKET RESEARCH

Lawrence Declares Conference Has Mapped Out Concrete Plans for Development.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 19.—Too rigid an adherence to tradition on the part of many New England manufacturing enterprises is one of the outstanding reasons for their failure to progress, according to Dr. Julius Klein, Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Federal Department of Commerce, who spoke today at the closing session of the second New England Conference here. In part he said:

"There are still many older industrial areas which are suffering from 'too much Aunt Sarah,' the good lady who inherited a shoe factory, and since 'Uncle Ezra,' its long deceased founder, had made money producing high button shoes, she saw no reason why the experience and equipment accumulated in turning out that antiquated specialty should be abandoned for a new line.

"There is not a manufacturing or distributing establishment in this country which can afford to tolerate the 'Aunt Sarahs' within its walls," continued Dr. Klein. "There is no road to assured prosperity which is quite so direct as that which is mapped out with the accuracy that can come only from painstaking industrial and marketing research.

Sees Need of Marketing Research.

"The survey of New England trade now being conducted by the Department of Commerce is revealing numerous instances of widespread, almost frantic, efforts on the part of individual firms to gain national markets. The results, in most cases, were filled order books, but by no means filled company coffers. In other words, increased sales costs materially lowered the margin of net profits, and in all too many cases this serious situation was unknown because of the lack of adequate accounts—once more an evident need for economy through more accurate knowledge, and especially through far-sighted sales planning based on sound marketing research.

"An outstanding need, as reflected in this trade survey of New England, is the application of more alert, watchful policies as to the effect of seasonal change. One of the most interesting side lights is that, even in industries whose combined volume has been rapidly declining, there have been individual concerns who have been making rapid advances through foresight and progressive methods."

Report New Plan of Merchandising.

A plan to make New England a merchandising laboratory, with retailers assisting manufacturers in working out their merchandising problems, was presented to the conference by the Research Committee of the New England Council, headed by A. Lincoln Filene of Boston.

The report suggested emancipation from traditional ways of doing business; more attention by New England manufacturers to the service for distributers; keeping all New England's products up to date in accordance with present rapid changes in public demand, and stimulation of demand, rather than waiting for it to develop; more cooperation between New England manufacturers and distributers and among individual concerns in different industries, and more vigorous promotion of their industrial development by New England committees through intelligent support of existing industries and financing of surveys and other proved means of attracting new industries.

In suggesting a department of research under the New England Council, the committee recommended that it find out what new products can be made in New England factories, what new uses can be found for existing products, how the time of operation for seasonal industries can be extended, the possible advantages of mergers and combinations, what methods can be employed to attract new industries and why certain industries have left New England.

Hotel Man Urges Cooperation.

Unity of effort on the part of all New England States was urged upon the conference by E. M. Statler, hotel proprietor, who said he had proved his faith in New England by the erection in Boston of the largest hotel in that section.

"Some individual New England States have made valuable progress in the advertising of their scenic and business advantages," said Mr. Statler. "In this conference we ought to tie together these individual efforts and go out in the country at large with the story of the rebirth of New England's energies. This is the cradle of our first national industry. When the West opened up it tempted much young strength away. Now they are coming back. Let us welcome them—not sporadically and as individuals—but in a concerted campaign to spread knowledge of New England wares and hospitality."

Colonel Frank Knox of Manchester, N. H., Chairman of the Committee on Public Relations and Community Organization, said the time had come to "talk back" to those who persisted in spreading unfavorable reports about New England conditions not in accord with the facts. New Englanders themselves, Colonel Knox declared, have sided in circulating unduly pessimistic reports about their own section.

"Other parts of the country have seized upon these reports and have enlarged upon them," said Colonel Knox, "until it has become almost a habit, not only to criticise New England but to pity New England and to discount her present and future standing in the business world. This so-called New England 'attitude of mind' has cost enormous sums in lost business."

Would Call Psychology to Aid.

Colonel Knox suggested the council invite the assistance "of those who have made a study of the human mind in action and draw upon our institutions to give us a cooperative group of psychologists to help us find the cause for this New England attitude of mind and thus correct it."

Steady and marked decrease in the relative number of persons engaged in agriculture should not cause alarm, Dr. J. G. Lipman, director of the State Agricultural Experiment Station, New Brunswick, N. J., said this afternoon. The efficient tying up of agriculture with the discoveries, inventions and scientific progress of modern industry will enable one-third of the country's population to produce practically all the food fats and fibre materials required by the entire nation, he declared.

"The day of self-sufficient agriculture is largely gone," Dr. Lipman said. "Our industries are creating commodities easily, effectively and cheaply. The crude and painful methods of the self-sufficient farmer must suffer in competition with the centralized and well-organized manufacturing enterprises. An endless number of commodities have come to save the farmer long days of toil and effort. They have made it unnecessary for him to be a Jack-of-all-trades and have encouraged him to specialize."

Louis K. Liggett of Boston, President of the United Drug Company, who presided at the afternoon session, said he didn't believe in labeling products "Made in New England," as he believed such a label tended to limit their distribution.

It was voted to increase the conference's budget for 1927 from $50,000 to $100,000. All States except New Hampshire at once doubled their previous quotas. When John S. Lawrence, the President, heard that but $97,000 had been raised he made a personal donation of $3,000 to supply the deficiency. For next year Maine will contribute $13,000; New Hampshire, $5,000; Vermont, $6,000; Massachusetts, $40,000; Rhode Island, $13,000, and Connecticut, $20,000.

New members elected to the council are:

Maine—W. Scott Libby, Lewiston; Joseph A. Warren, Westbrook.
New Hampshire—Colonel William A. Barron, Crawford Notch; Edgar C. Hirst, Concord; James D. Upham, Claremont; Charles W. Tobey, Temple; George A. Wood, Portsmouth.
Verment—John E. Babitt, Bellows Falls.
Massachusetts—Winthrop Murray Crane Jr., Dalton; Louis K. Liggett, Boston; P. F. O'Keefe, Boston.
Rhode Island—Frank A. Sullivan, Westerly, and Philip C. Wentworth, Providence.

The entire Connecticut membership was re-elected. The council will decide later on the place for next year's meeting. It is expected to be in Manchester, N. H.

MRS. SOPER'S TRIAL ENDS.

Jury Will Decide Today Whether Up-State Woman Killed Husband.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP).—The case of Mrs. Fannie Soper, charged with the murder of her third husband, will go to the jury tomorrow. The last witness for the defense was sworn today, and Justice Crapser will charge the jury tomorrow.

Mrs. Soper was cross-examined this morning by District Attorney Brewster, who failed to shake the bouquet farm woman's story of a stranger who came to the farmhouse and shot her husband, Henry Soper, a deputy sheriff, as he slept during the early hours. Patrick J. Tierney of Plattsburgh, Mrs. Soper's attorney, based his plea largely on alleged unreliability of the testimony of Dr. Albert Haas, an Auburn criminologist, who declared that the two bullets found in Soper's head were fired from a revolver taken from Mrs. Soper.

REID CASHIER ON STAND.

Defense Counsel Asks if He Did Not Fire Toward Hold-Up Victim.

That George N. Condit, aged paymaster of the Reid Ice Cream Company, was killed by a bullet other than one fired from the pistols of the four men standing trial in Newark on a charge of murdering and robbing him of a payroll of $13,250, was intimated yesterday when John W. McGeehan Jr., counsel for three of the defendants, cross-examined Dr. Harrison Martland, Essex County Physician. Dr. Martland testified that the pistol was fired at close range. Mr. McGeehan asked Edward H. Schenck, cashier of the Reid company, if some of the shots he fired were not aimed in the direction of the paymaster instead of at the fleeing robber car.

The four defendants are "Big Joe" Juliano, "Little Joe" Juliano, not a relative of "Big Joe"; Louis Caposzi and Christopher Barone. Condit was murdered in front of the Reid plant in Newark on July 19 last. His helper, Joseph Duff, who was wounded, has already identified Caposzi as the man who pointed a pistol at him. The case is being tried before Judge Edwin C. Caffery.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

A Master 'Cellist.

It is evident that a new 'cellist, and one of the first rank, has come to town. The excellent impression made by Maurice Marechal when he appeared a few days ago as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra was strengthened by his recital last night in Town Hall. Mr. Marechal's playing has all of the fine qualities of the French school, its technical finish and ordered musicianship, its unfailing taste, fineness of proportion, elegance and poetic feeling.

His program last night, it is true, eschewed the most serious 'cello music. It included short pieces by J. S. Bach, Couperin, Boccharini; the D major concerto of Lalo; Fauré's Elegie; three Spanish songs of de Falla, admirably transcribed by Mr. Marechal, and Nadia Boulanger's "Pièce" in C sharp minor. But his was a program of reasonable substance, which aimed to entertain as much as to edify, and in all that he touched Mr. Marechal showed himself a master. His tone on all the strings is warm and smooth as honey. He has a superb left hand, and his technic, very extensive, very substantial, is never ponderous; it conceals itself, it is the unobtrusive agent of his interpretive intentions. Lalo's concerto gave occasion for all of the characteristics of Mr. Marechal's playing that have been mentioned. It was played with a distinction of style and a virtuoso spirit which it would have been hard to surpass. A pity that the orchestra was lacking, but the performance, for all that, was engrossing. Debussy's sonata in D minor for the 'cello, one of the last of the Debussy compositions, is delightful in its lack of pretension, its fanciful or humorous inspiration. There is a model background in the first movement of reveries and melodic traceries of the solo instrument. There is a harking back to the early Debussy here. The second movement is humorous, with much written "pizzicato" for the 'cellist, and a general brilliancy and Gallic sparkle. In all this Mr. Marechal excelled. As much cannot be said for his pianist. The Marechal transcriptions of the Spanish songs of de Falla were played with inimitable esprit—songs of swiftly alternating moods and rhythms, songs of an exotic tenderness or fire. As for Mlle. Boulanger's "Pièce" in C sharp minor, one would say that she had heard "Dixie" as she sped by some station on her de luxe train going West, and, between the whiz and roar of the wheels had tried to sketch her impression on paper. It is a poor piece of music, enhanced though it was by the 'cellist's art. Mr. Marechal had a large and delighted audience. The enthusiasm compelled him to extend his program.

Edwin Delbridge Sings.

Edwin Delbridge, tenor, accompanied by Richard Hageman, gave a song recital last night in Aeolian Hall. He has had experience on Italian operatic stages, but his program last night was one that nearly dispensed with the stock arias that those who sing opera inordinarily love to spread before their audiences; it contained matter that lieder singers and musicians could take to heart. There were old airs by Handel, Young, Ourante; Russian and German songs by Rimsky-Korsakoff, Rachmaninoff, Schubert, Brahms; the aria, "Una furtiva lagrima," from "L'Elisire d'Amore," and modern songs in Italian, French and English by Cimara, Sibella, Cecconi, Leoncavallo, Paulin, Poldowsky, Gliere and MacFayden.

Mr. Delbridge is at his best in songs of a light and lyrical character. The voice is flexible, not large, adaptable for songs that do not require too much contrast or climax. He needs to differentiate more than he does in the expression of varying emotions and in interpreting appropriately the styles of different composers. Technically, owing in part perhaps to nervousness, there was unsteadiness of tone and a tendency to sing flat. The aria from Donizetti's light opera was one of the high spots of the program, and it was cordially applauded. In it the singer showed his experience of opera, and his sincerity commended itself to the listeners. Mr. Delbridge, who has already gained attention in his art, should continue to study technique and interpretation until he has thoroughly worked out his individuality.

ENVOY LOSES INJURY SUIT.

Plaintiff Wins $1,800 Verdict Against Ogden H. Hammond.

A verdict of $1,800 against Ogden H. Hammond, United States Ambassador to Spain, was returned yesterday by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook in favor of Mirko Jorgovan, 11-year-old son of Marinko Jorgovan of Jamesburg, N. J.

The boy was run over by the Ambassador's auto, driven by his chauffeur, on April 25, 1923. The accident occurred in East Seventy-second Street between First and Second Avenues. The boy suffered a fracture of the right leg and other injuries. A motion to set aside the verdict as insufficient is under consideration by the Court.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Cecile Sorel, who will begin an engagement a week from Monday at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, arrives today on the Berengaria.

An announcement from the Shubert office states that Robert McLaughlin, author of "The Pearl of Great Price," plans to make a production in Cleveland of "Hamlet" with Glenn Hunter, now touring in "Young Woodley," in the title role.

The Actors Theatre dinner scheduled for Sunday night, Nov. 28, has been postponed until Jan. 23 at the Biltmore Hotel. Ethel Barrymore is Chairman of the Dinner Committee.

"Just Life," "A Proud Woman," "Sure Fire!" and "If I Was Rich" will end their New York engagements tonight.

Andy Wright, vaudeville producer, plans presently to produce a Broadway revue. It will be known as the "Andy Wright Varieties."

Anne Nichols has engaged Arthur Hohl for the cast of "Sam Abramovitch," which goes into rehearsal on Monday. Miss Nichols's other production, "Howdy King," will play the week of Nov. 22 in Providence and the following week at the Shubert Theatre in Newark before opening in New York.

MUSIC NOTES.

Reinald Werrenrath and Rosa Low sang and Eddy Brown played violin solos before a social audience at yesterday's second "morning musicale" at the Biltmore.

CITY BREVITIES.

The general meeting of the American Merchant Marine Library Association will be held at 67 Wall Street, on Thursday, Dec. 2, at 10:30 A. M. It will be followed by a visit to the Seaman's Church Institute, where a luncheon will be given by Edmund L. Baylies. Frank C. Munson will preside.

A Thanksgiving appeal has been issued for extended support for the Judson Health Centre, 237 Thompson Street, which cares for sick mothers and infants.

Fire did heavy damage yesterday to a three-story brick factory building at 142 Green Street, Brooklyn, which for more than 100 years was occupied by the Empire China Works. The building was vacated several weeks ago.

Membership renewals for the coming year in the Red Cross and contributions to finance its work in Manhattan and the Bronx total $123,744, it was announced last night at Roll Call Headquarters, 578 Madison Avenue. Among the contributions was one of $1,000 from John McE. Bowman.

Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman was elected President of the Emerald Association of Brooklyn last night, to succeed John H. McCooey Jr., who was made Chairman of the Board of Directors.

'LUCIA' AND 'LOHENGRIN' ARE SUNG IN A DAY

Two operas in a day that should have matched the recent gala "Turandot" filled the Metropolitan yesterday, "Lucia" by day and "Lohengrin" at night. Marion Talley, who has had prominent part in the early season, returned to the title rôle of the unwilling wife in Donizetti's tragedy on Scott's "Bride of Lammermoor." The other bride, with a penchant for questions and riddles—no Chinese princess, but Elsa of Brabant—was Mme. Jeritza.

"Lohengrin" was welcomed back by an assembly singularly prompt to hear the overture's start, put forward to 7:45 o'clock. With Jeritza, whose singing gained by one of her rarely "sympathetic" rôles, were Mme. Matzenauer and Mr. Whitehill as the stellar conspirators in dark magic. Laubenthal as the hero took the place of Taucher, now recuperating from an operation on the ear. Tibbett was the King's herald and Bender the King. Bodanzky conducted the lyric score—after all, for many besides Professor Phelps, "there's no opera like 'Lohengrin,'"—and the processional episodes moved majestically through last year's Urban stage pictures.

"Lucia," with its melodies and sextet, delighted a matinee crowd that wished plainly to be pleased with one of the oldest favorites in the repertory. Miss Talley's mad scene was neatly sung, her care for vocal effect being in odd contrast with her girlish appearance as a bride. Lauri-Volpi and De Luca were the leading support, while Miss Egener, Messrs. Pinza, Tedesco and Paltrinieri completed the cast, under the baton of Bellezza.

ROLAND HAYES WARMLY WELCOMED ON RETURN

Negro Tenor Sings 'Spirituals' and Songs of Griffes With Electrifying Emotional Power.

Roland Hayes, the negro tenor, whose artistry during a half dozen years has won highest recognition in London and Paris, Vienna and Berlin, returned again last evening to Carnegie Hall to such greeting as New York gives to few. The house of classic symphonies was sold out to the doors. It was a welcome by his own countrymen, as annually before, and in part by his own race, as has more remarkably been the case in cities of the old South, where the singer's mother was an ex-slave in Georgia.

From the start of his program to the hushed finish in those "spirituals" that he sings with profound conviction the artist again made his audience forget the singer in the song. He did so notably in Beethoven's "Adelaide," added as an encore in English. The limpid syllables, carrying a message of profound feeling, a manly tribute to Beethoven, in the language of present-day hearers, were as pearl-like in sheer vocalization as had been the earlier Italian airs of Caldara and Galuppi and one from Handel's "Amadis in Gaul."

Perhaps the combination of a natural voice of range and beauty with the capabilities of extraordinary delicacy and with electrifying emotional powers, such as orators show, may be fairly the secret of Roland Hayes's popular as well as artistic appeal. With William Lawrence again his accompanist, he gave exemplary German lieder of Schubert and Brahms. Just before the "spirituals," most of which were his own musical settings in the true vein of their humbly devotional originals, he also introduced last night an entire group of songs of musical and poetic value by the late American composer, Charles T. Griffes, too little heard today.

COURT HOLDS RADIO IS MUSIC; FREES TWO

Hears Loudspeaker Number, Called "Noise" by Woman, and Rules It's Harmony.

POLICEMAN SUPPORTS HIM

Renditions by one Cortlandt St. Dealer Were "Nerve-Racking," but Is Critical of the Other.

Harmony broadcast over the radio or a policeman's conception of discord "on the air" do not endanger life nor work a detriment to health, as defined in a city ordinance, Magistrate Charles W. Simpson ruled in the Tombs Court yesterday afternoon when he dismissed charges brought by a policeman against two Cortlandt Street radio dealers at the behest of Miss Alice Lahey, a woman publisher in the vicinity, who called the renditions "just merely noise."

To arrive at this decision the Magistrate listened to a five-minute demonstration of one of the alleged offending radio sets in his court, during which a jazz band, according to the radio announcer, rendered "Everything Will Happen for the Best." The Magistrate also took into account the previous testimony of Patrolman Lawlor of the Old Slip Station that when Lawlor heard that particular set in action on the afternoon of last Nov. 3 a soloist was "harmoniously" rendering "When You and I Were Young, Maggie."

Lawlor insisted that while he had no professional knowledge of music, he knew that the soloist sang harmoniously. He swore that he was standing 25 feet from the radio dealer's store at 8 Cortlandt Street when, amid the din of vehicular traffic, the honking of automobile horns and the bumping of elevated trains and screeching of brakes on elevated trains entering the Cortlandt Street stations of the Sixth and Ninth Avenue lines, he clearly heard the radio. It had been set up in front of the place by the owner, Herman Kraft, he said, but, in response to a question by the Magistrate, the witness admitted he didn't consider its music "nerve-wracking" in violation of the ordinance, nor did he feel that his health had been impaired in any way by listening to it.

The radio establishment of Harry Rosenberg, a short distance from Kraft's place, was the other shop complained of.

Assistant District Attorney Robert V. Santangelo, in attempting to sustain the police charges, insisted the matter of harmony or discord was not involved, but just one of whether occupants of office buildings in the vicinity were subjected to possible nervous prostration by the continuous din caused by the loud-speakers.

It was after this that the Magistrate ordered the radio turned on and the announcer said the orchestra would play "Everything Will Happen for the Best." The Magistrate ignored the title, but ran through the crowded courtroom, and when he ordered the radio shut off he said:

"I have studied music in my day. I have attended the opera, I have heard sounds from different musical instruments and, I might say in passing, I have for twenty-five years played the piano, being acquainted with harmony, sharps and flats and all those things which go toward producing music. And I have heard this radio set.

"I believe that the sounds that I have heard from this radio set are harmonious. They certainly do not endanger life nor are they detrimental to health. This defendant is engaged in business to earn a livelihood. He is located in a noisy street and no act of his has been proved in this court to show me that he has done anything dangerous to the life or health of the community. I herewith discharge him."

Rosenberg also was discharged from custody when, after Patrolman Lawlor had completed his testimony against him, Assistant District Attorney Santangelo recommended such action to the Magistrate.

SHATTUCK HEIRS DIVIDE $500,000 TRUST FUND

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Nov. 19.—Judge Arthur M. Robinson in Probate Court today approved a $500,000 trust fund agreement which had been made between Mrs. Mary S. Shattuck, widow of Albert R. Shattuck of New York and Lenox, and four nephews, William V., Albert L., F. Burrall Hoffman and L. Murray Hoffman, sons of the late Lucy E. Hoffman, a sister of Albert R. Shattuck, with respect to the construction of the will of William B. Shattuck.

Under the will of the elder Shattuck a trust was created for the benefit of his widow, son and daughter. This trust terminated with the death of Albert R. Shattuck, the widow and daughter having previously died.

Under one construction of the will Mrs. Albert R. Shattuck, who is a daughter of the late Mayor Strong of New York, would have been entitled to one-half the fund outright. Under another construction she would have been entitled to one-third, while the Hoffman brothers thought they were entitled to all of it.

By the agreement the nephews get one-half the fund outright and Mrs. Shattuck a life interest in the other half, the principal of which is to go to the four nephews or their heirs after her death.

ORDER FOR G. M. HECKSCHER

Court Bids Him Submit to Examination in Action by Carle Carlton.

G. Maurice Heckscher, son of August Heckscher, was ordered by Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel yesterday to submit to an examination before trial of the suit for $251,200 brought against him by Carle Carlton, theatrical producer. Justice Wasservogel named Oswald N. Jacoby, attorney, of 170 Broadway, as referee to take testimony.

According to his complaint, Mr. Carlton on Oct. 16, 1925, entered into an agreement with Mr. Heckscher by which he halted his production of plays which were ready for presentation and sought to promote a real estate venture in Florida. The property at Shaker Lake, Osceola County, and at Okeechobee, Fla., was owned by a corporation in which Mr. Heckscher had a controlling interest, he said. Mr. Carlton was to receive stock to the extent of 25 per cent. of the capital stock of the controlling company, he declared in his complaint. This was guaranteed by Mr. Heckscher to be worth $250,000. In lieu of it he said he was to get $250,000 in cash.

Mr. Carlton gave up his theatrical undertakings and went to Florida. On Dec. 22, 1925, he said he was discharged, without justifiable reason and without the promised stock. His payment, he said, amounted to $300 on account for expenses of $1,500.

BEHA TO LIFT BARS ON NEW INSURANCE

But Sets Conditions—He Finds Limits Will Be Reached by Many Larger Companies.

In a letter to all authorized life insurance companies in New York State, James A. Beha, State Superintendent of Insurance, said yesterday that he would consider applications, made under certain conditions by the individual companies, for suspension of limitations on acquisition of new business, fixed by Section 96 of the Insurance Laws.

Mr. Beha said in his letter that judging from the statements of new business written during the initial eight months of 1926, it was evident that insurance companies writing not less than 50 per cent. of the amount of life insurance written by authorized companies in the State would reach the limits prescribed in Section 96, and for this reason the Insurance Department had decided to hear applications on suspension of the limitations.

"That the company is conducting its said business and producing the results as set forth in the calculation of the maximum amount permitted to be issued and in the petition, has kept within the expense limitations as provided in Section 97, New York Insurance law;

"That it does not have any arrangement for the payment of office or other agency expenses which are made contingent upon the production of specified amounts of new business;

"That it does not have any arrangement for the payment of renewal commissions in excess of the maximum permitted under Section 97."

A fourth condition calls for the agreement by the companies to transact business only under several conditions. Among these are non-payment of additional allowances or increased compensation to agents, &c., without permission of the Superintendent; no contests for new business other than the regular contests of the company; no special business drives; no efforts to obtain new agents, except to replace resignees or those whose contracts have terminated; no salaries, advances, or drawing accounts to agents who have been in the business more than one year; abolition of any relationship between the compensation of salaried employes to the amount of business they obtain; non-employment of soliciting agents in the employ of any other company; covering of allowances for office or other agency expenses in detail by vouchers easily verifiable; no compensation for agents for looking after business on the company's books for more than fifteen years; and non-financing of general agents, either directly or indirectly, in obtaining brokerage business on assignment renewals.

URGES FEDERAL RADIO LAW.

Co-ordinating Committee Advocates Government Control of Broadcasting

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Legislation to establish Federal control over radio broadcasting was advocated in a statement today by the National Radio Coordinating Committee, of which Walter A. Strong, publisher of The Chicago Daily News, is Chairman.

"If it is impossible to secure the enactment of permanent legislation in the immediate future," the statement read, "Congress should pass an emergency measure to prevent further confusion in the ether."

The committee recommended that the broadcasting control legislation should be based on the requirements of the States and communities in which stations are located and on the length of time stations have operated.

"The legislation should be regarded from the standpoint of public service which will redound to the greatest benefit, not only to the public, but to the manufacturer, dealer and broadcaster" the statement read. The committee also urged broadcasters who have been performing effective service and whose rights have been interfered with to resort to the courts to protect their interests.

GRANGE SEEKS SUPPORT.

Will Ask All Farm Bodies to Urge Relief Legislation.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 19 (AP).—All farm organizations will be asked to support the farm relief program and other agricultural policies which the National Grange adopted at its sixtieth annual meeting here, it was announced today by Louis J. Taber of Ohio, National Master of the Grange, following a meeting of the Executive Committee.

The Grange planned to "put the greatest legislative pressure" on its resolutions asking Congress to enact legislation providing an export debenture system to aid the farmers, favoring the lease of Muscle Shoals for manufacture of fertilizer, and recommending the designation of a national "Farmer's Day" to call attention to agriculture.

The Executive Committee has not yet formulated any definite plan for investigation of charges that liquor was sold on American ships outside the 12-mile limit, but the members said the investigation probably would be instituted and carried on through the Grange's Washington office.

Eugene A. Eckert of Illinois, who introduced the Grange resolution for farm relief, was re-elected Chairman of the Executive Committee today. Leslie R. Smith of Massachusetts was chosen Secretary.

DELVE INTO MORSE FILES.

Three Witnesses Are Called to Identify Shipping Records.

Three witnesses testified at the Morse trial before Judge Thomas D. Thacher in the Federal Court yesterday. Two of them had been recalled to identify records from the United States Steamship Company and its subsidiaries.

Gebhard Bodenmuller, a stock transfer clerk of the company, who was recalled, testified to entries on the stock ledgen, interpreting some of them as transfers of stock held in reserve for the acquisition of the Palmer Shipyards and small boat companies and as having been taken from reserve and credited to the accounts of Harry F. Morse and E. A. Morse trustee account.

Lester C. Merrick, a former bookkeeper of the company, was recalled and told of the issuance of stock in the names of various office employes. Arthur F. Norris, a bookkeeper, told of correspondence between himself and Rupert M. Much, a defendant. He identified a letter from Nehemiah H. Campbell, former Treasurer of the company, which concerned the "setting up" of books for the United States Ship Corporation, another subsidiary.

The session was marked by long arguments between counsel and at one time nine lawyers for the defense took part.

QUIET WOOL TRADE.

Foreign Markets Active, Home Market Barely Firm.

BOSTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The market here has been quiet and somewhat erratic, with prices barely firm. Foreign markets, on the contrary, have been active, especially Bradford, where large sales of fine tops have been made for forward delivery, while primary markets are very firm.

"The season in New Zealand opened with a strong sale in Wellington Tuesday, where prices were above the parity of the River Plate. Australia has been firm, although the selection left much to be desired.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The disturbance that was central over Wisconsin Thursday night had moved northeastward to Ontario and the secondary disturbance that developed over the Southern Appalachian region is now central over Maine with somewhat increased intensity. Pressure is also relatively low over the Middle Plateau and the North Pacific States. Pressure is high over all other regions and it is abnormally high over the Northwest, Battleford, Saskatchewan. Fair weather will prevail Saturday and Sunday almost generally in the States east of the Mississippi River, except that there will be snow flurries Saturday in the lower lake region, the extreme upper Ohio Valley and the northern portions of Eastern New York and Northern New England. The temperature will not change materially, although it will be slightly lower in New England Saturday and in the Lower Mississippi Valley and East Gulf States Saturday night or Sunday.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Wall Street's interest was divided yesterday between the declining stock market and the rapidly rising franc. Each represented continuance, at a somewhat accelerated pace, of the preceding day's movement. The franc advanced more rapidly yesterday than on any day this year excepting Aug. 3, when Paris suddenly woke up to realization that Poincaré had the Chamber of Deputies under absolute control, and that his whole program of fiscal legislation was insured. Yesterday's extreme rise from 3.48¼ cents to 3.63 was not as great as the succession of daily quarter-cent advances in the "bear panic" of March, 1924, but it marked enhancement of more than ¼ cent in two days, and of nearly ½ cent., or 15 per cent., since the first week of the present month.

At Paris, a sweeping decline in sterling's price in terms of francs brought the rate to 137, exactly midway between the two most discussed "stabilization figures," 150 and 125. The violence of yesterday's advance in francs, on top of the previous rapid appreciation, surprised foreign exchange dealers and caused some discussion of the possibility that the market may have got out of hand and have struck a pace that the Government did not wish. After this week's movement, some halt or reaction would seem to be inevitable and, indeed, desirable. But with the weight of French capital returning home and bidding for remittances thrown into the scale, the position is unusual.

Yesterday's stock market moved as unevenly and irregularly as on all previous days this week; there were, indeed, a few actual net advances of 1 to 4 points to vary the general downward trend. But the movement as a whole was distinctly downward, and most of the shares which have led in the recent speculation lost 2 to 4 points. The day's weakness was in no respect occasioned by developments in the news, nor did it appear to be associated with any change for the worse in ideas of future trade developments. It mostly reflected professional Wall Street's mood, and as such was not of great importance.

The dropping fire which still continues, in the controversy over whether Prosperity is still in full swing or has begun to wane, lends more than the usual interest to the weekly trade reviews. As the present year has abundantly proved, these mercantile diagnoses have frequently failed to reflect the actual conditions—perhaps because, being based largely on reports from salesmen in the field, they are necessarily colored by surface indications rather than underlying movements, perhaps because the mercantile mind has not yet fully grasped the meaning of the new "hand-to-mouth buying" methods. These shortcomings have had the effect of emphasizing unfavorable rather than favorable points in the situation, and the present summaries must be read with that in mind.

On the whole, this week-end's picture is encouraging. "Cross-currents" and "divergent results" are reported, as indeed has been the case throughout the year. Yet there is much that is distinctly encouraging. In particular, "textile output is now on a larger scale than for about a year past," even labor troubles in the trade diminishing. Still more interesting as a sequel to a steady cotton market at the lower value, the week's reports to one mercantile agency are cited as showing that "most of the improvement visible has been at the South." Looking ahead, the public's buying power and disposition to buy are "showing no essential diminution," so that "the expectation is that sales of holiday goods will reach very large totals." That does not prove everything as to general trend; the Christmas trade of 1919, on the eve of the great deflation movement, was described in current reports as "a Saturnalia of buying." But 1926 is at least no 1919, and testimony to the stability of the consuming market will be received gratefully.

RAILROAD ARBITERS ADJOURN ABRUPTLY

Recess Until Nov. 30 Thought to Mean by Some That Board Has Reached a Decision.

CLARK MAY FRAME AWARD

Chairman Leaves for Washington—Dec. 12 is Time Limit Set on Arbitration Proceedings.

The Board of Arbitration, which has been holding secret sessions at the Waldorf all week to settle the increased wage demands of 80,000 trainmen and conductors on Eastern roads, announced suddenly yesterday that it would take a recess until Nov. 30.

Beyond this bald announcement, the proceedings were wrapped in the same secrecy which had surrounded them since Monday. In some railroad quarters, however, the board's adjournment is taken to mean that a decision finally has been reached in the long arbitration proceedings. It is believed that when the members of the board reconvene a week from Tuesday they will be ready to sign a completed award.

Under the arbitration agreement of Aug. 25, which brought the present board into being, it was specified that an award must have been made within forty-five days from the first day of the arbitration hearings. This was Oct. 28, making Dec. 12 the time limit. A loophole for further negotiation is left by allowing an extension of time if both sides agree to it; but no such request has yet been made by the arbitrators.

Following yesterday's meeting Chairman Edgar E. Clark, a former Interstate Commerce Commissioner, left for his office in Washington carrying a bulging briefcase. It is possible that Mr. Clark has been delegated the task of drawing up the text of the wage award.

This arbitration is the first to be conducted under the newly enacted Watson-Parker Railroad Labor act. When mediation efforts by a Federal board failed, arbitration was resorted to. They were continued for almost two weeks with witnesses representing the trainmen and conductors and the railroad companies. Masses of statistics and charts were submitted by both sides.

The hearing ended last week, after which the arbitrators went into executive session. Members of the board are W. Jelavan Baldwin, President of the Otis Elevator Company, and Chairman Edgar E. Clark, representing the public; William A. Baldwin, Vice President of the Erie, and Robert V. Massey, general manager for the Eastern division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, both representing the employers; and Daniel L. Case, editor of The Railroad Trainman, and E. P. Curtis, General Secretary of the Order of Railway Conductors, representing the employes.

Mr. Schwab has been Chairman of the Board of Directors since 1924, when the Splitdorf interests were joined with the Bethlehem Spark Plug Company. He will remain in that capacity.

Other elections made at the directors' meeting yesterday were R. W. Porter, General Sales Manager; Fred W. Upton and George W. Lang, Vice Presidents.

LOAN OF $20,000,000 TO YOKOHAMA IN VIEW

Announcement by Morgan & Co. and Other Bankers Expected to Be Made on Monday.

Announcement is expected on Monday of a $20,000,000 loan to the City of Yokohama, Japan, by a syndicate to be headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. This loan has been rumored several times as part of the development program undertaken after the Japanese earthquake of 1923 and is now understood to have been virtually completed.

Yokohama's growing business, as well as the necessity of reconstructing property damaged or destroyed by the earthquake, has called for extensive public works. Owing to the policy of the Government of restricting foreign borrowing, there has been no outside financing except for absolutely essential purposes. Following the earthquake, however, the Japanese Government entered into an agreement with Tokio and Yokohama to guarantee part of any foreign loans contracted for reconstruction. In the case of Tokio the guarantee was limited to the equivalent of $50,000,000 and in the case of Yokohama to $40,000,000.

Kenzo Mori, Japanese Financial Commissioner to this country, recently arrived in New York from London, and it is understood that he has conferred with bankers here on the Japanese financial program. While in London he arranged for a loan to Tokio which represented, in part, a refunding of a bank credit that had been extended several years ago. The decision to place the loan to Yokohama in New York was reached after plans for a flotation in London, with the alternative of domestic financing, had been considered.

TO TAKE OVER RAILROAD.

New Corporation Formed to Control Toledo, Peoria & Western.

George P. McNear Jr., 111 Broadway, announced yesterday that the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad Corporation had been formed in Illinois to take over and operate as an independent property the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railway. The purchase of the road at foreclosure was made by Mr. McNear on Nov. 1.

After denying reports that the Wabash Railway was preparing to acquire the road, Mr. McNear said that the Toledo, Peoria & Western was in no way committed to any other road. The road has sold its terminal at Peoria to the Peoria & Pekin Union Railway, lessee of the terminal for many years, but will maintain its operating arrangement for handling business through the Peoria gateway.

Reports Securities Lost.

The loss of securities valued at many thousand dollars and belonging to the People's Bank of Rolling Prairie, Ind., was announced on the ticker of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. No explanation as to how the securities were lost or where could be obtained. The Stock Exchange had simply been asked to publish an announcement of the loss. The missing securities include $2,000 of Rock Island-Frisco Terminal bonds, $2,000 Argentine bonds, three $2,000 Swift & Co. bonds, $2,000 Van Camp Packing bonds, $3,000 Pillsbury bonds, and others.

Bank Loan in Reichsmarks Rumored

Rumors were heard in the financial district yesterday that the Allgemeine Deutsche Boden-Credit Bank of Germany will soon issue through New York and London bankers a loan of 24,000,000 gold reichsmarks bearing a 7 per cent. coupon at a price of 96. The rumors could not be confirmed here, however. If the loan should be brought out it would be the first to be issued publicly in reichsmarks.

Bankers on Way to Butte.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (AP).—Representatives of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Company of New York passed through Chicago tonight en route to Butte, Mont., to bid for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on Monday. They were joined here by H. E. Byram, once President of the road and now one of its receivers. They indicated that no competitive bidding was expected.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Heavy selling, directed mainly against such leading industrial issues as United States Steel and General Motors, gave trading in the New York Stock Exchange an appearance of distinct weakness during the later period yesterday. While several stocks showed substantial net gains at the close of the market, the greater number of the more representative issues, particularly in the industrial group, were ranged behind minus signs. The market as a whole displayed a fairly steady tone at the opening, which Wall Street attributed to the favorable credit situation revealed in the Federal Reserve Bank's statement. Operations for the advance were carried on with some determination during the second hour, but the market turned irregular around noon in response to a heavy selling movement in Standard Oil of New Jersey common. This was followed by a mild rally of brief duration. Weakness in Steel common seemed to furnish the basis for a rather general selling movement during the early afternoon, the railway issues joining the industrials in the downturn. The market closed weak.

Strict Attention to the News.

The stock market was declared by some Wall Street watchers to be paying more attention than usual to the minute-to-minute financial news of the day. This was ascribed by them to the irregularity which had developed in industry as a whole, a change of sufficient importance to bring a similar and pronounced condition to the stock market. This, it was argued, explained why Wall Street is furnished with the spectacle of two or three groups of stocks advancing while other groups decline. For instance, in yesterday's market, the sugar stocks, several of the railroad equipment issues, the tobacco shares, some or the radio stocks and Baldwin Locomotive were quite strong under the pressue of accumulation. On the other hand, the oil shares, most of the coppers, the steels and any number of specialties were considerably lower.

Runaway Market in Francs.

The swing of the pendulum in favor of the franc reached yesterday as great violence as the opposite movement of early last Summer and is proving to be just as difficult to check. That expatriated capital is returning to France from many parts of the world was demonstrated not only by the strength in the francs, which reached a new high point at 3.63 cents, but also by an easier range in sterling and other exchanges. The "runaway market" in francs was reported to be causing many protests in France because of its reaction on prices of securities and on business there, and the French Treasury is making strenuous efforts to halt the advance. Although several billions of francs have been sold, the French financial executives have been unable to interrupt the advance. For several days technical conditions have seemed to call for a reaction following such a sharp upward swing, but the flow of funds to France continues unabated. Talk began yesterday in Exchange circles to the effect that, when stabilization reaches a definite stage, the franc may be established on a level appreciably higher than current quotations.

Monday's Cotton Estimate.

The cotton crop has gained in the last fortnight, according to a consensus of eighty-eight members of the New York Cotton Exchange. Their guess on the showing of Monday's Government report is 18,061,000 bales, as compared with an official forecast two weeks ago of 17,918,000 bales. Usually this guess comes within shooting distance of the Government's figures, and two weeks ago it was less than 6,000 bales out of line with these figures. It was hard for Wall Street to believe, however, that even a forecast of 18,000,000 bales or more by the Government would have any particular effect on the cotton market because of the present firm inquiry for the staple from spinners. As usual, however, a considerable amount of "evening up" on the part of speculators is expected.

Strength in Traction Bonds.

Large buying of local traction bonds was attributed yesterday to a report that the Board of Estimate would soon be ready to announce a decision on the question of bus franchises. On the theories that a definite policy would stabilize the transit industry and that existing companies would share in the benefits, this was considered a favorable development in the investment market. Interborough 5s, 6s and 7s, as well as several Third Avenue Railway and New York Railways issues, displayed a firmer tone. The only other feature of the domestic bond market was accumulation of St. Paul bonds at higher prices. French bonds were the centre of interest in the foreign list, with advances both in Government and industrial issues, a reflection of the advance in the franc and of generally improving conditions in France.

Mr. Ford in the News.

Henry Ford is often used to brighten a story that otherwise might be unbearably dull. Yesterday appeared to be a particularly good day for rumors of this sort. The first report from Chicago had it that he may step up to the anctioneer in Butte, Mont., on next Monday and snatch the St. Paul Railroad from the grasp of Jerome Hanauer and Pierpont Davis. The second rumor, which seemed to railway men to be much more logical, was that he was negotiating for the Virginian Railway, which does not lack many miles of connecting with the Southern terminus of his Detroit, Toledo & Ironton. If true, the latter action would place him in competition with the Van Sweringens, who have hopes of leasing the Virginian through the Chesapeake & Ohio. In fact, if the C. & O. is used as the stem of their new system, the Virginian would be of great valns as an auxiliary line in the transportation of soft coal.

Expect More Oil Financing.

Reports of a forthcoming bond flotation by the Standard Oil Company of New York continued to furnish a topic of discussion in banking circles yesterday. While officials of the company have given no definite information as to their plans, interests close to the company are aware that financing of considerable size is in prospect. No announcement of the plan will be made, however, until the present operations of Standard Oil of New Jersey are out of the way. It is expected that the offering will run as high as $50,000,000, and that the company will ask the stockholders to grant authority that will leave a considerable margin for future financing.

Japanese Stabilization.

With the Japanese yen uniformly steady at a level only about ⅝ of a cent below par, there was increasing talk yesterday of the possibility of a stabilization loan to be made to Japan in connection with a return to the gold standard. There seems to be little doubt that Japan will resume gold payments fairly soon, but it is a question whether foreign credits will be utilized. Japan has been increasing her gold surplus, and has built up reserves in this country and elsewhere by exports of the metal. For several years the policy of the country has been to limit foreign borrowings to absolute necessities, and it may be that the gold transition will be undertaken without foreign aid. The American market, however, will soon obtain a $20,000,000 bond issue of the City of Yokohama.

EXPECT REFUNDING BY GOVERNMENT SOON

The United States Treasury Department is expected to announce new financing early next month, to take effect on the Dec. 15 quarterly tax payment date. The Government on that date must pay off $450,000,000 of 3¾ per cent. certificates of indebtedness, and investment bankers expect this will be done through a refunding issue, despite the fact that tax payments and the Treasury surplus would appear ample to retire the maturing debt.

It is estimated that tax receipts will be around $400,000,000, and that the Treasury general fund will amount to between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000. The Treasury last June did no new financing to care for indebtedness due at that time, but the Government now is talking of a tax rebate which would go far toward absorbing the surplus for the fiscal year 1927.

Bankers generally believe that the December financing will consist of short term obligations. The chief basis for this belief is the expectation that the next long-term borrowing of the Government will be on a 3½ per cent. basis. The 3¾ per cent. bonds sold last March, the lowest rate Government obligations put out since the war, are now selling on a 3.60 per cent. yield basis. When the yield goes to 3.50 per cent. it is expected there will be consideration of a long-term bond issue, possibly some time next year. Market conditions suggest that it would be feasible to offer a 3½ per cent. issue, to run for nine months.

INDIA'S SHIFT TO GOLD BREAKS SILVER PRICES

Local Market Drops 1⅜ Cents to 54⅜—Loses Also in China and London.

News that the British Government had formally accepted the recommendations of the Indian Currency Commission to establish a gold standard for India accounted for a sharp break yesterday in the price of silver, and the currencies of the silver issuing countries.

The local market for silver dropped 1⅜ cents, to 54⅜ cents, and in London the price sagged ½d to 25⅝d. Losses ranging from ⅝ to 1⅛ cents occurred on the Chinese exchanges, including the Hongkong, Shanghai and Peking remittances.

The proposal to change the standard of India's currency to gold from silver was first brought in as a recommendation of the Currency Commission last Spring. This brought in its wake a tremendous amount of speculation in which Chinese operators were the most active and in which record low levels were reached here and in London. The change will mean the virtual release of hundreds of millions of ounces of India's silver previously hoarded for coinage, and with this surplus of stocks open market rates broke down under the weight of offerings.

ARKADY DECISION UPHELD.

Fleischmann Company Wins $206,400 Judgment in Patent Suit.

A judgment of $206,400 has been rendered in favor of the Fleischmann Company as the result of a suit instituted by that company in the United States District Court at Cleveland against the Beyer Company, a Cleveland concern, for infringement of patents covering the process of using a yeast food, known as Arkady, in the manufacture of bread.

The United States District Court held that the patents had been infringed and the suit was taken on appeal by the Beyer Company in the Circuit Court of Appeals. This court fully confirmed the decision of the lower court. The Beyer Company has filed exceptions to the confirmation of a master's report.

Executives of the Fleischmann Company said yesterday that this suit was the first of a series of similar actions that they intend to institute against manufacturers of yeast food infringing the so-called Arkady patents.

NEW STANDARD OIL DEBENTURES 100 1-2

Offering Price Announced by Morgan & Co. to Holders of Preferred Stock.

$1,000 AS MINIMUM ORDER

Order of Preferences Established for Subscribers to Reduce Dividend Payments.

J. P. Morgan & Co. began sending letters last night to the 38,000 holders of the 7 per cent. preferred stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, inviting them to exchange their holdings for the new 5 per cent. debentures of the company. The letter disclosed that the debentures, amounting to $120,000,000, will be priced by the offering syndicate at 100½ and interest.

The preferred stockholders will have a full week in which to subscribe to the debentures, so that public offering will not be made before Monday, Nov. 29, and it may not be made for several days after that. The public offering, however, is to be little more than a gesture, since under the preference given to the stockholders, and with heavy advance orders already received from distributing houses, it is doubted that any debentures will be available to the general public at the offering price. There already have been sales of the debentures on a when-issued basis as high as 102.

A complicated system was worked out in the allotment of the debentures, and the bankers said it probably would be a week before the response of the preferred stockholders all over the country could be tabulated.

System of Preferences.

The first call on the debentures is given to preferred stockholders who agree to turn over their stock to J. P. Morgan & Co., who will then turn it over to the Standard Oil Company at the redemption price of $115 a share. The second preference is given to preferred stockholders who desire to subscribe to the debentures but who wish to keep their stock until its redemption on March 15 next.

The purpose of the plan for the exchange of the preferred stock in subscribing to the debentures is the avoidance by the company of paying double charges on its obligations. The $200,000,000 of preferred stock cannot be called in before March 15, and another dividend will be payable on that date, the company meanwhile, of course, paying interest on the debentures. A saving in dividends is effected for every share of preferred stock which is exchanged at this time for debentures.

After describing the plan under which the preferred stock is being retired and announcing that the syndicate which is being formed will offer the $120,000,000 debentures at 100½ and interest, the letter of Morgan & Co. to the preferred stockholders reads:

"Especial consideration will be given to preferred stockholders who desire to subscribe for any of these debentures at 100½ per cent. and accrued interest, and who make application to us by mail or telegraph, either directly to us or through their regular bankers or dealers, to reach us by the opening of business on Monday, Nov. 29, 1926. In making individual allotments, preference as among such preferred stockholders is to be given to those whose applications are so received and who undertake to surrender at our office, on or before Dec. 8, 1926, for sale to the company sufficient preferred stock, computed at 115 per cent. flat, to make payment for the amount of the debentures allotted. The debentures so allotted are to be delivered on or about Dec. 15, 1926. The dividend due Dec. 15, 1926, will be payable on that date to the holders of record of the stock used for such payment, so that such stock will be received by us ex such dividend.

Minimum Order, $1,000.

"Debentures will not be issuable in a denomination less than $1,000, and that amount is the minimum for which any preferred stockholder may make application. Against such minimum subscription not less than nine shares of preferred stock must be surrendered in order to avail of the above-mentioned preference in allotment.

"2. Number of shares of preferred stock to be surrendered;

"3. Exact name and address in which such preferred stock is registered.

"Stock sent to us by or in behalf of a subscriber as above provided, to an amount sufficient as nearly as may be to pay the subscription price for the debentures allotted to such subscriber, is to be sold by us, as agent of the subscriber, to the company at the above-mentioned price of 115 per cent. flat, whereupon the proceeds will be applied by us to such payment of such subscription price. Surplus stock comprised in certificates received by us, and surplus proceeds of sale, will be forwarded by us to the subscriber or his representative at the time of the delivery of the debentures or as soon as practicable thereafter. In sending stock to us in response to this communication, the sender irrevocably instructs and authorizes us as his agent to make such sale, and to apply the proceeds thereof as stated.

"The syndicate managers reserve the right to make allotments in their uncontrolled discretion."

STANDARD OIL STOCK DROPS.

A decline in the common stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to $39 a share, the lowest level of the year, drew attention yesterday to heavy selling operations carried on in connection with arbitrage transactions. The total turnover was about 38,000 shares and the quotations ranged from 40⅝ to 39.

Trading in the rights which have been offered to holders of the common incident to the issuance of 3,449,317 shares of additional stock was the heaviest since they were admitted to trading privileges on the New York Stock Exchange. More than 450,000 rights changed hands at prices ranging from 1⅞ to 2⅛. The closing quotation was 1¹⁵⁄₁₆, the net loss on the day being ⅛ point. The common stock ended the day with a net loss of ⅞ point.

Arbitrage transactions, which were active on Thursday, dwindled yesterday as the common stock touched 39 and the rights broke below 2, wiping out whatever margin may have existed for a profit in such trading.

After the close of the market on Thursday borrowing of Standard of New Jersey common was the feature of the stock loan market. The borrowing rate was 4½ per cent. Most of the borrowing, it was understood, was against arbitrage sales that had been made in the course of the day.

By close calculation a very slender margin of profit may have been realized Thursday by members of the Exchange who were not obliged to pay commissions, but it appeared doubtful that any margin sufficient to justify the effort existed yesterday, except for possibly a brief period.

Large institutional and foundation holders of the common stock are said to have been heavy sellers of the rights. Some of these organizations, while keeping their stock holdings at the original amount, were not disposed to exercise their subscription rights, preferring to sell them and take profits.

$57,970,500 BONDS ABSORBED IN WEEK

New Investments Dominated by Utility Issues Reaching a Total of $41,050,000.

OPERATIONS FOR REFUNDING

Railroad and Foreign Securities Absent—Standard Oil of New Jersey to Come.

Dominated largely by public utility issues, the investment market absorbed $57,970,500 of new bonds in the week ended yesterday, which compared with $70,755,000 last week and $167,830,000 in the corresponding week of last year, when the total was swelled by the flotation of a $100,000,000 loan of the Italian Government. The offerings, by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Public utility	$41,050,000	$14,650,000
Industrial	9,332,500	11,000,000
State and municipal	4,388,000	12,294,000
Farm loan	3,000,000	......
Railroad	......	17,821,000
Foreign	......	15,000,000
Total	$57,970,500	$70,755,000

Large refunding operations, as well as extensive additions to facilities in many parts of the country, were included in this week's public utility financing. With money at present levels and the bond-price average the highest in years, corporations continue to find it feasible to call in bonds and re-borrow at substantially lower rates of interest. Three utility issues—the Potomac Edison Company, the Western Power Corporation and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois—accounted for $31,250,000 of this week's bond total, and there were additional utility issues by companies in New England, the Middle West and other parts of the country.

Two oil companies, Beacon and Sims, arranged new financing during the week, and industrial issues also included borrowing by concerns in the lumber and motor accessory lines. There was a fairly large number of municipal issues, but they were mostly for moderate amounts, the largest borrowers being Asbury Park and Passaic, N. J. There was one farm loan offering a $3,000,000 issue by the Dallas Joint Stock Land Bank.

The bond market continued strong all week, high records being established in the averages for both domestic and foreign issues. All the new offerings were absorbed readily by the investing public.

The principal financing now approaching the market is the $120,000,000 new issue of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey 5 per cent. debentures, which will be offered next week by J. P. Morgan & Co. and a syndicate. The public offering, however, will be only nominal, since the debentures have been heavily over-sold in advance. There is a considerable volume of additional public utility, industrial and South American financing scheduled for early offering.

A group headed by Harris, Forbes & Co. and including Coffin & Burr, Inc.; Bonbright & Co., Inc., and Lee, Higginson & Co. announced yesterday that it had purchased and would offer on Monday a new issue of $16,000,000 Texas Power and Light Company first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, 5 per cent. series, due in 1956.

Public offering will be made soon of an additional issue of $1,000,000 Electric Public Service Company 6 per cent. secured gold bonds, due in 1941, by a syndicate headed by Stanley & Bissell, Inc., and R. E. Wilsey & Co., Inc.

Montour Railroad Valued.

ARMENIAN BLOCKS OIL PLAN IN MOSUL

American Companies May Drop Interest Because of Turn of Negotiations.

DEVELOPMENTS EXPENSIVE

British, Dutch and French Also Participants in Promotion by Turkish Company.

Difficulties which the Turkish Petroleum Company, Ltd., is having in arranging an agreement with C. S. Gulbenkian, an Armenian capitalist, threaten to prevent the participation of five American oil companies in the development of the Mosul fields, which are said to contain the richest unexploited petroleum deposits in the world.

Mr. Gulbenkian, long a dissenting figure in the Turkish Petroleum's Mosul project, is understood to have declined to sign a contract with the company on the basis of an understanding reached several months ago, whereby he was to be assured of a 5 per cent. royalty in the company's production.

The negotiations have not been abandoned, but so many points of disagreement have arisen, it was learned yesterday, that the American companies interested may eventually wash their hands of the undertaking. These companies are the Standard Oil of New Jersey, the Standard Oil of New York, the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport, the Gulf Refining Company and the Atlantic Refining. Together they have been preparing to take a 25 per cent. interest in the Turkish Petroleum Company.

No Recent Information.

At the offices of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, whose President, Walter C. Teagle, has been active in the negotiations with the Turkish Petroleum Company, it was said yesterday that no recent information had been received as to the new difficulties, but that it was presumed efforts still were being made to reach an agreement with Mr. Gulbenkian. Executives of the various American companies have been kept informed in a general way of the negotiations and of the inability of the Turkish Petroleum Company to come to terms with the Armenian capitalist.

The attitude of the American oil companies is understood to be that they will not be greatly disappointed if circumstances compel them to withdraw from the project. They agreed to go into the project, under certain conditions, with the full realization, it was said, that they are engaged in a pure gamble and one that might be tremendously expensive.

Geologists of the Turkish Petroleum Company have made extensive explorations in the Mosul region and their reports, it is understood, have indicated the presence of petroleum in commercial quantities. However, problems of production and transportation are so great as to make it doubtful whether operations can be carried on profitably. For one thing, it would be necessary to lay a pipe line 500 or 600 miles to the Mediterranean, and this would be a costly undertaking in which the American companies would have to share.

Oil companies of four nations are represented in the Turkish Petroleum Company to develop the oil fields in the region of Iraq, Mesopotamia. The European groups are the Anglo-Persian, which is a British governmental corporation; the Royal Dutch Shell organization and a French group.

"It is the first time in history," Mr. Teagle said some time ago in announcing the plan for the participation of the American companies, "that four international oil groups have come together in this way." His announcement was made after his return from Europe, at which time he explained that an "agreement in principle" had been reached with Mr. Gulbenkian.

Agreement Only Oral.

This agreement, it was indicated yesterday by persons who have been interested in the negotiations, was oral and was subject to the signing of a final contract. Mr. Gulbenkian had been the stumbling block which originally threatened to keep the American companies out of the enterprise. The Standard of New Jersey, for one, it has been understood, objected to entering the project unless he was eliminated as a factor in the management. The agreement reached with him whereby he was to receive a royalty interest was thought to have brought about his elimination, but late reports from London have indicated that he is still insisting upon conditions which the other interests in the organization are unwilling to grant.

The Turkish Petroleum's officials have been carrying on the negotiations with a clear understanding of the position of the American interests and are still endeavoring to iron out the difficulties, according to information received here. The Standard of New Jersey and the other American companies associated with it have had no recent advices which indicate that the Turkish Petroleum officials are preparing to drop the negotiations with Mr. Gulbenkian, but, as one official here expressed it, "the present situation appears to be such that it may take five years to reach an agreement."

It is intended, if the present difficulties are overcome, to form an American holding company to hold the 25 per cent. stock interest which the five American companies are to have in the Turkish Petroleum Company.

RECORD FOR FREIGHT SPEED

Daily Movement of Cars in September Was 32.7 Miles.

A new high record for all time in the speed with which freight was handled was established by the railroads in September, the Bureau of Railway Economics announced yesterday. The daily average movement of freight cars on the steam roads was 32.7 miles. This exceeded by one-half mile the best previous record, established in October, 1925, when an average of 32.2 miles was attained. The average for September this year was an increase of 1.9 miles over September last year and an increase of 3.9 miles over September, 1924.

In computing the average movement per day, account is taken of all freight cars in service, including cars in transit, cars in the process of being loaded and unloaded; cars undergoing or awaiting repairs and also cars on side tracks for which no load is immediately available. The average load per car in September was 27.3 tons, an increase of one-half ton over September, 1925, and an increase of three-tenths of a ton above September, 1924.

Vitaphone Seeks to Add to Stock.

The Vitaphone Corporation, controlled by the Warner Brothers Pictures Corporation, has made application to the Secretary of State in Albany to increase its capital stock from $500,000 to $10,000,000.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

French Franc Continues Upward—Sterling, Continentals Weak—Chinese Down With Silver.

Increased buying of the French franc, popularly attributed to the return home of expatriated capital, yesterday lifted Paris checks to 3.62½ cents, an overnight gain of more than ⅛ cent, and unequaled since March 12.

Business continued fully as heavy, and the tone of the market was just as nervous as on Thursday, and while no actual estimate of the turnover could be calculated, in the opinion of those usually well informed this was said to approximate several hundred millions of francs. The bulk of the buying orders came from abroad, with Amsterdam interests the chief operators. Talk of a reaction for technical reasons alone was heard, but it was further stated that this would not run beyond a few points at the outside.

Sterling, lire, pesetas, kroner, guilder and other Continental descriptions all sagged as the franc passed on its way higher. Sales of these for conversion into the French was the underlying reason for the reaction. Sterling lost 1-16 cent, to $4.84 7-16, while lire broke more than 4 points to 4.18¾ cents. Other rates fell proportionately. Silver currencies dropped on plan to establish gold standard in India. Brazilian milreis was down ½ cent, to 12.18 cents, on spread of revolt in that country.

MIXED TENDENCIES IN WEEK'S TRADE

BETTER WEATHER A FACTOR

Brighter Conditions in South Are Laid to Steadier Price Level of Cotton.

The appearance of many cross-currents in the week's reports on trade and industry has been the most noteworthy factor and the general status of business is regarded in most sections as slightly more favorable. Better weather has been an important influence and the fact that cotton has sought a steadier price level has brought rather a better tone to business in the South.

"Both statistical records and reports from the principal trades show divergent results," Dun's Weekly Review states. "The irregularity of conditions has recently increased, but the contraction of activity which has occurred in some basic lines has been an orderly process, without generally unsettling effects. Commodity prices, being already relatively low, held comparatively steady.

"Broadly considered, the present situation is not one which encourages buyers to expect material price reductions, although in isolated cases there is some holding off in the hope of obtaining concessions. The stability of prices this year, viewing the markets as a whole, has been an interesting phase, there having been an extreme variation of only about 6 per cent. in an index number computed on a per capita consumption basis."

Bradstreet's says of the situation:

"Numerous cross-currents are revealed in the week's trade and industrial reports with surface developments as regards trade making a slightly more favorable appearance, owing mainly to cooler weather in wide areas helping trade. As most of the improvement visible seems to have been in the South, it is probable that the steadier tone of cotton prices, inducing larger marketing of that staple, was an additional helpful factor. Reports from the Central West showed little change on balance, and it is possible that colder weather there was partially balanced by rains or snows, which had a dulling effect upon country trade, upon which bad roads naturally impinge.

"In industrial lines the prospects early in the week of the probable settlement of the British coal strike caused a rather decided softening in the price of this commodity, with sympathetic effects on coke and some iron prices and a retarding effect on sales of the latter commodity. Steel trade reports are of a further slight quieting down of sales and production. The advance of the season has been reflected in some further lagging in actual building operations. Automobile manufacturing seems to have shown little further quieting at large centres of this industry, but a part of the slowing in steel buying is credited to this cause or to a tendency on the part of implement makers to slow down, pending a clearer view of the outlook for farm products, notably cotton and corn."

Dwight Braman has sold his seat on the New York Stock Exchange after a membership lasting thirty-six years and is preparing to devote all of his time to the Allied Patriotic Societies, of which he is President. This organization, which he helped found six years ago, has associated with it fifty of the country's leading patriotic societies.

Mr. Braman, through this body plans to encourage the teaching of English to uneducated foreign-born living in this country and to discourage the immigration of undesirables.

Mr. Braman has been President of the Law and Order Union of New York State for twenty-one years. He owns a game preserve at the head of Frenchman's Bay, in Maine.

FIRST TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, TRUSTEE

Hotel Sherman Company, Chicago, having acquired the mortgaged property and assumed the payment of principal and interest of this bond issue, the following information has been furnished by Mr. Ernest Byfield, President of Hotel Sherman Company:

SECURITY

The bonds of this issue are secured by a closed, first mortgage on land, owned in fee, consisting of approximately 16,200 square feet, fronting 108 feet on State Street and 150 feet on Goethe Street, Chicago, Illinois, and a 16-story, fireproof, residential hotel to be erected thereon, and the hotel furnishings, furniture, and equipment.

Land, appraised by Winston & Company, and by Albert H. Wetten, of Chicago	$405,000
Building, when completed, appraised by Holabird & Roche, Chicago	1,760,000
Estimated cost of furnishings	400,000
Total	$2,565,000

On the basis of the above appraisals and estimate, this issue is 58.47% of the value of the mortgaged property.

1301 North State Street Building Corporation was originally organized by Messrs. Joseph Beuttas and Robert DeGolyer for the erection of an apartment house at the northeast corner of State and Goethe Streets. The land, and building to be constructed, were subsequently acquired by Hotel Sherman Company, and the plans of the building were changed to provide for a 16-story, fireproof, residential hotel, to contain approximately 2,170,000 cubic feet and to be operated in connection with the Hotel Ambassador, which is also owned by Hotel Sherman Company and is across the street from the new site.

The bonds and mortgage were, in connection with the purchase of the property, assumed by Hotel Sherman Company on November 1, 1926; and the payment of principal and interest unconditionally guaranteed, jointly and severally, by Messrs. Ernest Byfield, Eugene Byfield, and Frank Bering, who are officers and controlling stockholders of Hotel Sherman Company.

The building is now in the course of construction, and its completion, and installation of the furnishings, free and clear of all prior liens, are unconditionally guaranteed by Hotel Sherman Company, and by Messrs. Ernest Byfield, Eugene Byfield, and Frank Bering, jointly and severally; and completion of the structure by B-W Construction Company, Contractors, who will erect the building.

EARNINGS

Hotel Sherman Company has purchased this property to capitalize the good will and experience gained in the ownership and operation of the Hotel Ambassador, across the street. Net annual earnings of the new hotel, available for the payment of principal and interest of this bond issue, are estimated at $310,000, on the basis of actual earnings of the Hotel Ambassador for a period of four years, under the same ownership and management. This is more than 3¼ times the greatest annual interest charge of this issue.

OWNERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT

As above set forth, the property has been acquired and will be operated by Hotel Sherman Company. Hotel Sherman Company owns and operates the Hotel Sherman, at Randolph and Clark Streets, one of the largest and best known hotels in the United States; the Hotel Ambassador, at North State and Goethe Streets, and operates under lease the Fort Dearborn Hotel, at Van Buren and La Salle Streets, all in Chicago. These properties have been appraised by Albert H. Wetten, Chicago, as to land and leaseholds, and by Holabird & Roche, Chicago, as to buildings, at $18,135,153, subject to a first mortgage of $8,750,000. The net earnings of the company during the past four years have averaged $946,582 per annum, and for the current year have been estimated by Arthur Andersen & Co., Certified Public Accountants, at $1,500,000.

SINKING FUND

A sinking fund provides for the retirement, by purchase or redemption, through monthly payments beginning July 1, 1929, of a certain number of bonds each six months. These sinking fund payments, beginning at the rate of 2% per annum, retire $30,000 of bonds the first year, and thereafter increase until payments sufficient to retire $72,000 of bonds are made in the year ending July 1, 1945. An aggregate principal amount of $807,000 of bonds is retired by these payments prior to maturity.

These bonds are offered, when, as and if received and accepted by us. The legality of the issue and all legal details (except questions of title) have been approved by Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, for the bankers; by Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann & Levinson, for 1301 North State Street Building Corporation, and by Felsenthal, Struckmann & Berger, for Hotel Sherman Company. A mortgage guaranty policy of Chicago Title and Trust Company in the sum of $1,500,000 will be delivered to the Trustee. It is expected that delivery of definitive bonds will be made on or about December 10, 1926.

EXTRA DIVIDEND ON SEATING STOCK

American Company Increases Its Rate and Declares $1 Per Share Extra.

WITH REGULAR PAYMENTS

Associated Gas Declares Extra of 12½ Cents in Stock on Original Preferred.

Four extra dividends were announced as the feature of the list of corporations making disbursements yesterday. Several other unusual declarations were made, including one stock dividend, declaration of dividends for the whole of next year by one company, payment of accumulations, one increase in the dividend rate and passage of one quarterly dividend.

Directors of the American Seating Corporation increased the quarterly dividend rate on the common stock from 50 cents to 75 cents a share, and declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common. This extra dividend is payable in quarterly installments of 25 cents each for four successive quarters of the ensuing year. The regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the preferred was also declared.

The Associated Gas and Electric Company declared an extra of 12½ cents on the original preferred stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 87½ cents and the regular quarterly of $1.75 on the $7 preferred. Instead of cash dividends, the option is given of 3 15-100 of a share of Class A stock for each share of the original preferred and 5 5-100 of a share of Class A stock on the $7 preferred. On the basis of $35 a share for the Class A stock, this is at the annual rate of $4.41 a share for the original series preferred and $7.70 a share for the $7 preferred.

Extra for Bucyrus Company.

An extra disbursement of 1¼ per cent. on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividends of 1¼ per cent. on common and preferred, was announced by the Bucyrus Company.

The National Transit Company declared an extra of 12½ cents in addition to the regular semi-annual dividend of 25 cents.

The Herman Nelson Company announced dividends for the coming year as follows: Dividend of 30 cents and stock distribution of 2 per cent. for the first quarter and quarterly dividends of 30 cents plus 1 per cent. in stock for the last three quarters.

The Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad announced a dividend of $4 on the 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, of which $1.50 covers the regular third quarter requirement, while the remaining $2.50 reduces the accumulations on this stock from $20 to $17.50.

Directors of the Scoville Manufacturing Company declared a stock dividend of 25 per cent. Stockholders ratified an increase in stock from 17,700,000 to 22,125,000 and a change in the par value from $100 to $25.

The Atlanta Terra Cotta Company declared a dividend of 4 per cent. on the preferred stock. The last dividend was 1 per cent. on Sept. 16.

Directors of the Gould Coupler Company passed the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the Class A stock, due at this time. The scarcity of railroad buying during the past six months, they said, made it necessary to conserve cash.

Albert B. Ayres of Morristown, Secretary of the company, and Stanley L. Gedney Jr. of Maplewood were appointed receivers under bond of $25,000 by Judge William N. Runyon.

NEW SUGAR RECORDS IN PRICES AND SALES

RAW GOES TO THREE CENTS

Cuban Commission's Report for Restriction Expected Soon—London Market Affected.

For the first time in its history, the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange made records in the volume of transactions in sugar futures on two consecutive days, it was disclosed yesterday after the final sales. Transactions in sugar on the Exchange yesterday totaled 225,575 tons, an advance of 44,000 tons from the record of 181,360 tons established Thursday. Previous to the present movement the record volume of sales was 172,050 tons, sold on June 24.

Prices of all sugar futures again advanced to new high levels for the year. The market opened from two to five points higher and advanced ten to twelve points. Subsequent liquidation carried prices below the opening levels, but all positions closed three points higher on the day's trading.

Despite an advance to three cents a pound achieved in the raw sugar market, sellers were unwilling to offer the commodity at this price. It was reported that there were some sales fractionally above this price, but the reports could not be confirmed. Some refiners increased their quotations to consumers, but the maximum price of 6.10 cents a pound reached on Thursday was not exceeded.

It was learned in sugar circles that the restriction of the Cuban sugar crop for 1927 to 4,500,000 tons, news of which started the present movement, will be recommended by a commission appointed by President Machado. This commission is to report within a few weeks.

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Excitement prevailed in the Mincing Lane sugar market this morning over the announcement that the Cuban sugar crop would be restricted to 4,500,000 tons. British refined advanced 18 pence per 112 pounds, and English granulated, 12 to 18 pence. Foreign descriptions rose 7 pence half penny to 9 pence.

The White Terminal sugar market was also excited. Twenty thousand tons were bought on the first call, prices rising 7 pence half penny to 9 pence per 112 pounds.

CURB TRADING CHECKED BY CALLING OF LOANS

Trading in the Curb Market yesterday was irregular but steady. The volume of business continued small. In the first two hours prices were generally higher, but later the calling of loans by banks caused some irregularity. However, in most cases these offerings were easily absorbed, and at the close a steady undertone was shown.

The activity and strength of tropical oils were the features of the market. Standard oils were irregular, while the higher priced independent issues were higher.

Utilities were steady, but the activity of the last few sessions was lacking. Industrials were mixed, but declines were more than offset by the advances of the most active issues. Sugar stocks were strong, while on the other hand, the baking issues were weak.

Bonds were fractionally higher, the utilities and rails being the features of the domestic bonds. German steel bonds were the leaders of the foreign group.

BANKS SEEK TO ORGANIZE.

Cambridge National Among Those to Apply to Controller.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Applications to organize were received yesterday by the Controller of the Currency from the Cambridge National Bank, Cambridge, Mass., capital $200,000, and Harrington Park National Bank, Harrington Park, N. J., capital $25,000, through Charles J. Carlsen of Carmen Road.

Application to convert the Marfa State Bank were received from the State National Bank, Marfa, Texas, capital $100,000. Charters were issued to the Stewart National Bank, Livonia, N. Y., capital $75,000, and the First National Bank, Verdugo City, Cal., capital $50,000.

Voluntary liquidation has been entered into by the First National Bank, Ashton, Iowa, capital $25,000, succeeded by the First National Bank, Ashton.

PROTESTS THE SALE OF ONYX CONCERN

Research Head Says Offer of the Stock to the Gotham Company Is Too Low.

HE CALLS FOR PROXIES

Charges "Certain Interests" Have Depressed Prices to Get the 125,000 Shares.

A call for proxies from Onyx Hosiery Company shareholders to provide opposition to the sale of the company to the Gotham Silk Hosiery Company was issued yesterday by William J. Baxter, President of the Silk Research Bureau of America. Mr. Baxter said that the offer made to Onyx shareholders was too low and that he has brought its terms to the attention of the New York Stock Exchange's Board of Governors and to Professor William Z. Ripley of Harvard University. Mr. Baxter's letter to Onyx shareholders said in part:

"Our analysis gives us good reason to believe that Onyx stock is worth much more than its present unnatural price. Our studies have convinced us that certain interests have depressed the stock to its present low price, in spite of the enormous hosiery boom, to accumulate 125,000 shares turned over to the Gotham interests.

"The holding of 75 per cent. of Onyx stock by one group is one of the most flagrant examples of the abuse of Stock Exchange privileges. Gotham Hosiery stock, with only $8.12 net tangible assets behind each share, has been marked up so that at today's market it has a value of between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000. For every share of Onyx common stock, our survey indicates there is over $50 in actual assets, yet it is proposed to sell this company to Gotham at a bankruptcy price."

The Gotham Silk Hosiery Company yesterday issued notice of call for redemption of its outstanding first and second preferred stocks at 110 and accrued dividend Feb. 1. After Dec. 1 holders of either stock may receive the call price and accrued dividend to date of presentation of certificates by presenting them at the National Bank of Commerce.

WIN FIGHT TO BUILD RAILROADS IN TEXAS

MUST PROCEED AT ONCE

Or Two Contesting Roads Will Be Allowed to Renew Plea to Lay the 229 Miles.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—The long four-cornered battle for the right to pioneer in extensive railroad construction in the South Plains area of the Texas Panhandle was won today by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the St. Louis-San Francisco systems.

The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized these two major lines to build 229 miles of railroad at a cost of $7,132,000, but ruled that unless they proceeded promptly with the work the Santa Fé and the Texas, Panhandle & Gulf railroads, whose applications to build in the same territory were rejected, would be permitted to renew their requests. Several projects for additional railroad mileage in Texas have yet to be ruled upon.

Under the decision, which came several months after a commission examiner had submitted a report recommending approval of certain applications with many conditions, the Fort Worth & Denver, a subsidiary of the Colorado & Southern, which in turn is controlled by the Burlington, will be permitted to build 202 miles of line at an estimated cost of $6,000,000.

The main portion of the new construction, 132 miles, will run from Estillene, through Plainview to a point in Castro County. In addition, the road will build two branch lines, one fifty miles long terminating at Lubbock, and another nineteen miles long reaching Silverton. The projects must be completed by Dec. 31, 1929, the commission ruled.

The Frisco, through a subsidiary, the Quanah, Acme & Pacific, was authorized to build twenty-seven miles of new line from McBain to Floydada at a cost of $1,132,000.

The Texas, Panhandle & Gulf had proposed a new system 303 miles long, with terminals at Seymour and Fort Worth, Texas, and Tucumcari, N. M., to cost $11,177,000. The commission questioned the ability of the company to finance the project and declared the estimated cost filed was lower than the anticipated cost of the completed system.

The Santa Fé, which operates the Pecos & Northern Texas, had planned to build several branch lines into the area, and protested that the Burlington and Frisco should not be allowed to enter territory now tributary to the Santa Fé system. The commission ruled, however, as did the Texas Railroad Commission, that the Burlington and Frisco railroads were entitled and financially able to proceed with their extension.

PROVIDES DISCOUNTING FOR COTTON FINANCING

Head of Federal Farm Loan Board Issues Order to Credit Banks—Prohibits Speculation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Federal intermediate credit banks were instructed today by Commissioner A. C. Williams of the Federal Farm Loan Board to discount notes offered by State cotton financing corporations. The order resulted from a conference here last week between representatives of the finance corporations and Federal officials seeking to outline a program for the orderly marketing of this year's record cotton crop.

The financing corporations have been organized with a capitalization and borrowing strength of $160,000,000 and are expected to finance the storage of 4,000,000 surplus bales for eighteen months.

Notes of the finance corporations may be discounted, Mr. Williams said, "when it appears to the satisfaction of the banks that the proceeds of such notes have been advanced or used in the first instance for financing the production of cotton or defraying indebtedness arising from such production, provided, of course, that this privilege shall not be extended to any person for financing the purchase of cotton for speculation therein."

ENDS ACTION AGAINST EVANS

Powers Consents to Court Order in Consolidated Exchange Case.

By consent of both sides, Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel denied yesterday an application of William E. Powers as a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange for an injunction restraining Philip Evans, its President, from continuing with his plans for reorganization of the Exchange.

The stay was vacated on condition that the pro rata share of retiring members in a fund of $130,000 should continue to be held aside, maintained for their claims. Mr. Evans and the Board of Governors had issued certificates of participation to members who withdrew, but shares in the remaining proceeds of the sale of the Exchange's building at Beaver and Broad Streets has not been paid to these members.

The suit of John H. Frohisher, also a member of the Exchange, for the appointment of a receiver and the termination of its business, is pending.

NATIONAL CITY BANK LOSES RUSSIAN SUIT

The Trading Company, relic of Russian Empire business, won its second legal fight against the National City Bank of New York yesterday when the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment of $343,003.22 rendered after a trial before Supreme Court Justice Proskauer in January, 1925.

The Trading Company once had factories and warehouses for blending and packing tea in Moscow and Odessa and 3,000 employes were in its service, but the Soviet Government nationalized the property. Meanwhile, the Trading Company, from 1918 to March, 1921, deposited money in the National City Bank amounting to nearly the sum of the verdict just won. On March 23, 1921, the bank notified the company that it would not honor drawings on the account. It declared that the status of the company was in question because its property came under the Soviet decrees.

Bringing suit for the recovery of the deposits, however, counsel for the company showed that most of the deposits had been made since the fall of the empire and that the directors had continued to hold meetings in France.

The bank unsuccessfully held that payment of the deposits would render it liable to later suit here or abroad if the present Russian Government, which also claims the deposits, were recognized.

GETS LARGE TIN ORDER.

American Sheet and Tin Plate Receives $31,500,000 Contract.

Tentative contracts for between 5,500,000 and 6,000,000 boxes of tinplate, equivalent to 275,000 to 300,000 tons, valued at approximately $31,500,000, have been received by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, from the American Can Company and the Continental Can Company, according to reports received from Pittsburgh yesterday.

Deliveries are to be made next year and specifications will be given monthly for shipments. No information as to the division of the business among the buyers was given, but it is believed that American Can took between 4,500,000 and 5,000,000 boxes and Continental the remainder.

It is assumed that the average price is around $4.25 a base box, although those concerned in the transaction have not revealed the price. At this figure the contracts are valued at between $28,750,000 and $31,500,000.

RUBBER CONTINUES TO DROP

Prices Down 60 to 90 Points in Active Positions at Close.

Added impetus to the decline in crude rubber prices, which has continued now for more than a week, was evident yesterday when all active positions finished the day with losses of from 60 to 90 points. Prices at the opening showed even greater declines with some "short" covering and a little trade buying in the distant periods brought about a moderately steady tone later.

Nine positions were traded in for a volume of 233 contracts, including one old one. September, in which there was little interest, showed the greatest fluctuation with a decline of 90 points, and a few lots in July were done at 80 points under Thursday. Other positions closed 60 to 70 points lower.

COAL STRIKE NEWS UNSETTLES COTTON

Reports That English Unions Have Voted Against Peace Force Prices Down.

DECLINE OF 9 TO 12 POINTS

Rumors That 25,000 Bales Will Be Brought to New York for December Delivery Also Depressing.

Reports from London that mine organizations had voted against the acceptance of terms to end the English coal strike, together with uncertainty over the Washington crop estimate to be issued Monday, exerted an unsettling influence on cotton yesterday.

Liquidation increased and prices worked off throughout the session, ending at a net loss of 9 to 12 points on the day. Rumors that 25,000 bales would be brought to New York for delivery on December contracts and the largest visible supply on record at the close of the week had a depressing effect on the market.

Resistance developed on slight recessions owing to the quantity of December contracts wanted as hedges being put forward to later months. Most of the day's swapping business was done at a discount of 5 to 6 points under January. Demand for December exerted a steadying influence on the entire list. In addition to activity in near positions, blocks of May were purchased against sales of October, which reduced the October premium to 28 points over May and 75 points over December.

Week-end figures showed 794,000 bales in sight, against 621,000 last year, making 9,078,000 for the season, against 8,691,000 last year. Spinners took 446,000 against 456,000 last year, making 5,184,000 against 5,036,000 last season. The visible supply increased 343,000, compared with 164,000 last year, bringing the world's supply of American cotton to 6,172,000 against 4,779,000 a year ago.

"Spindle Hours" in October 1⅜% Above September, 0% Above 1925.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Cotton spinning in October showed slightly increased activity over September this year and was much more active than in October last, the Census Bureau's monthly report indicated today.

Active spindle hours for October totaled 8,369,684,07, or an average of 224 hours per spindle in place, compared with 8,247,975,101 or an average of 220 in September this year and 7,961,670,919 or an average of 210 in October last year.

Spinning spindles in place Oct. 31 totaled 37,428,398, of which 32,592,806 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 37,413,598 and 32,134,682 in September this year and 37,905,330 and 32,425,206 in October last year.

The average number of spindles operated during October was 37,020,077 or at 98.9 per cent capacity on a single shift basis, compared with 36,839,408 or at 98.5 per cent capacity in September this year and 33,898,925 or at 89.4 per cent capacity in October last year.

SELLING HAMMERS WHEAT PRICES DOWN

Liquidation Sets In and the Market Sags to Near the Season's Low Level.

WEAK CONDITIONS ABROAD

Corn Firm Despite the Decline in Wheat and Closed Higher —Rye Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Liquidation was on in wheat, and, with free selling by houses with Northwestern connections, all deliveries sold at a new low on the crop, May breaking 3¼ cents from the early high, and the finish was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of 2⅛ to 2⅝ cents, and the undertone was distinctly heavy at the last. The best support came from holders of bids and from shorts, the latter being heavy buyers at times, but the rally from the inside figure was surprisingly small considering the extent of the buying. Numerous stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way down and sellers of bids were forced to protect themselves.

Buenos Aires was weak throughout the day and was 2¼ cents lower at the last, with May off 5¼ cents from the finish on Monday. Winnipeg also was weak and lost 2⅜ to 2⅛ cents for the day, while Liverpool, after showing strength early, declined rapidly and close ½ to 1¾ pence lower. Better weather conditions in Argentina had considerable influence in determining the trend of values during the day, and little attention was paid to the coal strike.

With all deliveries of wheat closing at about the lowest levels of the season, there was an extremely bearish feeling prevailing among traders after the close, and while it was felt that the technical position had been improved by the decline, there was nothing in the character of the news to cause any confidence on the part of the bulls, and few of the latter were to be found.

Export sales of wheat in all positions were finally estimated at 500,000 bushels, including some hard Winter from Montreal and a little via the Gulf. The latter grain sold at 10¾ cents over Chicago December for November loading, an advance of ½ cent in the premium.

Primary arrivals today, 1,027,000; week ago, 1,862,000; last year, 1,393,000. Shipments, 1,354,000; week ago, 727,000; last year, 629,000.

Corn was firm despite the decline in wheat and closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher. Trade in the aggregate was not large, but there was a lack of pressure, and it took but little buying to bring about a good rally from the inside figures. Spot premiums were unchanged to 1 cent higher.

Primary arrivals today, 336,000; week ago, 1,228,000; last year, 770,000. Shipments, 278,000; week ago, 533,000; last year, 369,000.

Oats finished unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, with the action of wheat the main influence, and rye was ¾ to 1 cent lower with that grain, although there were reports of 300,000 to 400,000 bushels sold for export at the seaboard, which, with the 400,000 bushels the previous day, made about the best week's business on the crop.

WHEAT DECLINES HERE.

Futures Prices Drop 3 Cents to New Low for the Season.

The wheat futures market on the New York Produce Exchange yesterday covered a wide range, the market opening steady at ¼ cent to ⅜ cent higher. Later in the day, however, a limited demand was met and under commission house and local selling prices dropped 3 cents a bushel from the highs to new lows for the season and the market closed after a covering movement which caused some let-up in the pressure, with net losses of 2 cents.

Sentiment was a little more mixed after the close, but aside from some evening-up for the week-end, there was little to account for the small rally from the inside figures. Argentine conditions remained the dominating factor, although the rapid approach of the closing of navigation received more consideration, as it was feared that unless foreign demand for Canadian wheat improves materially stocks there will prove burdensome during the Winter.

STOCKYARDS RATES SLASHED BY JARDINE

FIRST ACTION UNDER LAW

Order, Effective at New Year, Is Expected to Cut Charges by $400,000 Annually.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Acting for the first time under specific authority vested in him under the Packers and Stock Yards act, passed five years ago, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine decided today that commission rates charged in the Omaha stock yards were excessive and ordered sixty-eight commission merchants to lower their rates in the face of a demand for increases.

The Secretary's decision, which was characterized by counsel for the commission men as "so drastic that it will put every commission man in Omaha out of business," asserted that the respondents were "acting through their exchange to exercise a monopoly and to fix rates arbitrarily." Widespread interest in the order was manifested because of its effect on the live stock industry.

J. S. Boyd of Chicago, representing the commission merchants, intimated that an appeal from the decision would be taken. He said that while his clients had asked an increase of $60,000 a year, or approximately 60 cents a car on the 100,000 cars that enter Omaha annually, the reductions ordered would reach $400,000.

A new schedule of rates outlined by the Secretary will go into effect on Jan. 1. It includes:

For selling cattle, $15 a car in place of a present schedule ranging up to $21.

For selling calves, a maximum of $15 for single-deck cars and $16 for double-deckers, in place of present rates of $21 and 27, respectively.

For selling hogs or sheep, $12 maximum for singles and $18 for doubles, in place of $14 and $22.

Somewhat similar changes are made in buying rates.

Mr. Jardine's decision touched on the right of an individual to contract for work or labor and said that in this case the services were personal services, "in the rendition of which the value of property used is relatively small."

Mr. Boyd, on the other hand, said the case involved the "evaluation of intelligence, which cannot be classified or standardized, as the department is attempting to do."

He added:

"If the department can fix a maximum wage, it can also make a minimum wage, and then, because a bricklayer uses brick in one State made in another, it can regulate his wage if it follows the theory on which this case was argued. I believe that the Agricultural Department is wrongfully depriving the commission men of their freedom to contract for work and labor."

Signing the order was one of the Secretary's final acts before leaving for the White House to attend a Cabinet meeting. He then left the city for a vacation.

Dry Goods Trade Off.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say: "Current wholesale distribution of dry goods did not quite reach the figure recorded during the same week last year and maintained about the same volume as last week. Road sales did not reach last year's total for the corresponding period. There were more customers in market than during the same week a year ago. Collections were not quite as good as for the corresponding week in 1925."

FIFTH AV. DEAL PENDING.

Negotiations for the Resale of Vanderbilt 'Twin' House Are Underway.

Benjamin Winter, one of New York's best known real estate operators, admitted yesterday that negotiations were pending for the resale of the Vanderbilt "twin" house at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street. The property, which is known as the Henry White house, was purchased by Mr. Winter last January.

Mr. Winter said "negotiations for the sale of the property have been pending for more than a month, and there is more than one person interested in the deal; but as yet no contracts for its disposal have been closed."

This statement puts at rest the rumor that the prospective buyer of the property is General Cornelius Vanderbilt, who occupies the adjoining "twin" house at the northwest corner of Fifty-first Street.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Some Foodstuffs Declined, but the Dairy List Was Higher.

Although there were fewer declines shown in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week than last, those in the current list so far outnumber the advances as to be something out of the ordinary. The present week's list also contains considerably fewer revisions than last week's, the principal change being in the smaller number of declines. The current division is forty declines and fifteen advances. Ten of the latter are in the foodstuffs and three of the remaining five are in metals.

The following table gives the minimum prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal.

The changes in the foodstuffs were evenly divided at ten advances and ten declines. At least six of the former, however, were in such minor edibles as sugar and spices, whereas the bulk of the declines was in the major foods. In flour, for example, all the principal grades dropped in price. Fancy Minnesota flour, family grade, led the break with a decline of 60 cents a barrel, Spring patent flour was 25 cents a barrel lower, and Winter soft straight broke 15 cents.

Middle Western lard declined here, and there was also a drop in bacon. Hams did not change. At Chicago the only rise again was in short ribs, with mess pork unchanged and all of the live meats lower.

All of the changes in the dairy products were upward. Extra creamery butter was 2 cents a pound higher, with rises of 1 and 4 cents a dozen shown, respectively, in fancy near-by and choice fresh-gathered eggs.

A drop of 50 cents a barrel in common apples was the only change in the listed fresh and dried fruits. Few revisions were indicated in the vegetables, which showed a rise of 25 cents a barrel in cabbage and a similar drop a bag in turnips.

For the first time in a long while there were no changes in the beverage list. Bullish reports about the restriction of the 1927 Cuban sugar crop resulted in a higher price on both 96-degree raw and fine granulated refined sugars. Zanzibar cloves, Cochin ginger and white pepper contributed the changes in the spices.

Four of the five changes in the grains were downward this week, the only rise being in corn. Wheat, oats, rye and malting barley all declined. No quotable changes were seen in the hide and leather lists this week, this being the first time in several years that neither one nor the other of them has shown a revision. Tallow declined.

Only nine changes were indicated in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils this week, and but one of these was an advance. Of the eight declines seven were in oils. Resin and turpentine were again lower in the naval stores.

Advances in copper, zinc and tin marked the week in the metals list. Declines were lacking, as were changes either way in the lumber list. A decline in common Hudson River brick was the only indicated change in the building materials. Declines of 50 cents a ton were seen in furnace and foundry coke for prompt shipment. Lower prices for Brazilian and Eastern crude rubber also were seen. Miscellaneous changes of the week consisted of declines in hemp, wool and Japanese raw silk.

Not much change was seen in the textiles. In the cotton goods there were further revisions in wide sheetings, in keeping with other lines previously priced, and there was also a cut of 1½ cents a yard in a standard brand of bleached muslin. Burlaps were generally easier and now seem to be started on the decline that buyers have anticipated for some time.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4¼ per cent. for the best names.
Thursday—4¼ per cent. for the best names.

Mufflers Are Doing Well.

Despite the lack of continued cold weather, a nice business has been done in men's mufflers. The merchandise is assuming greater importance in holiday selling, according to wholesalers here. Both crêpe silk and cashmere mufflers are in active demand, the former featuring jacquard and printed effects and the latter plaids and stripe designs. High colors are the rule in the silk goods, the aim being to match or contrast the shades with those of the necktie or handkerchief. White or black knitted silk mufflers are being bought for formal wear.

Predicts Textile Buying Wave.

That January will bring with it a general wave of cotton goods buying is the prediction made by a prominent factor in the primary market. The current market letter of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association quotes him to this effect: "The January price revisions will be the last word, and the buyer will not delay taking advantage of the offerings made at prices he has not seen for years." The same factor sees little chance of generally active buying before that time because wholesale distributers for the next few weeks will be busy with holiday goods. He says further that, because of this, wholesalers are anxious to see further revisions in prices on standard lines of merchandise held off until the end of the year.

Ribbon Hats Taking Hold.

In millinery the hat of belting ribbon is meeting with an increasing amount of favor. Either solid color or striped ribbons are used for these hats. The model of bengaline combined with straw is also receiving considerable attention. Both types are being shown principally in the small, close fitting poke effect with rippled brim. A few are slightly rolled "off the face." The bright colored felt manages to hold its popularity. Soft straw body hats are in demand for the Winter resort season. Belting ribbon in combination colors is used for trimming.

Flat Crepes Are Favored.

Flat crêpes are looming up as leading silks for the Spring season. Dress manufacturers are giving much attention to these weaves and substantial orders are being placed as the production of Spring dresses increases. The crêpes will be used in the composé or shaded toning effect that is being featured for the new season. This effect is achieved by using two or three shades of the same color group. In two-piece silk dresses, for example, the body of the dress is in one shade with a lighter tone used for trimming.

Raincoat Demand Eases Up.

Increased production of both waterproofed fabrics and finished merchandise has enabled manufacturers of raincoats here to catch up with the demand. At the same time, retail buying has tended to ease off slightly so that there is not the difficulty in procuring supplies that was the case a few weeks ago. Coats for sales purposes will shortly be wanted in volume, manufacturers expect, as the stores usually hold these events at about the turn of the year. Coats in high colors continue to lead.

Have Had a Good Season.

With reorders coming in at a lively rate, the women's handbag trade is entering the final stages of a season in which the demand has been good. The buying is said to have been well distributed throughout the trade, so that practically every manufacturer has been kept busy. Some of them have had so much business that they were for a time much behind on deliveries. At present both the oblong pouch and under-arm styles are in demand. Leather merchandise dominates, the novelty leathers being stressed, including antelope, pigskin, simulated ostrich and varied reptile effects.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

A fair amount of trading took place in the local gray goods market yesterday. Buyers of printcloths paid 7 cents for spot 38½-inch 64-60s and 6⅞ cents for deliveries running well into 1927. The same was true of 39-inch 68-72s at 7⅝ and 7½ cents, respectively, and of 38½-inch 60-48s at 5 9-16 and 5½ cents. For spot 39-inch 72-76s, 8½ cents was paid. Trading in sheetings was not active, but prices were based on 7 cents for 37-inch 48-square, 4-yard goods. Other trading yesterday embraced 37-inch 3.95-yard drills at 7½ cents and contract sales of 37½-inch 64-104, 4.37-yard sateens at 11½ cents. Fine-yarn cloths were without feature.

Sees Chance of Skunk Revival.

In an announcement sent to the raw fur trade Frederick Huth & Co., say they have every reason to believe that skunk and opossum, which have received little buying support during the last year because of the high prices asked for them, would be of considerable interest to purchasers both in Europe and this country if they can be marketed at prices prevailing at the company's London auction in October and at its November sale in this city. "We strongly suggest shipment of fresh quantities of the above articles for inclusion in our Dec. 20th sale," the notice continues, "as we feel that it is vitally important to the entire trade to have an actual gauge on the outlet prices that will prevail in the consuming markets at that time." The last receiving date is Dec. 9.

Some Hard Coal Prices Easier.

While the demand for company anthracite holds up fairly well, Saward's Journal will say today, the edge is off the independent market. Prices are not quotably lower except on one or two sizes, but they are easier all around. It is evident that the trade has seen its best days so far as the present Fall season is concerned. The next few weeks promise to be a between-seasons period, with the Autumn rush over and the heavy Winter consumption not present to help business. The probabilities of the ending of the British strike were pretty well discounted by the slump in bituminous prices earlier in the month, so it can hardly be said that this week's developments on the other side have been much of a market factor.

Claflin Stocks Well Reduced.

The end of the first week of the Claflin liquidation sale will see stocks of the corporation so well reduced that another week will likely find them entirely cleaned up. Several offers for remaining department stocks in bulk have been made, but so far only one has been accepted. This sale was consummated yesterday and covered all the goods left in the linen and white goods department. Business in these materials, along with handkerchiefs and blankets, had been particularly active. Executives of the corporation yesterday appeared generally satisfied with the results of the first five days of the sale.

Thompsons Buy Loft Building.

Joseph J. Gries Company, Inc., sold in conjunction with F. S. Slosson and C. J. McKenna the seven-story store and loft building, 27 by 85 feet, at 414 Broadway, adjoining the corner of Canal Street, for the Darry Realty Corporation to the John R. Thompson Company, a restaurant syndicate. At the expiration of an existing lease the premises will be used by the buyers for their own purposes.
